AT THE ROPE'S END.

THE ASSASSIN OF SHERIFF PAYS THE PENALTY OF HIS CRIME.

Said to the People, "You Know not What You Do"—Neck Broken by the Fall—Newspaper Comment About Reames Other Oregon News.

Eugene April 17.—Edward Elliot Lyons this morning at 9:31 o'clock died on the scaffold in the jail yard at Eugene in expiation of the crime of killing Sheriff Withers February 5 of this year, near Walton, Siuslaw valley.

The hanging went without the slightest accident whatever. His neck was broken by the fall and but for the involuntary convulsions of the body as it swung to and fro there was not a sign of life after he reached the end of the rope.

Drs. Payne and Day pronounced the man dead after he had hung fourteen minutes.

In the cell a few minutes before the time of death Lyons was on his knees by the side of three ministers of the Gospel, Revs. H. A. Green, of the Baptist church, F. E. Billington and John Handsaker of the Christian church. They were praying fervently and the officers respectfully waited with bowed heads.

When the ministers had finished, Lyons' voice was raised in prayer. He offered a really splendid petition, remembering his wife, his children, his parents and all his friends in words which were uttered on trembling lips. It was the only time when he showed signs of breaking down. He wept bitterly and bowed his head upon the bed as he finished and uttered his "amen" as the keys of the deputy rattle in the lock.

The guards assisted him to don his coat and vest. A pretty rose adorned his lapel. The tears were dried away and he sat straight and resigned as the straps were placed about his limbs. His eyes were closed and his breath came and went rapidly and his knees trembled as he supported himself by holding to the iron bars of the door.

He bade good bye to the guards and friends by shaking hands. He spoke his farewell words without a tremor and looked his friends squarely in the eye. Then he was told that all was ready. He said that he was too, and fell into the procession headed by Sheriff Fisk and composed of Deputy Harry Brown, Wallace Chamberlain, Shelton Jenkins, J. J. Elwood, John Jones and Revs. H. A. Green and F. E. Billington, all of whom were with him on the scaffold.

He walked bravely to the foot of the scaffold and mounted the steps without assistance. A prepared board was ready to lash him to it he gave away but there was no need for it. He took his place and clinched his fists determined to display no nervousness.

"Elliot Lyons have you anything to say before the execution?" asked the sheriff.

"No, only this. I thank every one who has been kind to me. May God forgive you people, for you know not what you do. That's all."

"The victim heaved a sigh as he cast a last glance at the upturned faces of the crowd and closed his eyes as the black cap was adjusted. "Mr. Lyons wishes to thank all his friends who have been so kind as to call upon him during his imprisonment, all relatives, for their sympathy, and the officials who have showed him kind consideration. He has professed religion and is penitent. He has confessed his crime, and may God receive his soul as it leaves this earth." Rev. H. A. Green thus spoke.

Portland, April 18.—The Journal has this to say about A. E. Reames, of Jackson:

"Mr. A. E. Reames of Jacksonville stands before the people of the first congressional district as a candidate. Perhaps it is not about a throne that beats the fiercest light. In our American life, we have established the principle that, when men aspire to public honors, they must bring clean characters, in the first place; and high abilities in the second.

In this present issue, these considerations weigh in favor of the Jacksonville man. It is to his credit that, in the brilliant glare of a candidate's conspicuity, he measures up to every requirement, so fully and adequately as to enlist the most loyal and enthusiastic support from one end of the district to the other.

The Journal's advice are that the Jacksonville man is such as may well cause Oregonians to swell somewhat with pride, for he is a native product, born and bred among the hills of Southern Oregon, and imbued with the spirit of one who owns this state as his patria.

His knowledge of men and affairs has been gained during the successful prosecution of his life's work as a lawyer, and in no small participation in public concerns. He comes before the electorate with a career that is like an open book. His followers are going into the smallest details as to his life and work, and they are finding new material every day for renewed loyalty and admiration.

It is gratifying to present him as the ideal type of the young American, vigorous, manly, mentally endowed and cultivated, with that fine enthusiasm that attracts the voter to his standard.

The Journal believes that his candidacy will meet with high favor throughout this district. His nomination was secured at no expense of petty manipulation and left no sores to his fellow aspirants. They endorse his selection. They will lend their assistance in the conduct of a vigorous campaign, and, as the days passed, it will be found that the gallant young native son of Oregon has appealed successfully to the intelligences and regard of the first district voters.

Portland, April 18.—The effect of the 1905 fair is already beginning to manifest itself in advanced demand for houses, and increased offers of rentals. The Oregonian says:

Parties have been around this week on the East Side working some sort of a scheme to get control of all the renting houses until after the close of the Lewis and Clark Exposition. Charles Bartel said yesterday that he was offered $10 a month above what he is now receiving for his houses, if he would give a lease on the houses until after the Fair. He declined the offer. The same parties also went to Mrs. Hanley H. Holmes and several others on the East Side with about the same kind of an offer.

Mr. Bartel says that it looks to him as if a scheme is being worked so that control can be secured of all lodging and renting houses before the Fair opens, and then those securing the leases would be able to put any sort of a price on the apartments thus secured. He made inquiries around among his neighbors and found that many owners of renting houses had been approached on the subject this week. In every case a very favorable offer is made in the way of a large advance over the rent now being received.

Woodburn, N. J., April 17.—Officials of the National Bank are authority for the statement that a man has brought for deposit in the bank $18,500 which had lain buried in his backyard for years. They decline to give the name of the man, but say the money was nearly all in twenty-dollar gold pieces. The same bank received also a box full of gold, silver and nickels from another man who had taken it to the bank in a wheelbarrow because it was too much of a load for two men to carry.

WAS DEAD.

AND SO REMAINED FOR EIGHTEEN HOURS, BUT WAS THEN BROUGHT TO LIFE.

Seventeen Year Old Wife Waved Goodby to Husband and Jumped From Railroad Bridge—They had Quarreled Over Easter Bonnet.

Dallas Tex., April 17.—The remarkable incident is reported today from the oil field at Sour Lake of a youth being restored to life after eighteen hours of absolute unconsciousness and apparent cessation of heart action for twelve hours.

Harry Breeding, eighteen years old, was working with his father at one of the oil wells. A part of his duty was to draw drinking water from a deep well. In leaning over the curb on Friday evening his bucket fell into the well. The water was all baled out and the boy descended to the bottom. A powerful odor of gas peculiar to the oil region, was emitted to the well after the water had been baled out, and almost as soon as he had reached the bottom of the well young Breeding became unconscious.

A man was lowered and the apparent lifeless body of the boy was drawn to the surface. Doctors worked on him for two hours, but finally pronounced him dead.

Periodical efforts to resuscitate him were renewed, however, and at the end of twelve hours the doctors were surprised to find evidences of slight heart action. At the end of eighteen hours, at noon of yesterday, the young man recovered consciousness, and by last night he was able to talk and was pronounced out of danger.

Fort Jervis, N. Y. April 17.—So trivial was the cause of their quarrel—an Easter hat—that Clarence Bishop paid no heed to his young bride when she called to him this morning:

"Good-by. You'll never see me alive again." and rushed out of the house.

An hour later her body was recovered from Neversink River, a short distance from their home. Mrs. Bishop was only seventeen, and recently married. Bishop is nineteen. He did not consider how proudly his bride looked forward to her first Easter hat. When it came up for discussion after breakfast he made light of it. Mrs. Bishop was unusually sensitive, and his apparent brusqueness wounded her. She longed for words of praise but they were denied her.

Bishop did not observe that tears filled the eyes of his bride. His back was turned toward her when she moved toward the door saying she would never return. It was the silence which finally aroused him. He saw his wife was absent and stepped out on the porch. Already he had dismissed from his mind the Easter bonnet.

The Erie Railroad bridge spans the Neversink River within view of the house. Bishop saw the frail figure of his wife as she ran out on the structure. He saw her pause look toward her home, and apparently catching sight of her husband wave a farewell with her handkerchief. The bit of white fluttered in her hand as she jumped forty feet to the water and disappeared from sight. Her body was recovered some distance down stream.
