What a Man Said About It—The Plan of the Directors—School Bonds.

The bond election occurs Monday. The plan of the school board is to be given authority to issue $8,000 school bonds...

The district now has $8,000 in bonds outstanding. They bear five per cent interest. One $1,000 bond has to be paid each year.

The reason the school board wants authority to issue bonds, is to get money to make more room for pupils at the public school in Corvallis.

Even with these added facilities, all the rooms in the school building were overcrowded the past year. Some teachers had as high as sixty pupils.

Notice is hereby given that the following is a list of all county warrants issued more than 7 years prior to July 1st, 1903.

LATERAL SEWERS.

Six are Under Consideration by the Council—Their Location.

Two additional lateral sewers were ordered at a special meeting of the city council Monday evening.

Another lateral ordered is through two blocks, beginning at J. E. Rapier's and running north, through the A. C. White and other lots to a connection with the Jefferson street main at Mrs. P. O. Wilson's.

Another lateral under consideration is one through the postoffice block to the Jefferson street main. The proposal is to tap the old brick sewer and conduct its sewage at the alley back of the Occidental hotel into the Jefferson main, and abandon the river end of the old sewer from the Occidental alley to the Willamette.

DESTRUCTION BY FLAME

A Loss of $1,600 Is Sustained by Fire in Business Portion of Corvallis.

C. W. Lederle is out of the restaurant business for the present. Mack Hemphill is unable to accommodate the lodgers who occupied rooms in the upper story of his building on Second and Jefferson streets, and J. M. Cameron has now but one harness shop. The changes were brought about Friday morning by a rather destructive fire originating in the kitchen of the City restaurant. The statement of Mr. Lederle respecting the origin of the fire is that he arose a few minutes after 4 o'clock and started a fire in his kitchen stove. He then returned to bed, and having dozed for perhaps ten minutes, awoke and discovered that the kitchen was aflame. He gave the alarm and turned to awaken Mack Hemphill who, with his family, slept in near-by apartments. As soon as possible Mr. Hemphill ran to the fire bell and rang it with such vigor that the populace responded without delay.

A small portion of the restaurant fixtures was saved. Mr Lederle carried insurance to the amount of $500 which will cover his loss. The contents of Cameron's harness shop was almost entirely removed, and on these the loss will not exceed $50, with no insurance.

Mrs Mary A Hemphill is the owner of the restaurant building, and the loss will approximate $600 with no insurance. Other buildings partially burned, and the lodging house furniture are the property of Mack Hemphill, who did not carry insurance. His loss will be about $500.
