MOT TILL THEN.

One white man dead and nine whites injured is the sequel to a black rapist's crime in an Illinois town Saturday. The whites were members of a mob that sought to avenge the atrocity visited upon a young girl by the negro, and the killing and maiming was by the sheriff and his deputies in defense of the black fiend. The homes darkened, the lives blighted and the harm to society thus wrought by the devilish mania of lecherous negroes, increased chapter by chapter and day by day.

No problem of the time is more momentous, because no other problem is so fraught with peril to the black race, and to society. For it, as time has fully shown there is but one solution, and that sclution is in the black man's hands alone. When he ceases his assaults on white women and white girls, then and not till then, will the lynchings and race wars end and that final and awful ultimate settlement with white society be

TO BUILD A BRIDGE.

Will Cost About Sixteen Hundred Dollars-Ingram Island.

After a wait of many years, the inhabitants of Ingram island are to have a bridge, connecting their municipality with the mainland of Benton County. For a dozen years petitions for the structure have been a familiar proceeding in the commissioners court, but was turned down because road connections with the the bridge site were not complete. This year the petition was renewed, and as before, the inhabitants of the island offered to build the bridge if the county would furnish the mate-

FANNIE WITHAM BAKER.

She Passes Away in a Seattle Pesthouse from Smallpox.

The death of Mrs. Fannie Baker occurred at Seattle July 17th. She contracted smallpox and was re moved to the pesthouse where she died without the attention of relatives. Mrs Baker was the second daughter of A.M. Witham of this county, where deceased was born and grew to womanhood. She was 49 years of age and leaves a husband who is ill in one of the Seattle hospitals, but no children survive her. Mr. and Mrs. Baker were been away about ten years. Information of Mrs. Baker's death came to her father here from another daughter, Mrs. Mary Bradley, of Abe deen, who saw a brief account of the sad death in a Seattle paper. There are no further details. Mr. Witham regrets very much that he could not have been with his daughter to see that she received good attention and that the conditions were such that her remains could not be brought home for interment. Mrs. Baker's married life was in many respects was clouded by misfortune. and Mr. Witham had hoped that the time might come when he could give her the home to which her excellent womanhood entitled Ernest Seehafer came to Benton county last winter, leaving in North Dakota a farm which he had seeded before coming west. A short time ago he received word from the man in charge, that a dry spring had shortened the crop, and in addition a hail storm had visited that section, further damaging the grain and breaking many window lights of the farm residence. Friday last Mr. Seehafer started back to Dakota to harvest the remnants of his crop and sell out. When the gentleman came here he bought the Homier place on Beaver creek, and is much pleased with his prospects, He will shortly return to Benton with all his worldly goods.

FOUGHT BEAR AND CUBS.

His Weapon a Revolver-It Happened at Night West of Dusty.

In the darkness of early night, along the road between Dusty and a spot six miles to the westward in the mountains, James Ray and an old she bear and her two cabs had a fight the other evening. Ray was a belated traveller, en route from Dusty to his home, where he and his father together conduct a bachelor's hall. It was ifarly dark and as he passed objects along the way could only be seen dimly. He was afoot and was making his way with the swift stride of a woodsman, when a husky growl and snort in the road just ahead brought him to a sense of danger. Several yards ahead in the road he could see the dim outlines of a form which the growl indicated to be that of a bear. Hard by the roadside was a pile of logs and debris and on this the traveller leaped. The act disturbed the pile and from under the logs ran a bear cub.

Ray carried a revolver, and he The ball struck, and the squall that the youngster lifted, set bats and owls a-flying and cold chills chasing each other up Ray's back. With an angry growl, the bear mother answered the equalls of her cub wito a rush at Ray.

The revolver was a self-cocker and the blinding flashes and sharp reports from if, followed each other in quick succession as Ray pumped lead into his assailant. The firing brought her to a halt temporarily and gave time for Ray, when the chambers of his weapon were all empty, to leap from his log pile and beat a retreat down the road.

The story is that he got away on a beautiful stride, that he held to it like a racer, and that the mile or two that he made in the next few minutes were smashers of all records known or unknown. Mr. Ray bas been in town since, but was unable to say whether the old bear rience be gained that night satis-
