The present number contains much local and other matter of interest to the school world.

In 1861, an American girl eight years old awoke one morning in London to find, like Byron, that she was famous. The night before she had sung at Covent Garden Theatre in "La Sonnambula," for no salary to speak of; the next day she rejected an offer of $500 a night. The girl was Adeline Patti—Patti the wonderful, who after charming music lovers for more than two scores years and outliving and outgaining all her own generation of prima donnas, is soon to tour the United States in farewell concerts. She is to appear in Portland.

George H. Himes paid Corvallis a visit Thursday and Friday in the interest of the Oregon Historical Society, of which he is assistant Secretary. Other officers of the society are C. B. Bellinger, president; W. D. Fenton, vice-president; F. G. Young, Eugene, secretary; Charles E. Ladd, treasurer. Among the directors are the governor, superintendent of public instruction, H. W. Scott and other persons of prominence. The objects of the society are generally understood, as indicated by the title. Any one knowing of the whereabouts of any book, document, pamphlet, letter, diary, paper, weapon or utensil of any kind that has had any relation to the early settlement of Oregon, meaning by that the original Oregon Territory, will confer a favor upon the assistant secretary by notifying him. After such notification, he will at once use all means possible to secure the article named, together with its attending history.

Dear hunters have only a brief time in which to secure tags which the law requires shall be attached to hides. Tags must be procured within five days after the expiration of the open season for deer. That time expires on November 1st. Attention to this matter in time may save much annoyance or trouble later on. The number of tags which may be procured by any one person shall not be more than five and shall correspond with the number of deer killed. They may be obtained from the county clerk and justices of the peace.

The crossing on Main street in front of the post office was rebuilt yesterday. It was increased to four feet in width and in the center of the street is not below the surface of the ground as was the case with its predecessor. It is the only crossing on the block that is really available in bad weather, and on that account is used more than perhaps any crossing in town. Until the stone crossings are raised two or three inches, they might as well be in the bottom of the Willamette as far as any good they do pedestrians.

The quarantine at the Lillard house in Job's addition, where scarlet fever has been prevalent, has been raised. A child there has recovered completely from a very light attack of the disease. The premises were subsequently fumigated in a way that will doubtless prove effective. The fumigation was done by Dr. Pernot and Chief Lane, and no effort was spared to make it complete. All the children in the family, except a young baby have had a turn at the disease. The period of infection in the case of the little one has already passed, and it is not expected to contract the malady.

FOR SALE. Vetch seed at Corvallis Flour Mills.

IN MALE ATTIRE

Corvallis Girl—Beats her Way on Railroad—Queer Phone Incident.

Arrayed in male attire and with her hair newly shorn to better carry out her purpose to pass for a young man, Miss Frances Fresh, formerly of Corvallis, exploited herself in a fashion the other day that causes all familiar with the facts to wonder what has possessed the young woman. Miss Fresh is well known to many persons in Corvallis. She lived for sometime with Mr. and Mrs. Knisely. She has relatives in Alsea, where she formerly resided.

In appearance, she is tall and slight, with light hair. Her features are aquiline, and altogether she is what most people would call a pretty girl. She left Corvallis during the summer and went to Albany, since which time, little has been known of her by Corvallis people.

The exploit that occasions this story of Miss Fresh, began last Saturday night. Where or how it will end, nobody knows. She was employed at a farm home two miles east of Halsey. While the family was absent during the evening, she dressed herself in the best suit of the man of the house. She cut her hair close, and with $11 in cash, and a diamond pin, abstracted from the purse of the housewife, she walked to Halsey. There she applied at a house for a night's lodging, but was refused. She then went to a barber shop where the haircut she had herself begun was finished in artistic style.

The same night she took the southbound overland train. She did not take the trouble to provide herself with a ticket, and it is supposed went aboard with the purpose of beating her way to San Francisco. What happened enroute is not known, but the next heard from her was at Sissons, California. A letter from Halsey, Oregon, received in Corvallis, Wednesday, says that on the train she claimed to have lost her ticket. Finally the train authorities sent a dispatch to Halsey inquiring if a young man had bought a ticket there for San Francisco. The answer came that back was that no young man had bought a ticket there, but that a young woman in male attire had boarded the train without a ticket. Then, the letter continues, the train men put her off at Sissons, but the passengers paid her fare to San Francisco. The letter was written to Corvallis in the hope of enlisting the interest of friends in her behalf. It is known that she is without friends in the California metropolis, and there are those who contemplate with much misgiving the arrival in that great city of a verdant Oregon girl, togged out in male attire, and apparently, for the moment in a state of mental irresponsibility.

Related with the story above, there is another incident. It happened the first of the current week. Attending OAC is a well known girl. Relatives called up an attaché of the college the other evening and asked if the young lady was at the college. The reply was in the affirmative and then the relative, who by the way was at the home town of the young lady, related that a telephone message had been received there from Sissons, California, saying that the young college girl was not at Corvallis, but at Sissons, that she was in distress, and asked that money be sent to her at once. Those familiar with the facts are wondering how intimately the two incidents may be related to each other, and if it was the girl in male attire at the Sissons telephone office, and if it were she that tried to induce the father of the OAC, girl by misrepresentation of the facts, to send money to her at Sissons, California.

Summons. In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Benton county. Sarah S. Ball, Plaintiff vs. Cyrus Perham, Ed Perham and Lona Chamberlain, Defendants. To Cyrus Perham, Ed Perham and Lona Chamberlain, the above named defendants. In the name of the State of Oregon, you and each of you are hereby summoned and required to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled suit, in the above entitled court, now on file in the office of the clerk of said court, on or before the 21st day of November, 1908, said day being the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons made by the county judge of Benton county, Oregon, (which said order is hereinafter referred to as follows: On or before six weeks from the day of its publication hereof and you are hereby notified that if you fail so to appear and answer the said complaint as herein required, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the above entitled court for the relief demanded in her said complaint, namely, for a decree determining all conflicting and adverse claims, interests and estates in and to all that part of the northeast quarter of the north, west quarter of Section 33 Twp. 10 S. R. 5 W. Will. Mer. which lies north of the Alfred Wetman branch or creek, in Benton county, Oregon; that defendants have no claim, interest or estate therein; that plaintiff's title therein is good and valid; and that defendants be forever barred and enjoined from asserting any claim whatever in and to said premises adverse to plaintiff; and for general relief and costs and disbursements of said suit. This summons is published in the Corvallis Times once a week for six successive and consecutive weeks, beginning with the issue of October 10th, 1908, and ending with the issue of November 21, 1908, in pursuance of a order made by the Hon. Virgil E. Walters, county judge of Benton county, Oregon, (being the county where the above entitled suit is pending) in the above entitled court dated October 9, 1908. Date of first publication is October 10, 1908. E. R. BRYSON & E. E. WILSON, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

CAUGHT A DEER.

Relative Advantage of a Tail Hold and the Down-Hill Pull.

One day in the early part of this week there was an unusual amount of shooting heard in the vicinity of Elliot hill three miles below town. The bombardment was occasioned by the presence of a deer in the neighborhood and the apparently inordinate appetite of the residents for fresh venison. They were out with every conceivable form of firearm and whichever way the deer ran for safety it was confronted by a man behind a loaded gun or pistol, with one exception. The animal had been chased and harassed for hours. It was well nigh exhausted when it espied a man, who, for some unaccountable reason was without a gun. This person was Julius Abraham, and to him the deer went, seemingly for protection. But it proved to be a case of misplaced confidence, because Julius, too, was hungry for venison. He sprang upon the confiding animal with the fierceness of a tiger, and as it essayed to escape the onslaught Julius laid a firm hold upon its tail with his left hand. The presence of extreme danger nerved the flagging energy of the deer and it ran at a rapid pace down the hillside, Julius meantime making desperate efforts to secure his pocketknife with the disengaged hand. However, this was a difficult undertaking more particularly as he was compelled by the speed of the deer to take unaccustomed strides.

In time from the dark ages to the present a tail hold with a down hill pull is all the advantage that a contestant would have the hardihood to ask, but these were not the exact conditions in Abraham's encounter with the deer. He unmistakably had secured the coveted hold, but the deer had possessed itself of the other favored position, which proved to be much the better situation. Incidentally this shows in the affairs of men the extreme advantage of a "pull," and the irresistibility of a down-hill pull whatever the hold. But there is an end of every inspiring spectacle of this kind and when the star actor in the drama had covered about two hundred yards of linear measurement the hair of the tail slipped. With it the hand of Julius also slipped, and his momentum carried him sprawling and tumbling after the manner of a character in the familiar legend of Jack and Jill. When Julius arose uninjured he glanced at the tuft of hair he still held firmly in his hand, being scarcely able to realize that the deer had escaped him. He then watched the flight of the animal until it fell mortally wounded by a chance shot from the rifle of George Linderman.

THREE WEDDINGS.

Six Benton County People Take the Important Step of Life.

Wednesday was a red-letter day in the matrimonial market. The county clerk thought for a time that he would be short of license blanks before the day closed, but fortunately the run on his supply abated in the middle of the afternoon. Here is the record of weddings on that day:

In the office of E. Holgate, justice of the peace, October 28, 1913, Mr. Frank Rickard and Miss Ella Goodman.

At the Mangas home this city, October 28, 1913, by Father Burri, of McMinnville, Mr. B. F. Bier and Miss Mae E. Mangas. They are to occupy a home on Sixth street near Washington.

At the home of the bride's parents in Job's addition, October 28, 1913, Mr. Clarence Wilson and Miss Elsie Hotchkiss, Rev. Deck officiating.

All the parties taking this very important step are worthy young people and if good wishes avail, they will enjoy the serene course in life which their worth entitles them.
