—Since entering a hospital in Portland, C. B. Wells' condition has not improved. He is suffering from an affection of the brain, the exact nature of which is not certainly known. It was hoped, however, that it was of a character that would be relieved by rest and quiet. News from him is by no means reassuring.

—Articles of incorporation of the Gold Zone Mining Company have been filed with the county clerk. The capital stock is $15,000 and the principal business office is at Corvallis. The object of the company is to purchase, own and operate mines, deal in mining stock, to conduct stores and engage in other business pertaining to mines and mining. The incorporators are E. J. Dunn, B. F. Thatcher, Guy Seeley, S. L. Hays, John W. Holland and Mr. Hopkins.

—Judge H. L. Benson, of Klamath Falls, is to preside at the coming term of circuit court for Benton, an adjourned session of which is scheduled for this morning at nine o'clock. It is understood that Judge Hamilton has been compelled to go East for the benefit of his wife's health. The indications are that the coming term of court will not continue more than two days. The number of cases on the docket is 31. The only state case is that of W. H. Wagner, bound over for assault on Justice Holgate's court.

—Albert Oren met with a severe accident Wednesday afternoon while at work in the Fischer orchard. Geo. Cale was doing some pruning and Albert had a rope attached to a heavy limb with the view of pulling it over into a wagon underneath. From some cause the team started and in an attempt to secure the lines, Albert stepped in before the wagon. He was knocked down and pushed along a considerable distance by a front wheel before it finally ran over his body. The injured young man was carried to his home a quarter of a mile distant. He has not since been able to work and the extent of his injuries is not definitely known.

—It appears that Albany is considering a proposition to give a bonus for the removal of the Cramer Organ and Carriage factory to that city. The Democrat says: Mr. Weatherford in his remarks announced that the commerce committee was considering a proposition from R. M. Cramer, of the Corvallis organ and carriage factory to bring the factory here and in addition to build a sawmill with a capacity of twenty or thirty thousand feet a day, for a bonus of $2500, to cover the purchase of a lot and the expense of moving and setting up the plant, if the entire amount should not be needed the balance to be returned to the citizens. After preliminary arrangements are completed the raising of the bonus will be begun by the club. Mr. Cramer desires to come here on account of our superior shipping facilities and the ability to secure the desired hemlock lumber for the manufacture of organs up the Santiam.

—Mrs. Green, of Mill City, is visiting in Corvallis, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Grier.

—Henry Allen took his departure Thursday for Iowa to which state he was ordered on official business by the U. S. statistical bureau.

—Four Keys on a spring ring were picked up near the C. & E. depot this week. They have been left at this office. Owner will call for them.

—Smith & Boulden have for several days been shipping large numbers of dressed turkeys and ducks for the Portland Thanksgiving market.

—Ed. Patterson, an aged man from Toledo, passed through Corvallis on his way to Portland to answer to a charge of selling liquor to Indians.

—Miss Edna Gill, who has been visiting the family of A. J. Johnson the past week, goes to Salem today for a brief stay before her return to Seilo.

—W. A. Wells and Manuel Kolhr, two pioneer citizens, are quite ill. Their condition has been such as to cause some apprehension among their friends.

—Frank Groves, who came to Corvallis recently to attend the funeral of his father, is to leave today or tomorrow for his post at the Bremerton Navy Yard on Puget Sound.

—J. D. Irvine has disposed of his one-third interest in the Benton County sawmill, M. J. Flion and Samuel Ewing, original proprietors of the enterprise being the purchasers.

—The game of football between Albany college and the Willamette university teams, occurred at Salem yesterday afternoon. The change in date is understood to have been made in order to give the players in both teams opportunity to attend the Eugene game today.

—Charley Livesly, of Portland, has purchased the Beach-Osburn hops of 195 bales and the Alex Campbell crop of 26 bales. Mr. Campbell's hops brought 15 cents per pound, but it is not publicly known what was received for the other crop. The hops are to be shipped as soon as cars are available.

—Governor Chamberlain still demands a pledge from members for a short session confined to consideration of tax matters before he will call an extra session of the legislature. There ought to be an extra session for correction of the tax bungle, but if none be called it will be the fault of the legislators. If they refuse to give a pledge, they assume the entire responsibility of no tax collections next year, and whatever embarrassment in public finances that may entail.

—A Portland Journal dispatch from Eugene says, Earl, on account of the death of his sister will not be with the university eleven again this year, and that Kerron may take his position at guard, Templeton going to fullback, with Long at half. Another plan is to put Penland at guard and leave the backs unchanged. Reid, the regular center will not be able to enter the game, and his place will be filled by McLain.

—Wednesday evening was the meeting night of the Corvallis Ladies of the Macabees, and at that time the Sir Knights took occasion to surprise them. While the ladies were busily engaged with their work, the Knights spread an elegant repast in the banquet hall, and at an appropriate time, the ladies were invited in. There were many expressions of appreciation on the part of the recipients of the surprise. After luncheon members of the combined orders made merry until a late hour.

—"Hop" Sing, a year ago, purchased from George Henkle 120 acres of land on the Kiger Island. He planted 40 acres to hops and will have a crop next season. He expects to enlarge his business and with that idea in view has rented, or is about to rent, Henry Gerhard's farm which adjoins the land purchased from Mr. Henkle. Sing intends to plant to hops this winter 40 acres of the Gerhard land. Among others who intend to enlarge their hop yards this winter is Dick Dune, of King's Valley. He will set out ten or twenty acres in addition to what he already has.

—The excursion train tomorrow is advertised to leave the C. & E. station at nine o'clock sharp. That means that all who expect to go should be on hand at least 8:45 or earlier. At the station an exchange of the tickets sold by the committee for the regular railroad ticket will be necessary. This will require considerable time, and will be the occasion of a grand rush. It will therefore be seen that it is of the utmost importance that everybody be on hand early. The train will certainly pull out of the station at nine sharp, in order for the team to get to Eugene in time to look after matters of importance there.

—County Judge Watters has just placed in his office an elegant mounted deer head. The deer was a three-pointer, killed by Mr. Watters on Blue Mountain, and the horns are in a heavy covering of velvet. The head was sent to W. S. Mummery, of North Dakota, to be mounted and it was returned only a few days ago. W. S. Mummery is a brother of Charley Mummery who died in Corvallis some years ago. The former had become anxious to do something to show his appreciation of Mr. Watters' attention to Charley in his last illness, and insisted upon mounting a deer's head for Mr. Watters. The work is of a superior character.

CITIZENS AND STUDENTS.

They Met Together—Things They did—Many Persons Were There.

Students of the college and citizens of Corvallis mingled together in a big meeting at the Opera House Thursday evening. The occasion was a football rally, with a programme consisting of short speeches by citizens, vocal numbers by the College Glee Club, and the Corvallis male quartet and other features. The bond of union between the people of Corvallis and the college students, and the sympathy, support and cordiality the downtown people extend to the students in their various athletic enterprises is the subject of wonder and comment all over Oregon. Mention of the matter appears in newspaper clippings published in another column. It is said by persons abroad that one of the several reasons for the greater attendance at OAC than any other educational institution in the state is in part the unbounded cordiality which townspeople extend the students, and the open-handed support that the former are always ready to accord the institution. The matter is as it should be, and is, as attendance shows, much appreciated by the students themselves. It is all this that is the occasion for the remark abroad that Corvallis has great sympathy, support and enthusiasm for the great educational institution the state has founded at its doors.

The programme Thursday evening opened with a number by the well known and ever popular quartette, consisting of John Fulton, Otto F. L. Herse, J. F. Yates and B. W. Johnson. A stormy encore greeted the effort and a cordial response was made with another song. An excellent address by Major Hardin was followed by a number by the College Glee Club. The latter is a new organization, and the occasion in question was its first public appearance. Appreciation of its fine work was shown by vociferous demand by the audience for another number, to which the Club gracefully responded. After an interesting address by Professor Berchtold, the male quartette rendered another number and encore, and W. E. Yates delivered a brief address. An original poem, read with fine elocutionary effect by Mrs. B. W. Johnson, and dealing with the subject of the evening was followed by a good-night song by the male quartette, and the dismissal of the audience. The college band was also in attendance, and rendered several fine selections.

At the meeting all the seats in the Opera House were occupied, and many people remained standing throughout the evening in the back part of the room.

KILLED TWO DECOYS.

S. L. Henderson Did it After Wearing some Work to get a Shot.

When Samp Henderson reads this item he will know that somebody has betrayed his confidence. It may or it may not be against a man's reputation as a sportsman to have it known that he took a pot shot at some hunter's decoys. However that may be, no person who has done such a thing cares to have it publicly known, but he is apt to confess to a bosom friend, and that is what Henderson did. It seems from what can be learned about the incident that a party of Sunday hunters found two dead ducks at the lake in "the big briar patch." All the hunters know where that is. By using sticks to prop up the dead duck's heads they answered very well for decoys, evidently. When the party went away the decoys were left in position. The next day Mr. Henderson and Bob Huston went out hunting in the same vicinity. They approached the lake with careful tread and nervous anticipation. Suddenly, Samp stopped and waved Huston to a standstill. "I see a couple of ducks," said he. After a hushed consultation as to the plan of attack it was decided that Bob should hold the dogs while Samp made a wide circuit to obtain the advantage of a clump of bushes behind which he could creep up on the unsuspecting game. To secure the coveted position he was compelled to sneak along with the stillness of a cat approaching its prey. At times Samp thought the ducks had detected him, and would lie flat until the suspicion of the game had, as he supposed, vanished. After a great deal of arduous creeping and crawling the hunter gained a capital position. The two ducks were some distance apart and when Samp's gun roared, one of the birds seemingly fell over dead. The other he expected to get on the wing, but to his surprise it remained perfectly still and gave him an excellent pot shot. The second one also succumbed. Neither one of the ducks made a kick after receiving the contents of Henderson's gun, and then the idea flashed through his excited brain that the ducks were decoys. "What did Bob think of the business?" asked the gentleman to whom the story was told. "Oh, he didn't have much to say," said Henderson, "because the joke was just as much on him as it was on me." It is a nice thing to bear one another's burdens, or at least a share of them, but Bob seems indisposed to take that view of this particular situation.
