SALE OF HOTEL CORVALLIS.

Twenty Thousand is the Figure—The new Proprietor is St. Helens man.

A news item in Wednesday's TIMES announced the transfer of the Hotel Corvallis property to a new owner. Samuel Swanson, who purchased the incompleting building and a series of delays brought it to a state of completion and occupancy has severed his connection with its ownership. The new owner is Samuel Miles of St. Helens. He is sole proprietor, and is in possession, the deeds having passed the first of the week.

The consideration in the conveyance is $20,000. Of the amount, $8,000 is cash, represented by a mortgage that the purchaser held on the property for money advanced by Swanson. The balance of $12,000 is Portland property, which Miles conveys to Swanson, the above figure of $12,000 being the consideration in the Portland deed.

The sale of the hotel in no way interferes with existing arrangements. Landlord Hammell has a lease on the property for seven years, and no transfer can make any difference in his arrangements.

The purchaser is an old time resident of St. Helens, Oregon, where he is an extensive property owner. He has resided for many years in the vicinity, and his purchase of the Corvallis property is merely a side investment.

A MIDNIGHT FIRE.

It Was a Barn, and Its Contents Went Up in Smoke.

The barn and contents on the lot of Joseph Fierstein at the corner of Fifth and Washington, were burned to the ground in the early hours of Friday morning. The alarm was turned in shortly after one o'clock, and there was a prompt response by the department. The flames, however, had gained great headway, and the firemen found it impossible to save the structure. These efforts were directed to the saving of an adjoining barn in which the horses and other belongings of the Seely Truck Co. are kept. A stream from the hydrant at Dr. Cathey's was sufficient for the purpose.

In the Fierstein barn a quantity of wood, potatoes, tope, and other things of value and use were stored. Nearly all of the contents were totally destroyed. Upon the building destroyed there was insurance to the amount of $100 in the McMinnville Company. The origin of the fire is uncertain. A smokehouse adjoined the barn, but there had been no fire in it for some time.

THE LAW VOID.

For Assessing Bank Deposits—But Legislature Could Make Valid one.

Last spring, the question of assessing bank deposits was a live one in Benton. Acting under instructions from the county court, Assessor Bush made a demand on the two local banks for lists of their depositors, and the amounts deposited. The information was wanted for the purpose of bringing the cash of the county into payment of a share of taxation. The course was authorized by a statute which purported to require bank officers to supply such lists to assessors, and which provided a fine and imprisonment for refusal. The statute had been a law for years, but there had been no attempt to enforce it. Some held that it was not a valid law, and could not be made effective. The Benton county court took the view that an application of the law would speedily determine whether or not the statute was effective, and that if not effective it should be repealed so as to give clear way for legislation on the subject that would be operative in the matter, the Benton court was in co-operation with numerous other county courts of the state, the action in Benton being for test purposes. The court pursued the matter to the extent of going to the grand jury with a complaint on the refusal of local banks to furnish the lists of depositors demanded.

The attorney general has rendered an opinion to the effect that the statute in question is not valid. A decision by the federal courts is quoted, in which it is held that the state has authority to make laws to compel bank officers to supply lists of depositors for purposes of assessment. The statute on which the federal decision was rendered authorized the assessor "to issue compulsory process to require the attendance of witnesses and to examine them on oath, and providing for punishment as for contempt in case of refusal to obey a subpoena to testify." The attorney general adds, "Our statutes confer no authority on assessors to issue compulsory process to compel witnesses to attend, but in the light of the foregoing decision the legislative assembly could so provide, and I have been unable to find that said decision has ever been disapproved."

The grounds upon which the Oregon statute is held invalid, is that the title of the act does not conform to the subject matter in the law. The title of the act is, "An act to empower assessors to assess bank deposits," while the body of the law is a command to bank officers to supply lists of depositors, and provides a fine for refusal so to do, neither of which is mentioned in the title, in which respect the law does not conform to the requirements of the state constitution.

To do one thing and to do it well is more to be commended and of more benefit to humanity than to do many things and none of them equal to the best. Dr. Lowe limits his practice to fitting glasses, and puts the cream of 17 years experience into them. Don't trifle with your eyes or let others do so. See Dr. Lowe.
