

DRIVEN FROM LINN.

HOLY ROLLER APOSTLES SENT AWAY BY LEBANON CITIZENS.

Brooks Was Among Them, but Creffield Was Not Their—Camp Was Surrounded in the Belief That They Were Robbers.

Albany, Or., Jan. 31.—Camped in the dense timber on the M-seker place in the extreme northern part of Linn county, avoiding the people of the neighborhood and passers-by; unkempt and unclean, the Holy Roller apostles were taken for the robbers who have recently been at work at Woodburn, Brownsville, Dallas and elsewhere.

Their presence was reported to Conetable Jones, of Jefferson, who communicated with Sheriff Huston and Chief of Police McClain, of Albany. These officials immediately repaired to the scene of action, located the bold robbers and prepared to capture them. Dentists of the neighborhood to the number of a dozen, armed with shotguns and such firearms as are found on a farm, joined the police.

When the lair of the supposed fugitives was reached, the hastily collected army began to surround the retreat, so as to effectually block any attempt to escape. Great was the surprise of the man-hunters when the cordon of justice had closed in, not to find a number of deep-seated and determined defiers of justice, but instead to see Apostles Brooks, Levine and Campbell, of the Holy Roller denomination, humbly perusing their Bibles.

The apostles were camped under the open sky, with no protection from the elements other than a windbreak improvised with fir boughs. Their beds were of ferns and a ragged blanket. A few potatoes, some dirty flour and a little whole wheat constituted the bill of fare in the Holy Roller kitchen. The apostles themselves were in a disgusting state of filth, with matted hair and unkempt persons.

People of the neighborhood entered a complaint, and Sheriff Huston ordered the Rollers to move on. The men protested against moving on Sunday, saying they wanted to read their Bibles. But finding protests were useless, they inquired the distance to Marion county, and immediately took up their beds and walked.

There were no women with the apostles, who had not been heard from since they were in Brownsville some time ago. Brooks refused to divulge the hiding place of Creffield.

"Do you know that I am blamed for this?" she said. A nurse was hired. He tasted the meat juice given to the patient. It tasted bitter. He believed there was arsenic in it and saved some of it. It was analyzed afterward, and found to contain it, and after Maybrick's death the poison itself was found where it was believed that Mrs. Maybrick had hidden it. This was the skeleton of the case against her.

Judge Stephens, who was judge of the trial court, has been accused of unfairness. His charge to the jury shocked even the English bar and many American jurists compared in venom and prejudice to the diatribes of Jeffries in the "bloody assizes." Justices Stephens hated Americans and had been for years a contributor of rancorous articles on things American to the Saturday Review, a rabidly anti-American weekly. He had been in the habit of arraying himself more or less openly on one side or another of most cases which came before him. He was declared to be insane and died in a sanitarium for the insane.

Two of the most eminent physicians in England, Dr. Charles Maymont Tidy, M. B. F. C. S., and Dr. Rawdon McNamara, F. R. C. S. I., testified directly against the murder theory. The mother of Mrs. Maybrick is the Baroness von Roque. The suit for land in America, which brought out the statement by the Home Office that Mrs. Maybrick would be released, is for possession of 2,252,300 acres of land and for $300,000. The Baroness alleges that D. W. Armstrong, a lawyer, deceived her as to the value of the lands, and tricked her into selling at a very much lower price than could have been secured. The property was inherited from her father, D. B. Holbrook, of Alexander county, Kentucky.

The British attorney for Mrs. Maybrick never ceased to work for her release. He published a book several years ago in which the evidence at the trial appeared. He believed that his professional reputation had been injured by unfair treatment. His faith in Mrs. Maybrick's innocence was never shaken. He dedicated the book to Mrs. Maybrick's two children, "that they might know in after years that there was no evidence that their father had been killed, and that, in spite of conviction, they might always preserve intact the holy meaning of mother.

CITIZEN'S ARTICLE.

It is About Trusts—A Remedy Suggested—The Evil Growing.

For sometime past various newspapers have been agitating the "trust" question. Especially has this been the case during our political campaigns, and not only has it been discussed through the press but has been a general subject for street-corner debates. In fact, it is fast becoming one of the most important questions, not only of politics, but of the people generally. The time has come for something to be done to stop the giant combinations of capital called trusts, the object of which is, in most cases, to gain power enough to control a certain article of manufacture or production, thereby giving to the corporation or trust absolute power to regulate the prices of articles manufactured by it or that it may wish to buy from the producer.

While it is absolutely necessary to form companies and unite a certain amount of capital for the purpose of conducting many manufacturing and business enterprises it certainly is neither necessary nor right for a few men who own or control millions of dollars to unite that vast amount of wealth in a trust for the purpose of forcing smaller and less wealthy companies out of business. And yet that is what they are doing right along. Take the Standard Oil Co. for example. They are immensely wealthy, own or control the principal oil wells in the United States, and regulate the price of coal oil. They manufacture a great many by-products from petroleum, gasoline, benzine, paraffine, vasoline, etc., and the revenue from these by-products more than pays for the production of themselves and the coal oil as well. Therefore the oil costs them nothing, consequently they can sell it at a very low price and still make money on it. Now suppose some smaller company puts out oil to compete with the product of the Standard Oil Co. and succeeds in establishing a market for their oil, what does the Standard Oil Co. do? Put the price of coal oil below what the other company can make it for and keep it there until they "freeze" out their opposition and then run the price up higher than it was before to make back what they lost while "freezing" out the other company.

And so it is all down along the line. There is the billion-dollar steel trust, controlling the iron and steel market; the food trust, which practically controls prepared foods; the beef trust for canned meats; bicycle trust, which is doing all in its power to gain control of all the leading bicycle factories; the plow trust; camera trust, rubber trust, and many other, each controlling or trying to control its particular product throughout the entire country.

Now the questions naturally arise do we want the trust monopoly? And if not, how can it be prevented or at least, regulated? It is almost impossible to make laws that will prevent the forming of trusts or even place any restriction on them. Then the best and perhaps the only way to accomplish any results is for the people to take the matter in hand and every one refuse to buy or use any article of trust manufacture or production whenever they can possibly do so, thereby giving support to the independent manufacturers. If every person in the United States had been doing this for the past ten years, we would have fewer trusts, more independent manufacturing establishments, better prices, and better times today. On the other hand, if they are allowed to continue as in the past few years, it will be but a very short time until a comparatively few men will own and control the entire manufacturing resources of the American continent.

HEALTH Means the ability to do a good day's work, without undue fatigue and to find life worth living. You cannot have indigestion or constipation without its upsetting the liver and polluting the blood. Such a condition may be best and quickest obtained by Herbine, the best liver regulator that the world has ever known. Mrs. D. W. Smith writes, April 3, 1902: "I use Herbine, and find it the best for constipation and regulating the liver I ever used." Price 50 cents. Sold by Graham & Wortham.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 30.—K. V. Millard is here on his way East after a stay of several weeks in South Dakota. Mr. Millard proposes to apply in the mines of the wise old King Solomon modern methods in mining that are used in the great Homestake mine at Deadwood.

For, as a result of two years travel in Abyssinia, Millard says he has concessions to the richest mining region in that country, which he feels confident was the Ophir, from whence came the riches which the queen of Sheba bestowed upon Solomon.

"The world of scholarship and discovery have for 3,000 years tried to locate the mines of King Solomon," said Mr. Millard, "and I expect soon to control the richest of them and have American crushers and American cyanide processes for extracting the gold from the richest deposits of ore to the world." Mr. Millard became acquainted with Emperor Menelik through meeting one of his sons in Cairo. Traveling up the Nile he entered Abyssinia and finally enjoyed the rare privilege of presentation to the greatest of barbarian monarchs of this century.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Charles W. Thorp, daughter of William F. Cody, and known as "Buffalo" Bill, died at a Spokane hospital this morning, unable to recover from the shock of an operation for appendicitis and complications. Dr. and Mrs. Thorp had only been residents of Spokane a couple of weeks, coming here after their honeymoon trip, following their wedding at Denver on New Year's day. The wedding of Mrs. Arta Cody Boal and Dr. Thorp was the culmination of a romance of several years standing and was kept secret for several days, owing to the opposition of Buffalo Bill, who did not fancy an army surgeon for a son-in-law. Though the wedding was performed at Denver New Year's day, the Denver papers did not discover the fact until five days later, when the couple had left for the northwest. Dr. Thorp first met his wife when she was the wife of H. H. Boal, a wealthy resident of Chicago. Boal's stepmother was a daughter of Dr. Ayers, of hair-restorer fame, and on her death inherited a fortune of $4,000,000. About three years ago Boal was thrown from a horse sustaining injuries which caused frequent fits of melancholy. During one of these fits he committed suicide.
