JUDGE PARKER'S TELEGRAM.

If Judge Parker's telegram to the St. Louis convention doesn't put him in the White House, it ought to. It gives him a characterization for honesty and candor that the words of his eulogists in their nominating and seconding speeches were powerless to paint. His countrymen know now, from his own act, that he is no humbug, no straddler, no mountebank, but a man of stern and rugged truth. "I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established," he wired, and shall act accordingly, if the action of the convention of today shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject, my views should be made known to the convention, and if it proves unsatisfactory to the convention, I request you to decline the nomination for me at once, so that another may be nominated before adjournment."

The convention was yet in session. The telegram might mean the withdrawal of the nomination, and its bestowal on another. To Alton B. Parker, it might mean loss of the coveted nomination of a great party for a great office. It might mean the loss of a term at the head of the American nation, the proudest place that is allotted on this earth to a mortal. But for all this, the New York jurist, by his bold act, refused to be a party to ruse or deception. Otherwise stated, his famous telegram is, "I would rather be honest with my party and honest with my countrymen, than be president." No political incident of the present or past time is so eloquent of the rugged virtue of the man who stood as its central and masterful figure.

Accused of silence, Alton B. Parker has spoken, and in a way to carry unquestioned conviction to the hearts of his countrymen. The two sentences of his telegram are a potential utterance in his behalf, not for what they say, but because of the time, the method, and the matchless motive for their saying.

THE MISSING MONEY PLANK.

The St. Louis convention very properly treated the money question as a dead issue, and made no reference to it in the platform. The country is on the gold standard, the gold standard is "firmly and irrevocably established" and will so remain as long as the senate remains overwhelmingly republican, even were the democratic party a unit against it, which it is not, and never was. Indeed, with gold flowing from the Alaskan and other mines into the channels of business in an unprecedented stream, there is not the occasion or need that there was for the use of silver as standard money. The democratic contention was never for a money of particular color, but for a greater volume of it. This volume has, as an effect of gold discoveries increased from about $24 to over $31 per capita, or about 30 percent and this, with the advantage that has inured to business, with legislation permanently establishing the gold standard, and with two verdicts of the people on the subject, has effectively killed the financial question as an issue. Nobody complains at the absence of a money plank from the St. Louis platform except leaders of the opposition who hoped the democrats would resurrect the ancient money corpse and use it as a club with which to beat out democratic brains. The St. Louis convention was wise, in more ways than one.

THE SMALLPOX CASES.

To the Westward—As Told by Philomath—Doing Well now.

Mention was made in Saturday's Times of the smallpox case in which Mr. Hawkins, of the vicinity of Philomath, figured. The story of Hawkins and Speedie is thus told by a Philomath correspondent: Mr. Hugh Hawkins, who has been working at the Benton County Lumber Company's mill, took sick July 1st after a hard days work in the sun and supposing his sickness to be due to being overheated, laid off until after the Fourth. On July 5th a physician in Corvallis was consulted and pronounced the case smallpox and the chief of police ordered him to return to the mill, where he was working. He did not want to infect the mill crew, so consulted another physician who said it was not smallpox. He then, in company with Peter Speedie of Philomath, went to Albany, where the authorities arrested them and put them both to sleep in the same bed, and then turned them loose on their promising to go home. They did not wish to carry the infection to the mill, so went into the woods west of Philomath and hired a man to get them a horse and supplies so they could go to some unfrequented place in the mountains and camp out until Mr. Hawkins was well. Mr. Speedie sent for a physician and was vaccinated and got ready to go with Mr. Hawkins. But the county authorities hearing of it, quarantined them at a cabin two miles west of Philomath where they are faring very well. The county is furnishing supplies for them to camp with and several ladies in Philomath have sent them cooked provisions.

There are quite a number of people in Albany, Corvallis and Philomath who were exposed while Mr. Hawkins was traveling round the country, but it is hoped that the disease was not far enough advanced to be communicated to others. Mr. Speedie who was forced to sleep with Mr. Hawkins at Albany being promptly vaccinated, it is hoped that the disease will not spread.

ATTEST:
VICTOR P. MOSES,
Clerk.
By J. F. Irwin, Deputy.

At the kommers of the Borussia student corps, which was held at Bonn, Emperor William, who was present referred in a speech to the empress of Germany, who witnessed the kommers from the gallery of the building. Alluding to the presence of his wife, the emperor said: "The chroniclers record that when our forefathers met in tournaments it was perfectly natural that a circle of illustrious ladies should witness their deeds, and with pride the victor received the wreath presented by a lovely hand. It was thus also at Wartburg, when they seized the harp and lyra and sang in competition. "Never before, so long as the history of German universities has been written, has any university received such an honor as is conferred to-day upon that of Bonn. In company with the beauty of Bonn and surrounded by ladies of princely rank, her majesty, the empress, the first princess of the land, has appeared at a students' kommers. This unprecedented honor has been accorded to the city of Bonn and to the Borussia student corps. I hope and expect that all the young members of the Borussia corps upon whom the eye of the empress has rested to-day have received an inspiration for the rest of their lives. I call for a strong salamander for her majesty; hurrah!"

SUES TILLOTSON.

A. L. McFadden Goes to the Courts for Damages—Ten Thousand Asked.

A. L. McFadden has gone to the courts for redress for the damages sustained in the false charge of forgery recently brought against him in the Multnomah county court by J. B. Tillotson. It will be remembered that in the latter case the jury was out only long enough to make up a verdict of acquittal, and that when the result of the first ballot was ascertained there was loud applause among the jurymen. In defending himself against Tillotson's charge, Mr. McFadden was at large expense, besides the damage sustained in a prosecution of which he was not guilty. He has brought suit for damages in the sum of $10,483. The facts relative to the case are thus told in a dispatch to the Salem Journal:

A suit for $10,438 for false arrest and imprisonment was filed in the state circuit court yesterday by A. L. McFadden and against J. B. Tillotson, a well known contractor. McFadden was at one time employed by Tillotson as bookkeeper and agent. In his complaint he set forth that he was arrested at Chitwood, Lincoln county, on January 13, 1904 at the instigation of Tillotson on a charge of unlawfully forging and indorsing a bank check. He was brought to Portland and confined in the city jail, and was released on $1,000 bail.

The plaintiff says that there was no probable cause for his arrest or for the preferment of a charge against him, and avers that it was done maliciously and to injure him. He was tried in the circuit court and was acquitted on May 2nd, 1904. McFadden besides asking $10,000 general damages, seeks to recover $483, which was the cost of his trial for attorney's fees and witnesses fees. J. O. Stearns, W. S. McFadden and Percy Kelly appear as his attorneys.
