

LOCAL LORE.

(Advertisements in this column charged for at the rate of 1 cent per line.)

—If it must be water straight, why not make it mountain water?

—A democratic governor in Massachusetts, Missouri gone republican and Benton gone dry. Next.

—Mr. Spaight has sold his farm two miles west of Bellfountain. The purchasers are two in number and are named Brittain.

—The Soap Creek line of the Independent telephone company is this week being extended to the Joe Smith home. The work will be completed in a week or ten days.

—Commencing Nov. 7 the rate between Corvallis and Portland via the C. & E. Albany and S. P. will be reduced to $2.60 same as westside rate. Tickets on sale by C. & E. agent at Corvallis and S. P. officials at Portland.

—His entire herd of more than ninety head of fine Durham cattle has been sold by Thomas K. Fawcett to a California man who will ship the purchase to his own state. The figure at which the sale was made has not been made public.

—Miss Ada Winn has arrived from Junction City, and will spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. A. T. Gruggitt in this city. She will take a special course in the Corvallis schools to fit herself for teaching.

—Mrs. Louis Hollenberg returned Thursday from a six weeks' visit with relatives in Iowa. She was met in Portland by her son, Roy Hollenberg, who also attended to matters of business for the firm of Hollenberg & Cady, while in the metropolises.

—A treat is promised the Corvallis people on the evening of November 19th. The occasion is an entertainment to be given in the armory by the Philharmonic ladies' quartet, of Chicago. It is to be under the auspices of the Athletic Association, which is a certain guarantee of a large attendance.

—Visitors in Corvallis from Tuesday until Thursday, were Mr. and Mrs. William Robinett of Halsey. In a fall Sunday evening, Mrs. Robinett sustained an injury to her arm, and the visit to Corvallis was made for the purpose of having the injured member examined by Dr. Cathey, under the X-ray. Mrs. Robinett is a sister of Mrs. Cathey.

—Orleans precinct in Linn county, located just across the river from Corvallis, went dry by a vote of 72 for prohibition and 45 against. The vote in Linn was on the entire county, and though the verdict was against prohibition by a majority of 96, the fact that Orleans went dry puts the law into effect in that precinct, and that prevents the establishment of a saloon on the opposite side of the river from Corvallis.

—Visitors in town this week have been Mr. and Mrs. Bohning, late of Iowa. They arrived at Shedd's station a few days ago for a visit with relatives, and came on to Corvallis Wednesday. Mr. Bohning is to take charge of the Silverton branch of the Fischer mills, and was in Corvallis taking a look through the mills here, with a view of getting an idea of the methods in vogue. Mr. and Mrs. Bohning will make their home at Silverton, having left the East because of the severe storms in summer, and the intense cold of the winter months.

—Tuesday afternoon has come to be an occasion for considerable interest out on the college campus. Four o'clock of that afternoon in each week now there occurs a regular parade and review of the cadet regiment, with its infantry, cavalry, artillery and other organizations, with about 400 young men in line. The various evolutions of companies and the precision of movement, together with the increased number of men makes a scene more or less imposing, and a number of townspeople and others assemble to witness each parade.

—A goose hunt that did not terminate very successfully for the hunters happened Monday afternoon. The parties were Artie Starr and William Wicks, who hired a rig at the brick stable and proceeded to a "goose bar" about 14 miles above town. The geese, however, had taken to another roosting place, and after waiting patiently for hours, the travelers started to hunt up their rig which had been left some distance away. For a time it looked as though they would be obliged to sleep out in the wilds, for after stumbling into clay banks and scrambling over underbrush for sometime, no horses could be discerned. At a late hour, however, the rig was found, and the hunters returned to Corvallis, having gained nothing by the trip save a little experience.

—New invoice of street hats just received at Mrs. J. Mason's.

—If any democrat had his eye on the postoffice, his hopes went glimmering when the election returns came in Tuesday night.

—Committees having in charge the arrangements for the Corvallis Poultry Association's exhibit to be held in the Opera House here Dec. 8th to 10th, are taking much interest in their work. A neat catalogue with full information is almost ready for distribution and other necessary printing is well under way. Parties interested should send to Robert Johnson, secretary, for entry blanks or whatever other information is desired. Those having the exhibition in charge are enthusiastic poultry men and they are carrying their enthusiasm into the arrangements for the exhibit. It is not to be a peanut affair by any means. When the show opens lots of people will be surprised at the merit and extent of the attractions.

NINETY-NINE NOW.

Uncle Cob Blair, Formerly of Corvallis—Is Hale and Hearty.

The Portland Journal has the following about a former Corvallis man:

"C. P. Blair of Pendleton, is 99 years of age, yet hale and hearty. Not only is he strong physically but mentally. He recalls occurrences of his boyhood days as clearly as a man of 50.

George H. Himes paid Mr. Blair a visit on a recent trip to Eastern Oregon, where he was engaged in gathering material for the Oregon Historical society. Mr. Himes gleaned valuable information from him.

The old man lives with his son, Thomas Blair, 74 years old. The father climbs the stairs five or six times daily, and walks with ease around the house.

The elder Blair came to Oregon in 1853. He was a member of the state legislature in 1864, and has always taken an active interest in public life. He is an ardent democrat and has voted the ticket every presidential election since 1824. In that year although not of age he cast his first ballot. No one knew that he was voting illegally, and he reckons that no one will have him arrested now."

At Opera House All Next Week.

The Georgia Harper company will open a week's engagement in Corvallis commencing Monday November 14th. The opening play "The Power of Love", is an emotional society drama in five acts.

A clipping, "The Dalles Chronical of November 1st., has a notice headed, "The Georgia Harper Company Has Won Dalles People By Their Conscientious Work," it covers nearly a column and has nothing but words of praise for Miss Harper and her company. In part, it says. Whatever may have been the opinion of the large audience concerning the character of the play "Power of Love" presented last night at the Vogt, one thing was agreed upon and that is that it affords Miss Harper a splendid opportunity to display her power as an actress and to prove that she is equal to the heaviest work required in acting roles. There is no disputing the fact, Georgia Harper is an actress of exceptional ability and one that can not fail of recognition be she on the stage in small towns or in the largest cities in the East.

THEIR WEDDING.

One of the Prettiest of the Season—
Wyatt—Junkins.

The beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wyatt was thrown open to about thirty guests, Wednesday, the occasion being one of the most pleasant of the present season. In the dining room, white and pink satin ribbon was carried in loops from plate to plate about the heavily laden table; a centerpiece in white and pink chrysanthemums held a bouquet of the same flowers. The scene was attractive. In the spacious parlor, potted plants filled the bay window, and in one corner was a canopy made of ropes of pink and white crepe paper, from which a large bow of white satin ribbon was suspended. A bank of ferns in the corner was thickly dotted with pink and white chrysanthemums.

Promptly at 10:30 with Mrs. Green at the organ, the wedding march was heard, and Miss Minnie Wyatt, the bride, and William Junkins, the groom, entered the parlor unattended, and stood under the lover's knot of white ribbon, where Rev. Green in the impressive ring ceremony, spoke the words that united them for life as husband and wife. Hearty congratulations followed, after which a time of social conversation was enjoyed. The dinner was served by Mrs. John Wyatt, assisted by Miss Cora Newton and Miss Frances Gellatly. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Janie Newton.

The bride was handsomely gowned in cream crepe de Paris, with trimmings of mousseline desoi, with drop yoke of all over lace. She carried white chrysanthemums tied with streamers of white satin ribbon. The traveling suit was tan broadcloth. Many pretty and useful presents were received.

The bride is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wyatt, and one of the class of girls of whom all Benton county is proud. She attended OAC for three years, and is universally respected for her modesty and worth. The groom graduated with the class of 1901, OAC, and has since been in the employ of the Pacific States Telephone company, in Portland, having now reached a good position in that company. He is a young man of excellent character, and has many friends in Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. Junkins departed on the 1:20 train for their future home at 258 East 34th street, where they will be at home to their friends after November 20th. At the Corvallis depot they were showered with rice and old shoes, a crowd of friends having gathered to witness their departure.

The wedding guests were, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wyatt, Milton, Ernest, Edward and Edna Wyatt, Rev. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hall, Mrs. H. J. Elliott, Perrydale; Mrs. A. J. Shipley and family, Monmouth; Misses Frances and Lillie Gellatly, Cora and Janie Newton, Estella Payne, Mrs. W. M. Kitson, A. A. Newton, Grear Vosberg, Edward Gellatly and Jacob Henkle.
