In the evening the pastor will preach upon "The Boyhood and Early Manhood of Jesus."—the first of a series of sermons upon the life of Christ. At the evening service four young men who confessed faith in Christ last Sunday will be baptized.

—The present management of the Opera house has manifested extreme precaution in booking attractions. Of this the public has had much evidence, and has become convinced that no low class attraction has been permitted the use of the house during the past year. Before booking the Georgia Harper Company for next week, the local management wired the manager at The Dalles, making inquiry on the point of the company's work. The reply was that the company is an excellent one, and that it was playing at The Dalles, a large town by the way, to the full capacity of the house, every night. This, together with most excellent press notices wherever the Harper company has appeared, gives strong assurance that next week's engagement will be well worthy of general patronage.

BOY OF THE REGIMENT.

With His Dying Breath He Asked Garibaldi For a Coffin.

When Enzo Ferretti entered actively into the Italian war of independence he was just seventeen. He left Parma secretly, deserting, as it were, his father, mother and family to fight for his hero, Garibaldi. He walked over the Apennines without a penny in his pocket and, arriving half dead at Genoa, concealed himself on one of the ships bound for Sicily. When at his destination he emerged and gained the nickname of the "boy of the regiment." From that time for some months he fought until the day for rest came. He was shot in the head and carried to the hospital in a dangerous condition. Everything possible was done for him, but it was evident that he was troubled, and at last it came out that he could not die happy because he had never seen his hero. "I have fought everywhere and sought always," he exclaimed, "but I have never succeeded in seeing him. How can I die never having caught a glimpse of him?"

Another preoccupation was that he feared he might be buried without a coffin. Morning, noon and night his cry was, "Let me have a coffin!" The very day he died, by a fortunate chance, Garibaldi arrived at the hospital. Having heard Ferretti's story, he stooped and spoke to him. The sick boy's expressive face lighted up and he exclaimed: "Now I can die happy. Oh, general, let me have a coffin!"

—Tennyson's "Married Brows." "I have a question to ask," announced the literary man. "You know Tennyson's line: "The charm of married brows. "Well, did he mean by that the crowning charm of married women, or did he refer to the charm of eyebrows that meet in the middle? In the 'Arabian Nights' there are many passages in which such eyebrows are spoken of as a great charm, indeed, but in the west our beauty doctors give explicit directions to prevent such growths. What did Tennyson mean, anyhow?"—Philadelphia Press.

—He Got It. Teacher—Willie, give me a sentence in which the term hook and eye is used. Willie—Me an' pa went fishin'. Pa told me 't bait me hook an' I did.—Baltimore American.

LATE RESIDENCE
U. S. Gov. Service. Hotel Corvallis.

WHICH WILL WIN?

THE BIG GAME OF FOOTBALL AT CORVALLIS NEXT SATURDAY.

Excursion Trains to run—Many Coming From Eugene—Independence and Monmouth Will Send Delegations Also—The Contest Will Decide the Oregon College Championship.

The Oregon championship will be won or lost in a game of football to be played on OAC field next Saturday. The game will also decide the question of which Oregon team is in line for the Northwest championship. The contest will be the annual game between the University of Oregon and OAC eleven. Two years ago the two teams struggled through two long halves, and at the end, the score stood 0 to 0. OAC was once on the University's two yard line, but there a moment's delay at a critical juncture caused the college men to fail by a few inches of yardage, and the ball went to the University men who booted it from behind their own goal post out into the field and averted what seemed to be a certain touchdown for OAC.

In the annual game last year, the ball swayed backwards and forwards in middle throughout the first half, and until near the close of the last, when the University, five minutes before the end of the play managed to get the ball over OAC's goal line for the only touchdown of the game, and a score of five to OAC's 0. Thus, for two years the two teams have been very evenly balanced in strength, and it is possible that the same is true of them this year. In any event, great football will be played on both sides and the outcome of the match will be watched with closest interest in all parts of the Northwest and the Coast.

The information is that people are coming from Portland in large numbers, and that every town along the westside will contribute a delegation. An excursion train is to run from Monmouth and Independence, taking excursionists home in the evening, and another from Eugene will bring several hundred people. All over Benton, farmers and farmer's sons have announced a purpose to see the game, and it is expected that the crowd will far surpass in numbers the great gathering that assembled to see the Utah giants play. The anticipated closeness of the game and the championship honors that hang on the issue are features that lend surpassing interest to the match. The game is called for 2:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, on OAC field.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street, ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.
