AS TO JURIES.

Passing events have their significance. Whenever law is violated and the offender gets into court, there is always a motive for somebody to deny the truth. The consequence is that jurors nearly always find themselves listening to some of those on the witness stand swearing to one state of facts, and others swearing to exactly opposite and irreconcilable statements. Thus, a federal grand jury indicted Senator Mitchell, and in a vehement speech the senator denied on the floor of the senate what a federal court declared to be truth. The government witnesses in the Williamson trial testified to certain conditions, and the defendants on the witness stand denied everything. Strikingly in point with these instances, and at the same time teaching a significant lesson to jurors is the case of John McGee of Corvallis. That person in a justice court swore positively that he did not buy whiskey of Jacob Blumberg, but subsequently when a perjury case appeared on his horizon, he confessed that what he had sworn to in court was not true, and that he had as a matter of fact, bought whiskey of Jacob Blumberg.

At the trial, McGee had a motive for desiring Blumberg not to be convicted, and because of that motive, the testimony he gave was false. All witnesses of the McGee kind, and all defendants have a motive for denying the actual facts, and that is why there is so much contradiction on the witness stand. Future jurors should remember the confession of McGee,—for it will guide them in making up a just and correct verdict. Remembering it, they can seek out what witness has motive for desiring the truth to be smothered, and therefrom easily determine which is telling the truth, and which, denying it.

THEIR WONDER.

By winning the greatest number of points in the all-round individual national championship games at the Lewis and Clark exposition yesterday Frank Friessel, of the University of Oregon, demonstrated that he is the best athlete in the Northwest. It is vividly remembered by those who attended the intercollegiate athletic meet at Salem in June how, when Friessel was unable to make a good showing on account of his crippled condition the Oregon Agricultural College students and their supporters from Corvallis, in their characteristic manner, insultingly derided Friessel and the U. O. track team, calling the star athlete of Oregon a "gold-brick," and "fizzle," and heaping other indignities upon him. Such despicable and contemptible acts, however, are not uncommon with O. A. C. and Corvallis people. They are no doubt from Missouri and wanted to be shown, and Friessel has now certainly shown them.—Eugene Guard.

Articles like the above about neighboring schools or towns never appear in the Times. Newspapers ought to cultivate inter-urban and inter-collegiate good feeling, rather than promote unkindness between them. But a nasty little speech about O. A. C. and Corvallisites requires reply. It is possible that some hoodlumish boys at the State meet called Friessel "Fizzle," but it was not all Corvallis nor all O. A. C. that did it. Besides they learned it of the Albany Democrat who first invented the phrase, which stuck because it seemed so beautifully appropriate. A great body of O. A. C. and Corvallis people decried then and regret now that some of their friends called Mr. Friessel, "Fizzle," though the term is one that they cannot, to save their lives, dissociate from "U. of O.'s Star athlete" as the Guard is pleased to call him.

As to Friessel's late performance that has shown the Guard that the gentleman above referred to as "Fizzle" is the greatest athlete on earth, it must be remarked that the Guard is "easy." Seventeen and a half seconds for the 120 yard hurdles is indeed a corking record and third place in the 100 in which the winner required to 2-5 seconds to make it, is indeed a splitter. Incidentally, there were four men in all in this great "National" meet and, in view of the records, the question arises what kind of men were they? A cripple, with three other cripples to go against could, under safe conditions, become intercollegiate champion of the world, just as did the gentleman the Albany Democrat was mean enough to dub Mr. "Fizzle."

Now as to U. of O. and the people of Eugene, and also the Guard, the Times commends them as high minded, good and gracious, and in this reference to their own and only Mr. Friessel bespeaks for him and them, a long and happy life.

HARVEST TIMES.

And Outing Season—Their Effect in Town—The "Moral Welfare" Movement.

Harvesting operations are in full blast, and it is the dull time in town now. A man hunted farmers on the street the other day and was able to find but one during the whole day. To look up and down Main street sometimes, it would seem that there is not likely to be another in town for a week. Besides this depressing influence there is the absence of those away on vacations. Corvallis has citizens of this kind scattered from the Fair to Frisco, and from the heart of the Cascades to the line of sand beach where the ocean roars perpetual. The one and only thing that deadens the lonely effect of the present Good Old Summer Time, is the Corvallis Social Athletic Club. For the moment, it is a perpetual fount of interest. It is more talked about than the Williamson trial, or John D. Rockefeller now called, the "greatest criminal of the age." It is, by reason of its unusual character, very much in the public eye, as it were. A big shipment of wet goods came to the place via the Westside Wednesday night, and that gave those interested something to tell their neighbors and friends about. Now and then, too, persons in pairs, or trios, or otherwise disappear off of Main street, walk down to the headquarters and there pass out of view, and that is another source of remark. Whether the act in such cases is merely social, or purely athletic, or a mixture of both or neither, is what observers speculate on. With "moral welfare" as a part of the purpose of the club, as announced in the articles of incorporation, these visits in day time and otherwise, it would seem, ought to be beyond criticism, because who knows? After the brethren get inside, perhaps they drop down on their marrow bones, raise their eyes to high heaven and pray earnestly for their own "moral welfare" and for that of their brother members.

The club authorities have prepared and hung on the building, a huge sign. It reads thus: "Corvallis Social and Athletic Club—Members admitted only—Trespassers will be handled according to law." Eventhgrammatical construction in the "Members admitted only," and what that expression actually and really means, has come in for discussion. Whether it means that "only members are admitted," or whether members are only admitted and not let out again until they have said their prayers and had a drink is one of the problems of the big rag sign. These and forty other things connected with the club are a well spring of perennial interest that serve to interest a dull town while the summer hours and harvest time are gliding swiftly away. Without it all the days would surely be very much elongated and the hours be very slow.

Besides, they say it looks like the good old times before the drouth to see a couple of the brethren marching down to the club, just as they used to do to Wald's, that they get there, the same old refreshment in the same old way, and that it is all a dream of oft-returning and perpetual bliss.

Och, Local Option! what's local option when there is a good, law-abiding club, like the Corvallis Social and Athletic Club!

FUNERAL OF EMMA SCHOEL.

Occurred Wednesday Forenoon—Interment in Pine Grove Cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Emma Schoel occurred from the family residence in Job's addition Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. A short service was held at the home and then the body was taken to Pine Grove church where an appropriate sermon was preached, and where in the cemetery adjoining, the burial occurred. At the home the neighbors and friends had gathered for the service, and also numbers of College girls, among whom were classmates of the deceased. The girls also served as honorary pallbearers.

After a drive of 13 miles to the church, at 1:30 p. m., memorial services were held. Following the service in the church the casket was borne by six young men and the procession, headed by eight young ladies bearing flowers, proceeded to the family lot in the cemetery nearby where the concluding services were held.

The many flowers at the home and also at the church spoke of the high esteem in which he deceased was held by all who knew her. She was one of a family of ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. C. Schoel. One brother, Edward Schoel, and two sisters, Mrs. Alvena Luther and Mrs. Florentine Voss, live in Albany, two brothers, Henry and Charles Schoel, reside at Halsey, and William, Louis and James Schoel reside at home.

Miss Emma Schoel was born in Crawford county, Iowa, December 4, 1885, and died July 31, 1905, her age being a little less than 20 years.

She died of heart trouble brought on by rheumatism. For a part of last year, she was a student at OAC.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Schoel and family wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their kind sympathy and help in their bereavement. The funeral services were conducted by C. T. Hurd, pastor of the United Evangelical church of Corvallis.

ANOTHER PIONEER.

Death of Aunt Hulda Brown—Funeral Yesterday Afternoon—Interment Today.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Hulda A. Brown, a pioneer of 1850, died at the home of S. P. Hunt, this city, at four o'clock Thursday afternoon. She was aged eighty one years. The funeral occurred from the Christian church, at three o'clock yesterday afternoon and the service was conducted by the pastor, F. E. Jones. The interment is to be at Buena Vista, where her husband and other relatives are buried.

The maiden name of the deceased was Hulda A. Zumwalt. She was born in Warren county, Missouri, July 25th, 1824, and emigrated to Oregon in 1850. She settled with her parents on a farm near what is Independence, Polk county, and a year later married Dr. Davis of the vicinity. They resided on a farm in the vicinity until 1886, when they moved to Buena Vista, where the husband died in 1878. In 1880, she became the wife of S. K. Brown, one of the earliest settlers in Benton, who died in 1883. A few years later, Mrs. Brown removed to Corvallis, where she has since resided.

Mrs. Brown was a life long and devoted member of the Christian church. She was almost universally known in late years as "Aunt Hulda" Brown, and was due to the fine qualities of character and disposition that attracted many friends to her side. About four months ago, she suffered a violent attack of paralysis, and has since been an invalid, confined most of the time to her room.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by Graham & Wortham.

THE JURY HUNG.

No Conviction in Williamson Case—Stood Six to Six.

Portland, Aug. 4.—At 11:15 this morning in the federal court, the jury in the Williamson case was dismissed, the foreman having announced that there was no hope of an agreement. Reports in circulation are to the effect that the jury stood six for conviction and six for acquittal.
