TO SELL BONDS.

And Call for Bids for Material—The New Mountain Water Survey.

At a meeting Monday night, the water board took action for the floating of $75,000 in water bonds, ordered the issuance of an advertisement for bids for material to be used in constructing the plant, heard the report of Engineer Miller with reference to the new survey, and discussed various phases of the situation. It is figured that 30 days will be required in getting bids for the bonds. It is desired that information as to the issue shall be placed before Eastern investors to the end that the best possible bonds may be secured. The interest rate has been fixed at four per cent. Some favored a slightly higher rate, but some sales of similar bonds as published in a late copy of a banking paper indicated the sale of many securities on a four per cent basis, and it seemed unwise to propose a higher rate under the circumstances. The date on which the bids will be opened has not been set.

The report of Engineer Miller on the new survey shows a working margin of about $5,000 between estimated cost of the works and the limit of money provided for in the bond issue. It will not be as large a margin as is desirable, considering the possibility of litigation, but the board has determined to take the chances, at least to the extent of selling bonds and calling for bids for material. The new survey taps Rock Creek 600 feet above the point where the Peak trail crosses the stream. It passes close to the Gellatly school house, goes through the Gellatly place, the Dentler place, follows the county road for nearly a mile, passes through Main street Philomath as far as the railroad depot and then follows the line of the C. & E. straight into Corvallis, save the diversion for the reservoir on Osburn hill. A large part of the pipe line will be 12 inch, and there is in all only 800 feet of steel pipe required via the new route, the former estimate requiring 13,000 feet. The present volume of water at the intake is 1,800,000 gallons enough for Corvallis when a city many times her present size. It is estimated that not more than two weeks will be required to get bids on material.

HER DEATH.

Paralysis was the Cause—Died in her Chair—Mrs. Garlinghouse.

The funeral of Mrs. William Garlinghouse, one of the old residents of Southern Benton, occurred at Monroe yesterday. Mrs. Garlinghouse died at the family home east of Monroe at one o'clock Sunday morning at a moment when she was sitting in a chair. Some time ago she sustained a paralytic stroke, and an hour before her death sustained a second one. The latter proved fatal and death was sudden. The maiden name of the deceased was Mary Jones, and at the time of her death her age was in the eighties. The funeral was from the late home, and the service was conducted by Rev. M. M. Waltz. The interment was in Monroe cemetery. William Garlinghouse, the husband has long owned a farm east of Monroe, and was at one time in the mercantile business in Monroe.

BURNED TO ASHES.

Corvallis Dwelling House—Billy Investigator Recalled.

The Emil Liebe dwelling house, better known to the public as the Berlin house on College Hill was burned to the ground in the early hours of Saturday morning. The blaze was discovered shortly before three o'clock by Prof. Crawford who lives a block to the Eastward. He happened to be astir at the time, and the light attracted his attention. The Denman house stood between him and the burning building, but from the latter a huge column of flame shown far above the Denman roof. He turned in the alarm with his independent phone and within scarcely a minute from the time he saw the blaze the fire bell was ringing. There is, however, no fire protection in the neighborhood, and the firemen could do nothing to arrest the flames. The two chemicals were run out to the scene for use in saving other buildings if necessary, but there was no wind, and accordingly but little danger of other fires. A large crowd of people congregated on the grounds and watched the structure through the process of being reduced to ashes. Most of those who remarked on the subject agreed that it would be a fortunate day for a large portion of Corvallis from the standpoint of fire protection alone when the new water system shall have been installed. It looked hard to stand by and see a building burn, with not a drop of water to turn on it, or on other property in the neighborhood that might have been lighted by the flying sparks. The occasion called to the minds of many the curious mission of the late little Billie Investigator.

As stated, the fire must have been started about 2:30 o'clock in the morning, an unseemly hour. The house was not occupied, which fact obviously reduces the danger of fire to the minimum. It all looks dangerously like incendiary, and yet, perish the thought, and let us all live in the belief that there is no one within our gates who would wantonly apply a midnight torch to the property of a fellow being. No one is able to say whether or not the property was insured. The building is estimated to have been worth $1000.

Our ladies, misses and children's cloaks, jackets and rain coats have arrived. Latest New York styles. Inspection solicited. J. M. Nolan & Son.

HIS FUNERAL.

Neighbors Came From Far and Wide to Bury Clyde Tharp—The Accident.

The funeral of the late Clyde Tharp, who was killed in a runaway accident Friday, occurred at Bellefontaine Saturday afternoon. The service was under the auspices of the Grange, of which the deceased was a member. The attendance included everybody in the neighborhood as well as relatives and friends of the family from Corvallis and elsewhere, and was very large. Addresses in harmony with the occasion were made by Rev. M. M. Waltz, Ed Belknap and Mrs. Ed Belknap. Mrs. Belknap was a former teacher of the dead young man, and her tribute to his life and memory was fervent and eloquent. The members of the family were prostrated by the tragedy. The mother fainted at the grave, and was not restored to consciousness until nine o'clock in the evening, six hours afterward.

Later accounts of the accident differ but little from that given in Saturday's Times. With others, Clyde Tharp was hauling gravel on the roads, and with his wagon heavily loaded was passing down the hill at the Fern Starr place. Marks on it seem to indicate that the brake block slipped to the side of the wheel instead of pressing it from the front. The wagon rushed on to the horses, and the driver was unable to hold them. After passing over a bench in the hill the outfit went out of the view of those who watched from above. A few moments later the horses, detached from the wagon and running at full speed, appeared below. At the bottom of the hill the wreck of the wagon, and the young man, frightfully injured, were found. The victim was still breathing, but lite lasted only a few minutes. He was lying on his back, and across his breast was one of the boards of his gravel bed, and on the board and the prostrate form of the man a heavy weight of gravel. Blood was gushing, the flow of which was only stanchied by death.

The young man bore a high reputation in the community. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Tharp, and was 25 years of age.

Mrs. J. Mason announces that she has twenty-seven and one-half dozen very fine new street hats, all the latest styles, that she will dispose of at one-half Portland prices—these are the finest hats ever brought to Corvallis. She has also a very fine selection of velvet suitable for dress trimmings.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by Graham & Wortham.
