—O. B. Connor departed Saturday for a visit at the Fair. During his absence Jay Cooper takes rural route number two, and Chancey Levee serves Cooper's route.

—Butter fat is 29 cents at the Kaupisch creamery. The price is so high that it attracts business from far and wide, and the establishment is again turning out a large butter product.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ingle have returned from a visit at the Fair. While absent, all the prunes were stolen from their orchard, just across the Willamette from Corvallis.

—H. N. Foster and family of Ashland have arrived to take up their residence in Corvallis. They occupy the Jacobs house, near the saw mill.

—The John Wells place west of the college has changed hands. I. H. Jackson has purchased it for $1,450 and is to occupy it with his family. His farm at Wren is to be rented and the livestock and implements to be sold.

—Rev. E. T. Simpson who was for many years Rector of All Saints church, Portland, has accepted a call to the Rectory of the Good Samaritan church of this city for the ensuing year. The family will occupy the rectory, taking possession on Friday the 15th. The Rev. Simpson is a most eloquent speaker and thoroughly devoted to his work. Services will be held every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. A most cordial invitation is extended to all.

—Next Monday is registration day at the college. There are surface indications that the number of students will be large, and that there will be congestion, as usual, in matriculating. In order to ease things up, Prof. Horner expects to be on hand for registering students next Friday and Saturday, and any who apply then can get their names on the rolls and matriculation cards in advance of the rush. It is suggested that it would simplify matters if students already on the ground, especially local students, would register at that time. The plan is a privilege, in fact, of especial value to those who take advantage of the earlier registration.

—The public schools opened Monday with a first day's enrollment of 246 as against 241 last year. An additional 100 pupils is expected within the next 10 days, and, within three weeks, it is figured that the attendance will approach 500. A list of the teachers is as follows: Grace Huff, primary, Josephine Fullerton, 1st high, 2nd low, Margaret Fowles, 2nd high, 3rd low, Maud Mattley 3rd, Florence Maxfield, 4th low, Etta Fuller 4th high, 5th low, Edna Finley, 5th high, Frances Belknap, 5th low, 6th low, Anna Lindgren, 6th low, 6th high, Bessie Young, 6th low, 7th high, Olive Mallow, 7th high, 8th low, Prof. C. E. Cummings, 8th high, 9th low, Prof. Holmes 9th high.

—Miss Loretta Sheasgreen left Sunday for a few days' visit in Portland.

—Miss Bertha Watrous of Olympia Washington, a junior at OAC, arrived Friday evening after spending a week at the Fair.

—Monday, Eugene voted $200,000 bonds for municipal ownership of lighting and water plants. The proposition carried by an overwhelming majority, although fought by present light and water companies.

IT NEVER STOPS

Save an Hour a Week—A Big Mountain Mill and Mine—A Thirty to Zero Score.

Ross Finley, who is assayer at a good salary at the Lucky Boy mine in the Blue River district, is home for a hurried vacation, having arrived Friday night. He is to return to work by the 14th. The Lucky Boy is one of the best known mines in Oregon. It is owned by a company of which ex-councilman Zimmerman of Portland is a leading stockholder, and who is active manager. Sixty men are employed, and the work never stops except for an hour or two at noon Saturdays. All people may not know it, perhaps, but it is not the practice of miners to observe Sunday. The toll goes on seven days in the week, 30 days in the month and all the days in the year except St. Patrick's and a few holidays. The Lucky Boy's men are divided up into shifts so that the movement of ore and the rattle of the 40 stamp mill never stops. The mill is run by electric power driven by the McKenzie River, eight miles distant from the mine. The Lucky Boy is a dividend payer, in which it is more lucky than most boys.

David Graham, ex-manager of the U. of O. football team and Mr. Friesell, also of U. of O. are employed at the mine. Mr. Graham is assistant amalgamator in the mill, and Mr. Friesell shovels ore in the mine. Being an O. A. C. boy Mr. Finley has discussions as to the relative merits of some things with the Eugene men, and incidentally has been informed by Mr. Friesell that Eugene is to do O. A. C. at football next November to the tune of 30 to 0.

BACK TO VISIT.

Scenes of Many Years Ago—IS Miner now in Southern Mountains

"Them was mighty fine days," said a tall well built man who entered the hotel last Monday. It was William Grant and he was alluding to the days when Doc. Bailey, Professor McElroy, Colonel Hogue, Bush Wilson and Joel Palmer lived and figured in the affairs of Benton county. He had gained two fortunes in Old Benton and lost each in a day, because his heart was too big; and now as a result he is living the life of a recluse in some deep mining gulch in the mountains of Douglas. There, at the age of seventy-three this hardy old man is seeking to retrieve his fortune from the gold fields which he has developed. He is alone—his own cook, his own master, his own toiler. When the deep wintry snows come he contents himself with his little log cabin and the mine not far away. At times, for six months and longer, he has been shut out from the world, not having seen a person or a newspaper in all that time. Hence as a matter of business and recreation he has taken a few days off to visit his friends in Corvallis, Newport and Portland; and then will return to his mountain home where he will remain alone until the spring thaws out the snows again.

Onr day last year a friend in passing near his cabin happened to call on the old man whom to his surprise he found in bed almost unable to speak. A timber had fallen on him, and before he fainted he managed to crawl into his cabin, where he lay more dead than alive. Simple remedies, such as could be found, were administered promptly; and when the patient could speak he said, "Cook a pan of that deer liver you brought." When this was done, he said, "Cook another pan full." Then Gaunt said, "To prove to you that I haven't eaten anything for six days, I am going to eat the whole thing, and you may cook something else for yourself." And the big mountaineer, like Joe Meek, easily accomplished the task. Life seemed to come back once more, and his chin and supple tongue began to play with Irish wit as they did in "the days of forty-nine." Gradually health has been restored until this septuagenarian looks as if he could yet be a fine center rush for a high class college team.

WARRIORS COME BACK.

Gridiron Veterans and Their Chieftain Arrive—Practicing has Begun.

Dr. A. C. Steckle arrived Saturday from Reno, Nevada, to take up the work of preparing the OAC football team for the gridiron battles of this fall. Dr. Steckle left Corvallis last January, and he has spent most of the time since in the study of his profession of medicine at the University of Michigan and at Chicago. While at Ann Arbor, he was much in the company with Vost, the famous Michigan coach, and incidentally studied a little football at the feet of the great sachein. He has brought back a few ideas that he claims will help some in the coming contests.

Along with Dr. Steckle, there arrived some of the old warriors. George Herbert Root, who is this year to be captain of the team, is among the bunch. Kenneth Cooper was also along, as was Rinehart, the bunch grass quarterback. Each of the three is able to take three square meals per day without flinching and apparently are prepared to go some in the gridiron campaign about to open. Floyd Williams, late a surveyor in the fastnesses of the Cascades, arrived Monday and hopes to make good in his old position of left half back. By the end of the current week it is expected a large part of the squad will be at work, early practice being necessary in order to prepare for the game with the University of California, at Berkeley, on the 21st or the 28th of October, the date being unsettled pending the adjustment of a game California is making with Pomona College in the southern part of the Golden state.

Manager Stimson has not yet completed the schedule of games. Three important dates, however, have been settled. The Thanksgiving game is with the University of Washington, and it is to be played at Seattle. The game with the University of Oregon, is dated for the 11th of November and it is to be played at Eugene. One of the strong teams of the season will be Willamette University which under the coaching of Chauncey Bishop will compete for Northwest championship with equal chances with most college teams for success. Some predict already that the Willamette team is to be the strongest in the state. It will contest with OAC in a game to be played on OAC field, Friday, November 24th.

LOG CABIN THERE.

When she Arrived in Portland—Crossed the Plains in Forty Nine.

A brief story of the life of Mrs. Garlinghouse, who died a few days ago near Monroe, is told as follows by a friend of the family:

Mary A. Jones was born in Bulliet county, Kentucky, May 23, 1847, and resided there until seven years of age, when the family removed to Peoria county, Illinois. She was married March 4, 1847 to William Coyle, and crossed the plains by ox team in 1847. The family wintered on Columbia slough, when there was only a log cabin where the city of Portland now stands. In January, 1852 they occupied the farm near Monroe, which was the place of the continuous residence of Mrs. Garlinghouse until her death.

Two children were born. A little girl of 14 months died July 8, 1855, and the other, Mrs. Fannie Starr, survives her mother and resides in the old home.

September 23, 1885, the deceased was married to William Garlinghouse, who survives. One brother resides at Spokane, Washington, and other brothers and sisters reside in the East.
