OUR MORAL WELFARE CLUB

If Mr. Broders, Mr. Woldt, Mr. Wiley and Mr. Wuestfelt are not permitted to conduct saloons in Corvallis, why should it be the privilege of Mike Kline and Hooligan to do so? Last November, 395 persons voted against saloons, and only 239 for saloons, yielding a majority of 156 declaring that Mr. Wiley, Mr. Broders, Mr. Woldt and Mr. Wuestfelt should go out of the liquor business in this town, and that no one should be permitted to sell, dispose of or give away intoxicants in Corvallis. Does a majority in civilized countries have the right to rule? If a majority is not to determine what shall be the policy of a community, who shall? Are Mike Kline and Hooligan privileged characters who may distribute intoxicants as they please, the expressed decree at the ballot box of 400 Corvallis voters to the contrary notwithstanding?

When 400 Corvallis persons by vote decreed no saloons in Corvallis, Mr. Broders, Mr. Woldt, Mr. Wiley and Mr. Wuestfelt hauled down their signs and went out of business. So far as known not one of them has sought to violate or break down the law. Each has set a laudable example of respect for the law and obedience to it. Not so Mike Kline. Not so Hooligan. Not so ex-President Geer. With a sham club whose assets are subterfuge, whose defense is false pretense and whose whole aspect is fraud, these persons, defiant of the ballot decree of an overwhelming majority of citizens, are disposing of liquor to all kinds of persons and in all kinds of quantities within the corporate limits of the city of Corvallis, where the privilege was taken away from other and better men.

There can be but one outcome to such a condition. Nothing but trouble can come to the men engaged in this unlawful enterprise. The law is impartial, and will deal with Hooligan exactly as it would have dealt with Mr. Broders. The courts are both honest and discerning, and will not reward sham, deceit, false pretence and hypocrisy by holding this one-horse saloon to be lawful, and the legitimate, licensed saloon that Mr. Broders ran to be unlawful. If this club is not a saloon, why, in the name of honesty, does it have a government license to sell liquor? That is the question that will distress the high priests and law givers of the Moral Improvement Club, and perhaps confound and embarrass some of its laity.

Don't forget the date of the

GIRLS THERE NOW.

At Rehabilitated Alpha Hall—The Place Opened to Boarders Yesterday.

The opening yesterday of Alpha Hall to young lady boarders was a feature of the beginning of another college year. During vacation the whole building has been thoroughly repaired and renovated, and the interior now presents an attractive home. Mrs. Horner has been made matron, and a great deal of effort has been expended by that lady to get the establishment properly organized and equipped in all its departments. An experience of several years in Cauthorn Hall has especially prepared Mrs. Horner for the work, and there is anticipation that the year will be one of profit and pleasure for young women who find a school home in the place. In all, there are 26 rooms, supplying accommodations for 40 girls. The cooking department is presided over by Rainey, late of the Y. M. C. A. cooking school of Portland.

Already the following young ladies have secured rooms: Misses Wilson, Canyonville, Oregon. Misses Mallett, Ontario, Ore. May Martin, McMinnville. Agnes von der Hellen, Wellen. Miss Fisher, Suver. Ida Lay, Enterprise. Miss Thompson, Vale. Minnie Diven, Vale. Louella VanCleve, Baker City. Bertha Watrous, Olympia, Was'ington. Maud Graves, Odell. Misses McAltee, Heppner. Mamie Starr, Bellfountain. Misses Davidson, Ione. Miss McNabb, Ione. Miss Mabe, Glendale. Inez Colvig, Canyonville. Irene Sproat, Hood River. Belle Bonney, Woodburn. Mabel Kennison, Baker City. Adah McDonald, Grants Pass. Alice Edwards, Bellfountain.

HINTS TO PATRONS.

Of R. F. D. Routes—Ways to add to the Happy lot of the Carrier.

The longest suffering thing on earth used to be the postmaster. Perhaps now it is the R. F. D. carrier. The postmaster doesn't have to lumber daily through roads muddy enough to mire a snipe. The carrier does. This and many other disadvantages make the lot of the carrier no happier, if even as happy as that of the plethoric postmasters, all of whom, so far as known manage regularly to get three square meals a day. It all makes interesting the following hints from an exchange on certain points, which are as stone bruises on the heel of the R. F. D. man: Do not erect your box so any one can get to it, try and find a place no one can drive to except a carrier; get a good high post, say as high as your buggy top and erect your box there, and if the carrier misses a letter in it, cuss him for you know he can do things you can not and always carries a ladder and other necessary tools for getting over bad places. Do not start a letter until you see the carrier coming, he has nothing to do but to wait. Do not buy stamps for only immediate use, or not buy at all, just scatter your change in the bottom of the box, he can fix it for you. Do not forget to ask him if you have any mail, if you do he will not leave it in your box. Expect him at the box the same time each day, he can make it. If he has no mail for you, make him tell you why, he knows but he just won't tell you why. If you order a bill from New York, look for it the next day, and if you do not get it, take the carrier to task about it for it is all his fault, make a good case if it takes a bottle of colic cure to get over it, and then go to the post master and give him a dose for he is no better than the carrier. When you go to town be sure and go to the postoffice and get all the mail that has accumulated for you since your last trip, be sure and carry your wagon for there will surely be a load of it. Make the carrier tell you the price of cotton, chickens, eggs and all other kinds of produce, he knows. Do not leave any fruit or anything of that kind in your box, the carrier will sure eat it and it would be a dead loss to you. Pile all your old plunder, wagon side planks, boxes, papers and old clothes by your mail box and hang your washing and bedding all around it, the carrier always drives a blind horse that cannot get scared at anything. Be sure and get as much around your box as possible.

SETTLED IN OREGON.

After Roaming the World Over—She Thought Webfoot Valleys Best of all.

Thirty years ago when the town hall was newly christened as Hamilton's Hall, there alighted from the Albany stage a man of medium size, who repaired to the Vincent House. He was of spare build and rather prepossessing in appearance. When his order was called by Mrs. Vincent, he said, "a little mush and milk, if you please ma'am, nothing more this evening." This was his diet for he ate so that he might stand out before the world as one of the greatest thinkers of the country. It was S. O. Fowler, the greatest phrenologist of two continents.

That night he lectured before an audience made up of people from all the surrounding towns. He explained phrenology as no man had ever done before; and then he exemplified the work by examining the heads of such as were willing to place themselves upon the altar of science. To some he said things that were hopeful, and to others he said, "Is your wife able to defend herself?" "Your neighbors chickens ought to roost high for self-protection when you are around." "Hardly suitable for a nunnery." As he ran along the line of examinations, knowing glances passed down the audience, when Jim Robinson said aloud, "he knows em"—so true were the life stories told by the stranger, who made America famous for his phrenological investigations.

The man that he told had a bad head was this summer coming down the last hill from Wallowa to Elgin, when he was told that a beautiful aged lady driving past in a buggy was the widow of S. O. Fowler, that she had come to make Oregon her home, and that she now superintends a fine farm in the vicinity of Elgin. She is said to be the greatest living phrenologist since the death of her husband, but she has retired from the business and prepared to spend her ripening age in the valley that charmed and won her long ago.

PUTTING IN NEW FRONT.

In old Fisher Brick—Vacant Rooms there to be Occupied.

The two vacant rooms in the old time Fisher brick are shortly to be occupied. Workmen were to have begun improvements to the place yesterday morning but were temporarily delayed on some account. Among the improvements will be a new and modern front to one of the rooms now, and probably a similar change for the other, later on. The two rooms are to be occupied by Moses Brothers who expect to be in the new place in about three weeks. An archway connecting the two rooms is one of the changes to be made.

Rumor has it that a brick is to go up next year on the site of the building now occupied by Moses Brothers, and that this fact had something to do with the change. The firm had the building leased for five years, with a contingent provision that the lease would hold good for the term except in case Mr. Porter, the owner of the property should desire to build a brick. It is reported that the firm received notice from Mr. Porter of the purpose to build a brick building on the site next year.
