—On Monday Sam McClain was placed on the surgeon's dissecting table and Drs. Newth and Pernot removed that monstrous wen from the back of his neck, also a small one from the top of his head. We understand that he gave the big wart to Boyd Kennedy as a keepsake.—Philomath Review.

—Oregon Journal: What is probably the largest peach ever grown is on exhibition at the Agricultural building at the Fair. It grew in the orchard of Max Pracht of Ashland, whose peaches were the finest shown at the Chicago Fair in 1863 which fact is proved by the medals in his possession. The prize peach at Chicago weighed 23 ounces, while the peach on display weighs 26. Ordinary peaches run 60 to 80 to a box but it takes only ten of the Jackson county wonders to fill a crate. Washington and California horticulturists are proud, not without reason, of their articles, but they doff their hats to Oregon in viewing the Jackson county show.

—Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Green are this week in attendance at sessions of the American Board of Missions in Seattle. They expect to return Tuesday.

—Sixteen hundred dollars bail for Secretary and Treasurer Kline and $1,200 for Vice President Hooligan, of the Moral Welfare Club, and more, they say, to come. Verily, these efforts to better the condition of heathen Corvallis along "moral welfare" lines comes high! The wonder is how long the vice president and the secretary and treasurer can afford it.

—Picking is nearly finished in the Kings Valley hop yards. The yield in one or two of them is as good as last year, but in most instances the crop is largely shortened. The Valley has five yards now. Among the new ones put out is one by Howard Bush. Lou Ritner has a yard of 10 or 12 acres, in which picking has been finished. The same is true of the Tom Allen yard of about the same size. The Townsend yard and the Bump yard finish the list of Kings Valley yards. Some of the fields are new this year.

TROUBLE FOR THEM.

Moral Welfare Club Officers—More Cases Brought—Hooligan was Jailed.

More trouble has befallen the officers of the Corvallis Social and Athletic Club. Hooligan had to spend the night in the Yamhill county jail Thursday night, and as this is written is stared in the face by more jail doors, complaints, bonds, bail and prosecuting attorneys. He is the vice president, and after that first trial in which he was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 or spend three months in jail, he left Corvallis and went to Independence. Corvallis authorities found him there and left him remain undisturbed on the promise that he would not attempt to go away. Thursday, he bought a ticket for Portland and boarded the train, only to be pounced upon by the sheriff of Yamhill, when the train pulled into McMinnville. There he was thrown into jail and so held until brought to Corvallis by Officer Wells yesterday. He is charged with violation of the local option law on three counts, and wanted bonds in the sum of $1200. The prospect was at the TIMES press hour that no bail would be available.

Vice-president Hooligan is not the only officer of the club that has trouble. Mike Kline is a defendant under three new indictments, all for disposing of liquor to members of the "Moral Welfare Club." His bond for each is $400, so that the aggregate of the bonds he has given, including the original case, is $1,600. His sureties are James Horning and P. A. Kline. The trial of the new cases is set for Monday, Sept. 25th.

Jack Milne, the barkeeper at the club, is a defendant on two charges of disposing of liquor. His bond for each offense is $400 and P. A. Kline and James Horning are the sureties. The titles to the three new cases are, State of Oregon vs. Milne, Kline and McMains; State vs. Kline and Milne; State vs. Kline and McMains.

The situation that begins to confront the officers of the club is in the nature of a breath from the inferno. The penalty in their first case was $300 or three months in jail. They must win on the appeal or pay the sum or go to jail. There is not a lawyer in town but believes and says they will lose. Meantime on the cases, the penalty is a sentence and imprisonment, because of second offense. Again the defendants must win in the courts, which it is almost certain they cannot. Most men would shudder a little to be in the mess in which the club officers find themselves. Is it not foolish of them members to encourage them in such a business?

—Mrs. Ruth Clark left Thursday for her Pendleton home after a brief visit with Corvallis relatives.

—The sermons tomorrow by Rev. John Reeves at the M. E. church, South will be the last to be delivered before a Corvallis audience by that able preacher for some time. Mr. Reeves has been transferred by a conference of his church to Dayton, Washington, and with his family, is to leave for that place next week to reside. The change is largely for reasons of health, and is very much to be regretted by the local congregation, who hold their late pastor in highest esteem. Rev. Reeves has been in Corvallis three years. In the new field he goes into a much larger church.

THINGS THEY DO.

That Others wot not of—Many Easterners Looking Through Benton.

Many Eastern people are being shown over Benton county now by local real estate agents. One firm had no less than 10 persons from east of the Rockies, looking over farms in Benton during last Wednesday. The expense of this firm in the past 30 days has been more than $200, nearly all of which was expended in showing prospective settlers through the county. Some people think all real estate agents ought to be hung. If this were done, who would perform the expensive and highly beneficial service to Benton that is now rendered by these men whose good money is liberally spent every day in convincing tourists from other parts that this is a good section in which to pitch a tent and cast a lot. The ride via the railroad train up the East or Westside from Portland to Corvallis does not convince a stranger that Benton is a great county or a desirable one in which to live. It takes more than that. It requires a ride into the farming districts where the lands and homes of the busy farmer are brought into view. "This is the poorest country I ever saw, and I am in a hurry to get out of it," exclaimed a man the other day whose knowledge of Benton county had been gained through a ride from Portland via the Westside to Corvallis. He intended to take the next train home, but a local real estate man induced him to take a ride among the farms to the west and south of town. "It's a fine country; I like it very much. I did not know you had such a beautiful country out here." That was his remark after his return to town, and before leaving he declared that when he can sell out in the East he will come back to Benton to buy a farm. That is some of the work the much abused real estate man is doing for Benton county. It is a work that no one else will do, and that must go undone unless our local agents keep it up. It is a reason why business men and others should not advise home-seekers to steer clear of the real estate agents. It were far better to send them to the local agents, for, by so doing, even if no sale be made, opportunities will be given the visitors to get a favorable impression of the country, which cannot be obtained if there is nobody to show them around.

The number of Easterners now touring the vicinity is larger than usual, and is likely to so continue until after the close of the Fair. Some are home seeking; others are not. All are shown through outlying farm homes by the real estate men.
