THE PORTLAND EXCURSION

Portland business men are touring the interior to arrive at a better understanding of the interests, conditions and influences that prevail among the men with whom they have dealt fifty odd years. The idea is to unite the business interests of the state into a harmonious whole in the hope that the concord may contrive for a better Oregon. It is well, for it gives Portland business men an opportunity to explain why it is that lying at the gateway of an immense productive empire, where it has no competitor in the race of destiny, Portland has not outgrown the other cities of the Northwest. Has the lack of push of Portland businessmen had anything to do with it? Whether true or untrue, it is the popular impression that Portlanders are less alert, less driving and less given to doing things than are the men in other cities, yea even less than in some of the interior towns of Oregon. When they go home, the excursionists can, if they try, prove this impression to be false. They can show why it is that Corvallis ships great quantities of hardwood to California to be manufactured into furniture, cars, agricultural implements, which Oregon, Portland and Corvallis buys back in the finished state, paying unnecessary toll to railroad, employing the labor of other regions and losing the increment for Oregon, all while Portland capital lies and waits for six per cent or some other unproductive form of investment.

Apropos of the tour, it might also be explained why it is that Iowa produces manyfold more hundred weight of livestock per acre than does the Willamette Valley though the latter, with its perennial grass, its salubrious climate is as manyfold more fitted for the purpose than is Iowa. Is it because the Willamette valley farmer gets but 60 per cent of the value of his product, while a 40 per cent differential for the Portland dealer stands between him and the Portland consumer?

And there are other things that the interior would be glad to have explained. Why, for instance, is it that the party of distinguished visitors is always taken on an excursion up the Columbia when a trip up the Westside and down the Eastside would show them broad acres of pasture land, fertile field, flower, valley, wood and mountain in a grand repose quite as refreshing and far more edifying than the dull-hued rocks of the Columbia? Why, again, have Portlanders devoted all effort to The Dalles and Celilo enterprises, when but a small fraction of that effort devoted to the Willamette locks at Oregon City, would increase by half a dollar a ton every bushel of wheat and in the same ratio the value of every other product grown in the Willamette valley?

Why, too, are there not enough cars to haul the products of the Willamette Valley to market? How can a state grow or a community flourish if there is no means of transportation at hand, whenever required to hurry things produced into the markets when the price is right, and a profit within reach? These are things that Portland business interests can well afford to consider, if their errand is comity and if their idea is that state-wide rather than local development is paramount.

The tour of the business men should be potential for comity, concord and bettered conditions, and it doubtless will be.

TO CHANGE TIME.

Of Evening Train—Goes Back to old Schedule Early Next Week.

The evening train from Albany over the C. & E. is soon to take on a schedule more agreeable to those who travel. Its ten o'clock arrival established in Fair time, put the service more or less out of joint and kept people traveling at a time when most of them preferred the quietude, sanctity and rest of their own virtuous couches. The arriving hour was 10 o'clock p. m., but during the Fair it was more times 10:30 or 11. Sometimes it was nearly midnight.

A new schedule will become effective the first of next week which will bring the train into Corvallis shortly after eight o'clock. The Southern Pacific announces that Sunday the Albany local will begin running on a new schedule. The time out of Portland will be 4:15, and the arriving time in Albany will be 7:25. Both hours are a few minutes later than the old schedule that was in effect before the Fair.

Information given out at the C. & E. headquarters is that early the coming week the Corvallis local will be adjusted to meet the new arrangement. The start for Corvallis will be about 7:30, or as soon after the arrival of the Albany local as possible, and the arrival at Corvallis will be a few minutes after eight o'clock. It is understood that the rest of the schedule between Corvallis and Albany will remain unchanged. The Albany local will run to Eugene as usual. The new arrangement will enable the traveler to leave Corvallis at six p. m. and run through to Eugene with but slight delay. It will also bring Portland evening papers into Corvallis early enough for everybody to read them on the day of their publication.

IMPROVEMENTS THERE.

Hotel Completed Tomorrow—Wilhelms in new Residence—At Monroe.

Monroe, November 17.—A. Wilhelm and family now occupy the new residence. The removal occurred yesterday. The new store will be ready for occupancy in a few days, and the removal is expected to begin the latter part of the coming week. Invoicing is now in progress preliminary to the work of removal. The transfer of the goods from one building to the other is expected to require several days.

Work on the Monroe hotel will be completed tomorrow and the place will be opened to the public Monday. A new story has been added, and the building is far more pretentious than formerly. Mr. McGillis is the new proprietor.

Fall seeding is all finished in this locality, and the acreage of fields already planted is larger than in years. John Martin, who was injured in an accident while enroute home from Monroe last Friday was able to be in town yesterday. The seat gave way, and he was precipitated from the wagon. Several stitches were required to close up a bad cut in the ear.

FOR DRY TOWN USE.

A Gane with Unusual Conveniences—Is Either cane or Club House.

Something unique in the way of a cane is one to which W. J. Wilbanks has fallen heir. It is a present from a Portland friend. It is both a cane and an arsenal. Where a silver band encircles it a few inches below the handle, there is a screw, which unscrewed, separates the cane in two sections. At the spot a little glass chamber holds an ounce or thereabouts, and when first received by Mr. Wilbanks it contained a first class article of brandy.

Lower down, there another silver band and another screw. Unscrewed, it lets out a long, slender glass bottle or bulb, as big as a finger in diameter and a foot long. It is capable of holding enough tarantular juice to knock out an ordinary man. The whole thing is a device which the owner, if he wanted to, could take to church and serve out two kinds of drinks to himself in the family pew and nobody be the wiser. Of course, Mr. Wilbanks will not use it for wet goods, but for liniment for rheumatics, and things like that.

Lame Back.

This ailment is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm two or three times a day and rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If this does not afford relief bind on a piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm, and quick relief is almost sure to follow. For sale by Graham & Wortham.

GIVE IT NEXT MAY.

Musical Festival—Practice to Begin Next Monday Night—Local Talent.

The Corvallis Improvement Club has made arrangements for a May festival to be given in the interest of the Association. The training of the chorus class will be in charge of Mr. Herse. All singers are requested to meet for practice in College chapel next Monday evening, at 7:15. "The Hymn of Praise" by Mendelssohn will be the practice for that evening.

The festival will be after the fashion of that formerly given by the Willamette Valley Musical Association, though of course on not so elaborate scale. All local singers have consented to take part, including a number of excellent voices that many Corvallisites have not heard. There is said to be more talent of the kind now in town than at any former time, and in consequence an occasion is expected to develop when the festival occurs next May. The practice will continue throughout the winter, beginning next Monday night.

THEIR EXCURSION.

Portland Business men in Corvallis—How They were Entertained.

Eighty-four Portland business men, comprising the Portland Business Mens excursion, now touring the valley, spent the noon hour in Corvallis today. Their special train, consisting of a diner, three Pullmans, a day coach and baggage car, arrived at 12:05. The cadet regiment and band, a host of Corvallis citizens and many ladies braved a rainstorm and was in waiting at College street when the train pulled in. Led by the band and cadet regiment, the visitors were marched through the business streets and to the City Hall where a brief but pithy address of welcome was delivered by B. W. Johnson, president of the Citizens League.

There was a brief response by Dr Andrew C. Smith, who referred to OAC as the "foremost educational institution of the Northwest" and after thanking the Corvallisites for "this splendid reception," introduced Willis S. Dunniway, as another speaker in behalf of the visiting businessmen. Mr. Dunniway said the excursion is the outgrowth of the 1905 Fair, that historic enterprise having suggested the need of closer relation between the metropolis of the state and the interior. He said all Portland and all Oregon wanted a 40 foot channel at the mouth of the Columbia, and said Portland was ready to extend aid in any and all movements of state development. He said the Corvallis excursion to the Fair was the banner excursion of all that came.

The visit was in all things extremely felicitous, and the good humor engendered ought to be an asset of value to the state hereafter. The excursion train left for the North shortly after one o'clock.

UNDER THE BIG CLOCK.

Happenings at the Benton Court House This Week—The Clerk Busy.

If things seem to be a bit dull about town now and then, it is seldom that the county clerk has any chance to complain of lack of things doing in his line of business. This has been a busy week at the clerk's office as shown by the following list of business happenings of the past few days:

B. F. Ireland Thursday made final proof before Clerk Moses, on his homestead in Willamette precinct. His witnesses were John Daniel and Charles Armstrong.

Mrs. Mary Taylor of Philomath, made final proof Thursday on her cash entry on 40 acres of land near Blodgett. Her witnesses were Peter Boesen and Henry Sheele, both of Blodgett.

Today Clerk Moses sent a requisition to the secretary of state for primary election supplies.

Thursday A. N. McKechnie filed an application to register title to land under the Torrens act. His attorney is L. L. Swann of Albany. This is the fifth case in Benton to be filed under the Torrens act.

Wednesday Clerk Moses certified to petitions containing 420 names, for equal suffrage amendments. Of the number 413 are found to have qualified, the rest having not signed registration books.
