—The Chemawa girls are to play basket ball at the Armory Friday night. They were defeated here last year, and are coming back to wipe out the score,—if they can. The OAC girls are at hard practice daily, in the hope of reeling off another defeat for their opponents. The outcome will be watched with considerable interest.

—The steamboat Walker, which has been hauling wheat from upper river points to the Corvallis Flouring mills, has completed her work and gone to Portland. The last load of grain came down from above Saturday. The branch warehouse at Peoria was emptied as was the Finley warehouse. The wheat at Boonville is to be hauled to Corvallis by team.

—The funeral of little five year old Laurence Hulbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hulbert, occurred at the Catholic church at 12 o'clock Sunday. The services were conducted by Father Burri, of McMinnville, and interment was in the Catholic cemetery. The funeral is said to have been the largest held for a child, in Corvallis in years, many friends coming from Monroe, Wells and other places.

—Miss Agnes Wilson, who was the first Corvallis candidate to enter the contest for the Oregonian's free trip to Yellowstone Park, leads in this, the eleventh district, with 5,777 votes. A picture of Miss Wilson appeared in Sunday's Oregonian. Those back of her candidacy feel confident of sending the young lady on the trip, although there will be much opposition from the other towns that with Corvallis, comprise the 11th district.

—The fields are said, under the comparatively dry weather conditions of the past month, to be in good shape for ploughing, and many teams are at work daily, getting the land ready for the seed. With the large acreage sown last fall, the prospect now is for a large volume of grain product the coming season if crop conditions continue favorable.

—Letters from R. M. Gilbert, sent by the Water Board to inspect Corvallis water pipe at the Tacoma works, relate that shipment of pipe, lately interrupted by act of the Board, has been resumed. A carload left Seattle Sunday, and is to be followed by another in a few days. In about a week the plant will turn out a carload a day. Mr. Gilbert inspects every piece of material used before and during the process of manufacture.

—Work is to begin on the Y. M. C. A. building at the college just as soon as material can be put on the ground. Local talent, contrary to first arrangement, is to do the building. After going over the bids, the building committee determined to throw out all bids, which was done. Then Charles Heckert was employed to do the building, and the committee will furnish the material.

—Salem Journal: The further fact leaks out that the combination of republicans and democrats who recently took charge of the Salem city government was formed secretly at the office of the anti-saloon league attorney, and all work was directed from there. Thus it would appear that there is but one man in the city council of any party who is not on record for the policy of making Salem a closed town. This is not stated as an argument for or against any one, but to show the progress we are making toward prohibition. There are those who look for the time when there will not be a saloon left in Salem.

—Albany Herald: Mr. Baker, residing near Heceta Head light-house, about ten days ago, made quite a find on the beach. At a point on the coast near his residence a current sets in to the shore and many strange finds are made on the beach. A few weeks ago Mr. Baker, while on the shore, saw a barrel in the surf rolling in with every wave to again to be carried out. Watching it for some time, he took advantage of a big wave that brought the barrel near the shore and he rushed into the sea, catching the barrel. For a half hour he struggled with his find, finally landing it high and dry. With the help of some friends the barrel was taken to the house, and an examination showed that it was branded "Clover Leaf Whiskey," bearing the copper plate of the bonding warehouse and the legend "52 gallons." The barrel was pretty well covered with barnacles, indicating that it had been in the water for a long time.

WAIT FOR AN APPETITE.

You Should Never Eat Simply For the Sake of Eating.
A prolific cause of chronic indigestion is eating from habit and simply because it is mealtime and others are eating. To eat when not hungry is to eat without relish, and food taken without relish is worse than wasted. Without relish the salivary glands do not act, the gastric fluids are not freely secreted, and the best of foods will not be digested. Many perfectly harmless dishes are severely condemned for no other reason than they were eaten perfunctorily and without relish and due insalivation.
Hunger makes the plainest foods enjoyable. It causes vigorous secretion and outpouring of all the digestive fluids, the sources of ptyalin, pepsin, trypsin, etc., without a plentiful supply of which no foods can be perfectly digested.
Wait for an appetite, if it takes a week. Fasting is one of the saving graces. It has a spiritual significance only through its great physical and physiologic importance. If breakfast is a bore or lunch a matter of indifference, cut one or both of them out. Wait for distance and unmistakable hunger and then eat slowly. If you do this you need ask few questions as to the propriety and digestibility of what you eat, and it need not be pre-digested.—Exchange.

THE PENGUIN.

It is Awkward on Land and a Gymnast in the Water.
A kind of penguin, the adelle, is a laugh provoking bird. Adelles are most inquisitive and at times are in such a hurry to follow up a clue that they will scramble along the ice on the belly, pushing with their legs and using their flippers alternately like the paddle of a canoe. They get over the ground at an astonishing rate, and it is hard work to overtake a penguin when it takes to this means of locomotion, especially when it doubles. In the water the penguin is perfectly at home, diving and steepchasing in grand style. It can jump clean out of the water and pop down on the ice exactly like some one coming up through a trapdoor on the stage and dropping on his feet. The penguins collect in enormous numbers and are sometimes seen marching about like a regiment of soldiers in Indian file, all acting in unison.
A much larger penguin, the emperor, weighs sixty or seventy pounds and stands well over three feet high. It possesses the most extraordinary muscular powers in its flippers. When presented with the end of the skee stick the emperor gives it such a smack that one's hands tingle. At the same time it utters an angry guttural exclamation.
Feeling His Stomach.
Landlady—You did not wear glasses when you first came here. Why do you wear them now? Boarder—I want to make the food look as large as possible!

"Rush the season!" cried the man to the waiter, desiring the salt and pepper in a hurry.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 4.—Three more bodies were recovered today at the scene of the wreck Valencia, the total now reaching 33. Today the United States steamer Perry and tug Lorne and Wyadca cruised near the scene of the wreck, the former tug picking up two bodies, the latter one a woman. All are badly decomposed, the features of being unrecognizable. The United States steamer Grant spent the day cruising among the islands of Barkley Sound and returned without seeing either bodies or wreckage.
Constable Conway, who is at Darling Creek, reported from there toward evening that some bodies and casks of liquor were seen in the surf, and he expected that further bodies will be found tomorrow. The bodies brought in by the tugs were taken from the shore near Darling Creek, where landings were made today. The tug Lorne left at midnight with 12 bodies, nine of them men, three women.
Descriptions are being sent by the Lorne. The searchers are only sure of the identification of Gus Erickson and Ingelhorde, and another body is thought to be that of Peter. One woman found has three rings, a diamond, a ruby and a moonstone. She also has a chain bracelet with padlock. Another body, a boy of about 17 years of age, has two wire rings on the little finger, both connected. Descriptions of all by teeth are being sent to the superintendent of provincial police here.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 4.—A News special from Cripple Creek says that bad air in the Bluebird mine caused the death of two men and the injury of three others today. Allen Webster and T. Oleson were overcome and were being hoisted to the top, when Oleson tumbled out of the cage and was dashed to death. Webster expired from asphyxiation before the cage reached the surface.
Fred Benjamin was waiting to be hauled to the opening at the top of the shaft, when in some unaccountable way he became wedged between the shaft wall and the cage and was badly crushed about the body. He may not recover. Fred Harvey and W. P. Guseman were unconscious for a time from breathing the poisonous carbonic acid gas which permeated the air in the mine, but recovered and are out of danger.

All the men were just going on duty and had been warned by the foreman to be careful on account of the air, which had been discovered to be bad. Both the deceased were single.

Loyal, Wis. Feb. 3. Harry Ricdell and James Cook, prominent citizens of Jackson county, Wisconsin, had a narrow escape from being devoured by wolves January 29. They had been out all day hunting with a number of other men, and, becoming separated at dark from the main party, lost their way. They built a fire to protect themselves. No sooner had they done so than the dismal sound of wolves was heard in the distance. Placing their backs to a large rock, the men prepared to fight for their lives. In ten minutes the forest seemed alive with wolves, and the two men began a fierce battle. After they had exhausted their ammunition they fought the animals with firebrands. The remainder of the party had gone in search of the missing men, and appeared on the scene just in time to save them. Fifteen of the wolves were killed by the larger party before they dispersed.
