CORVALLIS, OREGON,
FRIDAY EVENING MAY 11, 1906.

YES, FOOLISH.

As long as a farmer has a good experienced man, he will not, while he continues to need a man, discharge him and hire an inexperienced hand of uncertain capacity. That would be a foolish thing to do. Victor Moses is perhaps the best county clerk in the state of Oregon. Telt Burnett is probably the best sheriff in the state. There are simply none better than these two most excellent and most faithful officials. Each knows the intricacies of his office, each discharges every duty without error and at the least possible cost to the county. In all frankness, how foolish a thing it would be to set either aside for inexperienced men. What farmer ever discharged an entirely satisfactory and experienced hand in order to make a place for a green one. Just as a simple, straight business proposition, would it not be a mighty foolish thing to turn down Victor Moses or Telt Burnett.

ROOSEVELT AND DEMOCRATS.

The old threadbare argument that the election of a democrat to office would discredit the administration at Washington, was the key note of the republican meeting in Corvallis Tuesday night. It was the one and only thing to mar what was otherwise a genteel and laudable assemblage. But when it is by speaker after speaker, hurled into the faces of an audience that a democrat would do, that his election to office would be a calamity, that he is a scourge and blight on society, the gentility of the occasion degenerates and its symmetry and social character is marred.

The good repute of the Roosevelt administration no more depends on who is justice of the peace in Florida, or who is elected to a state office in Oregon than it depends on the equally remote question of whether the posthole in which the north pole was originally set was punched or bored. His administration speaks for itself, and the question of whether or not it is a republican or a democrat elected to office in Oregon has no more to do with it than the question of whether or not the successful candidate be a Methodist or a Baptist. The truth is it may be depended on that Theodore Roosevelt does not approve of the ship subsidy bill, and it is notorious that Senator Fulton a republican, voted for that bill and that Senator Gearin, a democrat, voted against it. The Portland Oregonian is hostile to the subsidy bill, and in that respect is out of tune with Fulton and in complete accord with Senator Gearin. In fact, it is an even chance that any democrat who comes out of the shuffle elected is as likely to be as good or a better supporter of Roosevelt's policies as his opponent. These are days of men and principles and the brand of the man elected to office is the last thing the people are looking for.

However, the insistence that the election of a democrat would discredit the Roosevelt administration, will, silly as it is, go on through this campaign. It is used as sop or syrup to catch republican voters and is in fact an insult to their intelligence. It was used three years ago, and again two years ago in the interest of Binger Hermann. He had been dismissed by the administration from office; but politicians shouted themselves hoarse declaring that to elect anybody else than Mr. Hermann would discredit Roosevelt.

Well, they elected him. Today he is under indictment, a congressman from Oregon wearing the brand that the criminals wear, slipping around the corridors and dodging up to the clerk's desk to draw his salary,—doing this, only this, and nothing more. And, they said, when he was a candidate, that to elect a democrat, rather than him, would discredit Roosevelt and the republican administration.

THE INSTITUTE.

A Successful Meeting—The New Officers.

The W. C. T. U. institute held in the Presbyterian church Tuesday and Wednesday was most profitable. Tuesday afternoon an earnest address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. B. W. Wilson, president of the Corvallis W. C. T. U., after which she introduced the state president, Mrs. L. F. Additon. Mrs. Additon spoke briefly on the work of the institutes, their educational value and good results.

An interesting paper on "Non-Alcoholic Medication" was read by Miss Campbell. Mrs. Jessie Flint made a forceful plea for vegetarian diet and for pure bodies as a foundation stone of temperance reform. Mrs. N. A. Henkle, president of the Philomath W. C. T. U., read a comprehensive paper on the W. C. T. U. movement, giving valuable statistics, showing that the W. C. T. U. has been the pioneer in blazing the way for many great movements.

In the evening, Mrs. Additon gave a lecture touching the economic side of the temperance reform, and the value of the local option law. She spoke warmly of the forward step taken by Benton county, and rejoiced in the marked improvement of the city.

Wednesday's session was opened by Rev. Green. He gave an uplifting Bible talk on "Tested Promises."

A paper on "The Great Hindrance to Mission work" was read by Mrs. McGinnis, and was full of important facts.

Mrs. Additon gave an illustrated department talk, showing methods and plans of work.

Mrs. Swann spoke on the effective use of literature and urged the use of it.

The afternoon session was opened by Mrs. Herbert, followed by a review of the work of the church in abolishing the liquor traffic by Rev. Bush.

Mrs. Emily Lumm read a paper on "Health" which deserves wide circulation.

Mrs. Nash of Portland, read a pleasing paper on civic improvement. A letter was read from the president of the San Francisco W. C. T. U. outlining the establishment of a permanent meeting place for all necessary relief work. Mrs. Crees will have charge of the work of packing and sending a box of supplies to the relief bureau. A county organization was perfected with the following officers:

- President, Miss Campbell.
- Vice-president at large, Mrs. Herbert.
- Recording secretary, Mrs. Bennett of Philomath.
- Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lumm.
- Treasurer, Mrs. N. A. Henkle, of Philomath.

J. C. TAYLOR.

His Death Occurred Thursday Morning.

After an illness of four years, James C. Taylor passed away at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, May 10, 1906.

Deceased had been a resident of Corvallis since 1870. He had come in contact with all classes of Benton county residents and it would be superfluous to undertake to make a statement as to the esteem in which he was held by his fellow-citizens. Still there are those in Corvallis and vicinity who heartily wish to commend the generosity of Mr. Taylor under the most un-auspicious circumstances. Jim Taylor could always be depended upon to do his duty, as he saw it, and his view in such matters was not narrowly circumscribed.

The funeral occurs at the Taylor home tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock.

James Taylor was born in Freesport, La., December 16, 1850. In 1870, he came to Corvallis with his parents and other members of the family. With his father, he at once engaged in butchering and applied himself to the business until three years ago when he was compelled to abandon it on account of failing health. Mr. Taylor had provided against the uncertainties of life so far as possible. He was a member of the local lodge of K. O. T. M. in which he carried insurance to the amount of $2,000. He was also a member of the A. O. U. W., in which he carried a policy of $2,000.

Mr. Taylor's surviving near relatives are, his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Alex Rennie, and a son, Byron; a brother, Dr. E. H. Taylor, and a sister, Mrs. E. H. Ledgerwood.

HERBOLD THE MAN.

Is to Coach State College Football Team This Fall—Contract Signed.

Fred Herbold, who successfully developed the same team four years ago, is to coach the O. A. C. football team this fall. His selection was made by Graduate Manager Bert Pilkington and the engagement was sanctioned by the athletic committee of the faculty. The contract was signed Wednesday morning.

Many well known football men from Eastern institutions were applicants for the position, notably men from Yost's famous team at Michigan, and men from Pennsylvania, Harvard, Dartmouth and other colleges. No man knows better the capacity of men or has a better faculty for getting everything out of his players. He took a raw team four years ago, after football had been out of vogue at the college for two seasons, and led his men through a brilliant season, making the best showing that has been made by an O. A. C. team against the state university since 1897. This fall's team at O. A. C. will have to be made up for the most part of new men, as nearly all the old veterans are gone. There are nearly 500 young men, many of them husky lads, to select from, and as Herbold can break in colts with as great celerity as any coach living, it is probable that the coming season will not be disappointing.

THE W. C. T. U.

It Makes a Call for Additional Help for San Francisco.

Each day which goes by emphasizes the necessity of additional aid to the distressed of San Francisco. Few persons in the vicinity of Corvallis realize the extent of destruction by earthquake and fire which came to the California metropolis, and it is difficult to conceive of the vast necessities of such a city as San Francisco. The justifiable expectation of aid for the city is not nearly ended, and for a considerable time to come there, will be a call upon the generosity of the people of the United States, if indeed, we are not compelled to call upon the bounty of other nations.

Among the organizations which realize the true conditions is the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The Union has established a supply depot in the city and it is expected that the movement will be seconded by all the subordinate organizations of the country. The Corvallis Union has fallen into line and an effort is making to do its part in a meritorious movement. Clothing is one of the things which the local Union will make an effort to send to the stricken city. Corvallis people generally have already contributed to the relief of San Francisco, but there is a call for further sacrifices. Let each household get together the things which may be of use to our distressed neighbors; phone to Mrs. Crees and the supplies will be called for. Articles of clothing should be in repair. A shipment is to be made in a few days.
