This summons is published in the Corvallis Times newspaper once a week for six successive and consecutive weeks, beginning with the issue July 29, 1906 and ending with the issue of August 31, 1906, in pursuance of the directions contained in an order made by the Hon. the government with troops and money and repudiate further loans.

While the St. Petersburg newspapers have copies of the address it is not probable that they will print it today, as police are keeping close watch over them, with orders to prohibit the issuing of any edition not approved by the censor. Further efforts are being made to suppress it in the outside cities and to nullify the fears of the populace.

Efforts are being made to form a provisional government, which will be an enlarged council of ministers, composed of the leading men of the empire and conservative members of the deposed lower house of parliament.

When the people come to the full realization of the act of the czar in dissolving their douma, they will break forth in a revolution, which will mean a gigantic upheaval of the country. Slow to comprehend the full force of the blow dealt them, it has not dawned upon the people at large as yet.

The news that a ukase calling for a general election, to be held the first week in December, when a new douma will be chosen, and the report that by dissolving parliament the czar did not intend to take that body away from the people, is regarded as a strong counter move on the part of the government to assist in holding the people in check.

Reports from Odessa show the situation there to be very dark and the Jews in a state of panic. The anti-Jewish programme has already started and it is stated that great destruction of property and a massacre is inevitable.

From the killing of a Cossack the trouble arose and six Jews have already been killed, three of them while defending their property. The houses and shops are being looted in the Jewish quarter by the Cossacks and General Kaibara predicts that the streets of Odessa will run knee-deep in blood. He stated to the Jews, when they came to him for protection, that he could vouch for the good conduct of his own troops, but could do nothing regarding the assaults of the Cossacks and Christian civilians.

News of riots in the provinces of Orel and Vernezh has been received here. The peasants are being slaughtered by the hundreds by the soldiers and a total of 500 killed is already reported. The soldiers are shooting down the peasants who are bravely resisting while armed with the only weapons they have, scythes and pitchforks. The reports of the deeds committed by the soldiers are full of horror, being of relentless and bloodthirsty cruelty, of attacks upon unarmed women and children and the slaughter of defenseless old men and boys.

The following is the text of the douma to the Russian people:

"To the People from Their Popular Representatives—Citizens of all Russia: Parliament has been dissolved by ukase of July 21. You elected us as your representatives and instructed us to fight for our country and freedom. In execution of your instructions and our duty, we draw up laws in order to insure freedom to the people. We demanded the removal of irresponsible ministers, who were infringing the laws with impunity and oppressing freedom.

"First of all, however, we wanted to bring out a law respecting the distribution of land to working peasants and involving the assignment, to this end, of crown appanages, monasteries and lands belonging to the clergy and compulsory expropriation of private estates. The government held such a law to be inadmissible, and upon parliament once more urgently putting forward its resolution regarding compulsory expropriation, parliament was dissolved.

"The government promises to convene a new parliament seven months hence. Russia must remain without popular representation for seven whole months, at a time when the people are standing on the brink of ruin and industry and commerce are undermined, when the whole country is seething with unrest and when the ministry has definitely shown its incapacity to do justice to popular needs. For seven months the government will act arbitrarily and will fight against the popular movement in order to obtain a pliable, subservient parliament. Should it succeed, however, in completely suppressing the popular movement the government will convoke no parliament at all.
"Citizens, stand up for your trampled rights, for popular representation and for an imperial parliament. Russia must not remain day without popular representation. You possess the means of acquiring it. The government has, without the assent of the popular representatives, no right to collect taxes from the people nor to summon the people to military service. Therefore, you are now the government. The dissolved parliament was justified in giving neither money nor soldiers. Should the government, however, contract loans, in order to procure funds, such funds will be invalid without the consent of the popular representatives. The Russian people will never acknowledge them and will not be called upon to pay them.

"Accordingly, until a popular representative parliament is summoned, do not give a kopeck to the throne or a soldier to the army. Be steadfast in your refusal. No power can resist the united, inflexible will of the people.

"Citizens, in this obligatory and unavoidable struggle your representatives will be with you."

Salem, Or., July 25.—Capital Journal: An accident occurred at Macleay yesterday afternoon, resulting in the death of Mrs. Willard English, and the premature birth of her child, that has, so far as known, no parallel in history. Mrs. English was horned by a cow, her unborn baby torn from her womb, she living half an hour, and was able to walk into the house, a distance of 60 feet. The baby did not receive a scratch, and will probably live.

Mrs. English was standing at the front gate of her home, looking at a 2-year-old heifer, when the animal suddenly became enraged at her, gave her horns a quick and powerful toss. Mrs. English was hit in the lower abdomen and was entirely disembowled. The womb was ruptured, and she fell to the ground. The husband was near by and at once drove the animal away, and assisted his wife to her feet. She walked into the house unassisted, and Mr. English picked the baby up and carried it into the house.

Mr. English immediately telephoned to Dr. W. B. Morse, of this city, and the physician made the trip to Macleay in 30 minutes. When he arrived at the English home, the injured woman was still living, but past medical aid, and died a few minutes after the arrival of Dr. Morse. It is the opinion of the physician that had a surgeon been on the spot at the time of the accident, Mrs. English's life might have been saved. Still he thought the woman practically bled to death within ten minutes after the occurrence happened.

Dr. Morse believes that the baby has as much chance for its life as any baby this hot weather, that has to be nourished exclusively on artificial food.

The child is of the usual size, and would have been born within a week.

Mrs. English was the wife of a young farmer residing near Macleay and was the mother of two other small children. Her maiden name was Olive Geer, but she was not related to the pioneer family of the name residing in the Waldo Hills. She was 23 years of age.

Dr. Morse has been requested to give the medical features of the case, which, he says, are unprecedented in the recorded history of obstetrics, and he will, no doubt, be besieged to write accounts for various medical journals.

He regards the accident as resulting almost miraculously, as had the horn of the heifer gone a fraction of an inch deeper, the life of the child would have been the forfeit.
