CORVALLIS, OREGON,
FRIDAY EVENING AUG. 3, 1906.

CUMMINS.

In the triumph of Governor Cummins for nomination to a third term in Iowa, there is a significant illustration of the trend of the time. He is of the new type of statesman. He stands for tariff revision and against rail road and trust aggrandizement. Opposed to him were Mr. Roosevelt's secretary of the treasury, and all the backing that the stand pat interests could muster. The struggle was as fierce as it was decisive, and the reform governor is an easy and overwhelming winner.

The voter of Iowa has been cajoled and duped with twaddle about "protection" and its blessings until he has heard finally that as a result of the system the Englishman, the German, the Frenchman and other foreigner buys American products a long ways cheaper than he does, and that the great big advance he is compelled to pay is what enriches the "protected" trust baron and keeps him poor. He has heard that under this system Russia bought Carnegie armor plate at $249 a ton when our government was paying $500 to $700 per ton for exactly the same article, the facts of which were actually reported to congress by a congressional committee, which added that the outside cost of armor plate was $200 per ton. Having heard these and similar transactions, most of the Iowa republicans stood in with their tariff-revision governor, and it is a mighty good sign.

After a long and vain search with microscope and fine-tooth comb in Russell Sage's will for a trace of philanthropy, it has been concluded that if he ever did a stunt of that sort he didn't let the left hand know what the right hand was doing.

In Self Defense.

Major Hamm, editor and manager of the Constitutional, Eminence, Ky., when he was fiercely attacked, four years ago, by Piles, bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, of which he says: "It cured me in ten days and no trouble since." Quickest healer of burns, Sores, Cuts & Wounds. 25c at Allen & Woodward's drug store.

KICKED AT A DOG.

And hit a Wall—The Luckless Dream of a Corvallisite.

Jesse Spencer had a strange dream, the other night. He dreamed that he was offended at a canine. It was a lowborn, mangy cur of a dog with no respect for God or man, and apparently no desire but to bark and growl at everybody and everything within its particular horizon. At last its conduct became unbearable to Jesse and he determined to kick the un-civil cur. He summoned all his strength and when, according to his judgment, the canine was at exactly the proper distance and in a suitable attitude to be well and scientifically kicked, Jesse let drive. But it wasn't the ugly cur that uttered a yell of pain. It was Jesse. In his sleep, and in his wrath, his toe struck, not the dog, but the bed room wall, and that too, with an impact that made the windows rattle. To heighten the trouble brought on by this nasty but imaginary sooner of a dog, Jesse's toe is badly affected with ingrowing nail, and of course, that spot hit the wall the hardest.

The toe is gently handled now, and as a precaution against future accidents Jesse ties a pair of brass knuckles on it at night time, and sees to it that his wife is safely out of the room in case of a recurrence of the dream of the ornery dog and his effort to kick it.

BIDS WANTED.

Notice is hereby given that the county court of Benton county, will receive bids for painting the roof and lower of the court house with one good coat of "Princess Metallic Fire Proof Paint" mixed with pure Linseed Oil. Also, for painting the clock on the tower, all according to specifications now on file with the county clerk. Painter to furnish all paints, tools, and necessary staging and ropes that may be required for that purpose. All work to be done in a first-class, workman-like manner to be approved by W. E. Paul. Bids to be opened at the next regular term of the county court, September 5, 1906, at 2 P. M.

The court reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
T. T. VINCENT,
County Clerk.

PREFER GARDEN FARM.

For County Poor—County Court will Sell or Rent New County Farm.

At the April term of circuit court for Benton county, the grand jury made a report recommending the purchase by the county of a farm near Corvallis, to be used as the county poor farm. The recommendation was unanimously made by the jury, and in accordance therewith, the county court purchased 160 acres formerly known as the Wells & Mackay hop yard, 2 1/2 miles from Corvallis. The price paid was $35 per acre. At this week's meeting, the commissioners court authorized the county judge to receive orders for the sale or rent of the farm at his discretion and to make investigation with a view to purchasing a smaller tract.

The order of the court, is as follows: "On July 11, 1906, the present county court went out to said farm and made personal examination of the land and its buildings, and among other things to consider its adaptability to the purpose for which it was intended when purchased. "Now, having fully considered this matter, this court does not consider it advisable or for the best interest of Benton county to expend of the county funds an additional amount necessary to erect suitable buildings and make such other improvements as would be necessary to prepare the place for a comfortable home for our county charges. The court further considers that a small tract of good land suitable for gardening as better adapted to this purpose. Therefore, it is ordered that the county judge, and he is hereby authorized to receive offers to purchase or to rent said farm and to report the same to this court at its next regular term."

THINGS THEY SAY.

About Ordinances That are In-Operative—A Woman's Opinion.

The TIMES has been commended by a number of people for an article in Tuesday's issue relative to certain city ordinances to which no attention is paid. Among others who have mentioned the matter is a lady who called the office up by phone and after expressing appreciation of the article said: "We have been thinking all along of building a home in this city, and at one time had about determined to do so; but with cess pools maintained on many blocks where there are sewers and water and with other nuisances being maintained in complete defiance of city laws, we have simply delayed building to see whether city affairs will take a turn for the better." There is no doubt in the world but the growth and progress of the town is in a measure retarded by the very conditions to which this Corvallis woman alludes. Among the ordinances that are very largely inoperative are: (these) Requiring grass to be cut in the streets; prohibiting gates from swinging over sidewalks; prohibiting use of barbed wire within the city limits; prohibiting cess pools and requiring water closets to be connected with sewers where laterals have been built.

CONTRACT LET.

For Brick Building on Main Street—Charles Heckert gets the Job.

The contract was awarded Wednesday for the erection of a two-story brick building on the site now occupied by the Centennial meat market, between the Whitehorn and Masonic buildings. The structure is to be 100 feet deep, extending from the street to the alley in the rear, and will be 23 feet wide in the clear. It is to be built by the James Taylor heirs, and will cost $4,000 in addition to the two side walls to which the builders have hitherto acquired the right to attach. The rear wall and a section of 20 feet from the alley to the Whitehorn wall besides the front, roof, floors and inside finishing is all that will have to be built. The contract was awarded to Charles Heckert at something over $3,800, the only other bidder being an Albany man. Work will begin as soon as the contract is signed, which will be in a day or two. The old building will be used while the rear walls are being constructed, after which it will be removed. The new structure will be occupied by the present meat market below, and the front rooms on the upper floor by a tenant who is said to have already engaged them.

MANY BUILDING.

Thirteen Houses Under Construction now, not Counting two Bricks.

Twelve houses are in process of construction in Corvallis and suburbs, and work is to begin at once on a 13th. This does not take into account the two bricks, for one of which excavation is already in progress, while work will begin in a day or two on the other. The thirteen mentioned are residences, and nearly all of them are of the best ever built in Corvallis. Among them are, J. H. Harris, residence cost, $2,500; A. P. Johnson, $2,500; T. H. Crawford, $1,800; J. F. Yates, $2,500; Charles Johnson, $1,500; Dr. Cathey, $1,600; Mrs. Houck, $800; Ellsworth Erwin, $1,300; Norton Adams, $1,000; unknown house near C. & E. depot, another in Jobs addition, and still another on 9th street. The 13th house is an expensive one to be built by S. L. Kline and on which work begins in a day or two. The above buildings in addition to the two bricks, all under construction at one time, make a very good showing. Drouth may have its drawbacks, but it hasn't stopped, the growth of Corvallis.

House to House Canvass.

Representatives of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company have started a house to house canvass among the farmers of this county, offering an extremely low rental for instruments to be used in connection with the central offices of the Company throughout the county. For .08 1/3 cents a month the subscriber is given free switching with all the other subscribers connecting with his central exchange. Under this rate it would appear that no rural resident need be without a telephone and its attendant advantages, especially as every assurance is given of prompt and efficient service. Mr. G. B. Hibbard is in charge of the canvass in this county and he states that he may be seen at the central office of the Company in Albany, or will visit any community or organization of farmers interested in telephone matters.

A Habit to Be Encouraged.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of uneasiness and anxiety. Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible, are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious, and mothers give it to their own with a feeling of perfect security.
