—James Flett and family left Wednesday for their ranch in the Buck Creek neighborhood.

—Mrs. E. R. Bryson and children left today for a visit in Portland.

—Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hoskins of Walla Walla are the guests of Mrs. L. B. Baldwin at Philomath. Mrs. Hoskins and Mrs. Baldwin are sisters. Mrs. Hoskins is authority for the statement that the mercury ranged from 91 to 108 for 27 days in Walla Walla this season.

—Wash Young, formerly of Benton, a twin brother of Jack Young, has been a Corvallis visitor for a day or two. His home is at Seattle where both he and Jack have become wealthy by the growth and increase of values in the Puget Sound metropolis. He is returning from a sojourn in California, to which state he is shortly to return to reside. His new home will be at Santa Barbara.

—It was the proud boast of a Portland paper the other day that a four-foot section of a limb from a plum tree bore "56 well developed plums." Yesterday there was exhibited in the Times office a limb of equal length on which there was 159 fine, luscious peach plums. The branch weighed 14 pounds. On the four feet of limb there was nearly a quarter of a bushel of fruit. Two plums dropped while the limb was being brought to the Times office which made the original number 161. The grower was Samuel Bane.

—State Land Agent Oswald West left this morning after a hurried visit to his hop yard on Kiger Island. The latter comprises 30 acres and was formerly the McCannan-Saug On yard. In the farm there is 140 acres of land, and a peach orchard is to be set out the coming season. Mr. West went from Corvallis to Portland in answer to a subpoena to appear in the land fraud cases.

—The janitorship at the court house is still in the air. Eleven tried and true citizens offer themselves as candidates for the position, but up to the present, there is no chosen one. Wednesday afternoon the position was declared vacant, but no permanent successor was selected. It is understood that Judge Woodward had one candidate for the place, and that Commissioner Smith had another. Court adjourned without an appointment, and H. H. Glassford has been placed in temporary charge. J. D. Wells, former janitor, is out and has accepted a position as deputy game warden.

—There is a swarm of bees in Tom Vidito's chimney. They settled in the place some time ago, and the story of the boy who had some of it, is that there is lots of honey on the inside. He ought to know for he was, when he told the story, all swollen up with a stung place, inflicted on his person by a bee. The account is that the little workers can be seen fogging in and out of the chimney at all hours in the prosecution of their business in honey making. Recent accounts these columns of how similar swarms of bees have settled in the chimneys of Rich Irwin and Wm. Barclay, make the Vidito swarm of added interest, and lead to the query of, what have the bees in their bonnets this year.

—The cream of any newspaper not only for the publisher but the reader, is its advertisements. More thought is expended by their writers on advertisements than on any other stuff in the paper, and many and many times there are framed up in them the keenest, best matter of the day. They are the department of the paper that cost money, which means that there is business and brains, push and progress behind the space these advertisements occupy. There is always a charming interest in every advertisement, for they mirror the every day doings of the men and establishments that are doing the business of the community.

—Albany Herald:—Carl Hodes yesterday shipped his saloon fixtures to Portland where he will hereafter conduct a business. Since June 3 last, when by operation of law he was compelled to close his saloon, he has conducted a soft drink establishment here in order to make expenses while looking about for a new location. This he has found, having purchased the German Cafe at No. 209 First street in Portland. He has taken charge and is now running it and yesterday his soft drink emporium in this city was closed and the fixtures and stock loaded in a freight car to be shipped to Portland.

—Rev. M. S. Bush will preach at Oak Ridge Presbyterian church next Sunday at 3 p. m.

—Subject at the Church of Christ Sunday morning, "Where is your Faith." Evening sermon, "Christ in Prophecy."

—L. W. Van Blaricum has sold his interest in the grocery establishment of Pugsley & Van Blaricum at Philomath to Arthur Pugsley and the firm will hereafter be known as Pugsley & Son. Mr. Van Blaricum is prospecting for a business location and may resume business in Philomath.

—Reports that Forrest Smithson, Fred Wann, Prof. McKellips and Prof. Taillandies had been fined for alleged violations of the game law at Yachats are not true. I. H. King of Portland, who was camped near the Wann-Smithson party was caught with a deer in his possession and fined $25 and costs, which fine was paid, and it is probably this incident that is responsible for the rumor involving the Corvallis men. The heads of the latter have not yet been bathed in deer blood as was the case with Mr. King and his dear blood. The arrest was made by John Wells of Corvallis, deputy game warden, and a similar officer from Eugene. The proceedings were at Waldport. The total cost for the violation was $26.50 and the animal killed was a tough old doe at that.

—Nat Stewart, formerly of Benton, after 12 years service as sheriff at Santa Barbara, California, is a candidate for reelection, and will have, according to a Santa Barbara paper, little or no opposition. The term of office is four years, and the salary about $6,000 a year. Mr. Stewart was the son of the late Kim Stewart, who died in Corvallis a number of years ago. Sheriff Stewart is a man of very fine qualities and great popularity, as evidenced by his career as a public official, in which he has been three times elected sheriff. He is an occasional visitor to his old home in Benton, having been here three or four years ago on a hunting expedition with P. Avery, R. E. Gibson and others.

AN OREGON MAN.

After Seven Years is Home From China—A Former O. A. C. Student.

An Oregon boy who has attained considerable distinction in the Orient, but who has returned to his native state to reside, was in Corvallis a couple of days this week. He is Prof. E. D. Lyman, late of Shanghai, China. Prof. Lyman was formerly a student at OAC, where he was a classmate of G. W. Denman, and a fellow student with E. E. Wilson and John F. Fulton. After leaving OAC, he graduated at Stanford, and after that did special work in chemistry at the University of California. He also served as chemist for a year at a California beet sugar factory and later went to Leipzig, Germany, where he further pursued his studies as chemist. In 1898, he went to Shanghai, China, and became a professor of chemistry in the Chinese government college. He remained in the government educational service of the Chinese empire until a few months ago when he retired on account of ill health of his family. He expects to locate permanently in his native state. At the time he left China, he had just been promoted to a position in the imperial college at Tien Tsin on a salary of $2,400 per year, gold.

According to Prof. Lyman, a great change is coming over China. It was distinctly observable during his seven years residence in the country. A movement for Western education is gathering strength there, and its effect upon conditions is already observable. It is copying of the plan by which Japan rose from the sloughs of ignorance and superstition into a powerful and progressive nation. Chinese pupils are studying Western education in the schools of the empire, and in the colleges of the United States, and the colleges of Japan are literally swarming with them. They are faithful and apt students and are fast acquiring the arts and sciences that made Japan so suddenly great. The growth in this line is already so marked that Chinese with University educations are already fast supplanting the American and English educators who have until recently been relied on for the faculties of the government colleges, and the promotion of the imperial educational system. It is the conclusion of Prof. Lyman that within the near future, China will manifest a progressive development that will surprise the world. Prof. Lyman left yesterday for Portland. During his stay in town he spent much time at the college. A youth he resided at Yachats Bay.

IN A BANK VAULT.

During Great Fire at San Francisco—A Corvallis Draft.

A draft that was in the vault of a San Francisco bank during the earthquake and through the fire that followed was displayed on Main street yesterday. It was a draft sent by August Fischer through the First National Bank of this city and was in the vault of the First National of San Francisco when the latter was burned. The Frisco bank was located in the heart of the burned district, and the fierce heat that consumed the building is evidenced by the appearance of the draft. The vault turned out to be fire proof, but just a little more heat comparatively would have fixed things. As it was the Corvallis draft was badly discolored and had been heated to a point where it was practically charred. Bits of paper detached from it and rolled between the fingers crumbled like rotten chalk. It was so far damaged that it was past use, and was sent back to Corvallis to the sender to have a duplicate issued, which was done. The remains of the old draft will be kept as a souvenir of the great cataclysm.

A MIDNIGHT RACE.

On Corvallis Streets—Officer and Fugitive—But no Capture.

The TIMES has not been able to ascertain the identity of the actors in the story that follows. The drama transpired Tuesday night, and the facts are about thus: A belated business man opened the front door and was in the act of passing into the hall at his boarding house. At the same moment an unknown man made a dash to pass out the door. In the darkness the stranger stumbled and fell over a chair, but escaped before the thunderstricken business man could gather his wits sufficiently to act. In the belief that it was a burglar a hasty telephone call was sent to Officer Osburn, who was reached at once. A chase resulted with the business man and the officer in hot pursuit, but not fast enough to make a capture. For a time they lost the fugitive but presently recovered the trail by the swift footfalls as the latter raced madly along a well known street. They saw and recognized him finally as he leaped the dooryard hedge and disappeared in his own back door, but they won't tell who he is. For real good sprinting, the midnight caller, when once squared away on a good stretch, is unquestionably a goer, and the night watch and his unknown partner in the incident solemnly swear that he is equally formidable as a high jumper.

THE EXPERT'S REPORT Was Submitted to County Court Wednesday—What it Shows.

The report of Expert Emery, appointed a month ago to examine the books of county officer, for the past two years, was submitted at Wednesday's session of the commissioners court. It deals with the books of the school superintendent, recorder, treasurer, sheriff and clerk. It reports a difference between the finding of the expert of $1.25 in the case of the superintendent, 50 cents in the case of the recorder and $14 in the case of the clerk, and that these amounts have been paid by said officials to the county. The findings of the treasurer and expert agree, but by the report of the expert Sheriff Burnett has over paid the county the sum of $21.21 more than he has collected, and that the said sum is now due the sheriff from Benton county.

The report shows that the sheriff turned over to the treasurer for 1904 the sum of $76,400.17 in tax collections, and in 1905, $65,114.90. All told he turned over during the two years to the treasurer $151,051.33, which is a very large sum of money. During his term the clerk collected and turned over in filing fees and recording fees, tax collections on redeemed property, and miscellaneous fees, the sum of $2,195.10. For the same time the recorder collected and turned over in fees, $2,480.15, and the superintendent, $372.73, besides $273.75 from the treasurer for institute fees.
