—Where is Prof. Gunn?
—Dr. and Mrs. Harper left yesterday for Newport, to be absent ten days.

—Mrs. S. L. Kline arrived at Minneapolis Sunday afternoon to attend the national meeting of the W. R. C.

—W. C. Schriber leaves Tuesday for Arcata, California, to build W. E. Dunham's residence at that place.

—Mrs. A. C. Schriber and son Earl leave Monday evening for Smithfield, Illinois, for an indefinite stay.

—Men wanted. Saw mill and lumber yard laborers $2.25 per day. Woodsmen $2.25 to $3.00. Steady work. Apply to Booth-Kelly Lumber Co. Eugene, Or.

—Among the bay bound passengers Saturday were Mrs. S. N. Wilkins, Mrs. F. L. Miller, Miss Frances Gellatly, Miss Mertie Harrington, Max Miller, Sam Kerr, James Rieb, Prof. Kent, Steven Hamer, John Allen and John Withycombe.

—The Mangas house next door south of Mrs. Cauthorn's home on Third street has been purchased by Mrs. Chrisinger for $600. The deal was made by Robinson & Stevenson. The same firm sold the Charles Pearse house to T. D. Campbell last week.

—Excavations were begun yesterday for the new residence S. L. Kline is to build on the corner north across the street from the Presbyterian church. Mr. Kline is building the structure as a permanent home, and the effort will be to make all the appointments complete. There will be a seven foot basement of which three feet will be below the surface. Surmounting the basement will be one story in which all the rooms of the house will be located. A handsome roof with ornamental windows in it will add to the elevation and heighten the sightliness of the building. It will cost about $3,000.

—As the boat pulled up to the dock at Yaquina Sunday evening with the excursionists on board, there was a sudden splash and the cry of "man overboard." After a little wait in which the crowd was breathless with suspense, the waters parted and a head appeared above the surface. The eyes glanced around for the hat which was drifting away, and spouting water as he went, the swimmer started for it. He handled himself with perfect ease, and after recovering his hat, swam back to the scow and was pulled on board. It was Henry Hout, the popular cutter in the Hout & Jones meat market of Corvallis.

—Construction of the Woman's building at the college is temporarily held up. Secretary of State Dunbar declines to issue warrants for the $65,000 appropriation for the building unless the contract cost of the structure shall be within the appropriation. The building committee has funds from other sources to pay the excess of cost, and on that account maintains that the secretary should issue the warrant. The opinion of the attorney general has been sought, and on the question of what it may be, the building program will depend. If it shall be against the view of the secretary, the committee will go ahead on the present plan. If it be against the committee's contention, a cheaper plan or cheaper material will have to be resorted to so that the cost will come within the appropriation.

—Here is what the Boise City News says about the candidacy of E. L. Bryan for circuit judge in one of the Idaho districts. "Ed L. Bryan, who has been nominated by the Democrats for judge of the Seventh district, is a member of the law firm of Cox & Bryan of Payette. He was born in western Oregon and graduated in the business and reporter's courses at Philomath College, Oregon, and later graduated from the academic course. At the age of seventeen he began teaching in the schools of Oregon, and followed teaching and reporting for a number of years. At the age of 19 he was made a member of the board of teachers' examiners and served four years. At 25 he was elected superintendent of schools of Benton county, Oregon, and at the expiration of his term took up the practice of law and has followed it ever since. He is a lawyer of ability and has a reputation as an orator. He was appointed by Judge Smith to defend Harry Orchard at the last term of the district court held in Canyon county."

—Prof. Gunn? Gunn? Gunn?

—Mrs. Charles Chipman returned Saturday from a week's visit with Philomath friends.

—Mr and Mrs. Fred Clark arrived Friday from a month's visit with their son at Baker City.

—Miss Rosalie Greffoz of Portland, passed through Corvallis Saturday enroute to Newport for a week's stay.

—Walter Sheasgreen, manager of the Western Union telegraph office of Oregon City, arrived Friday to relieve Ernest Miller of the local office, who is taking his vacation.

—Thirty seven potatoes displayed at the real estate office of Robinson & Stevenson came from a single hill. They weigh 14 pounds, and were grown by Rev. P. A. Moses in Corvallis.

—Case knife green beans in pods eight and one half inches in length grown on his home place across Marys river were brought into Corvallis a day or two ago by Lee Henkle.

—Hallie Wilkins who has been attending a business college in Portland since June arrived Friday evening and left again Saturday for Newport. After a week at the coast he expects to return to Portland.

—Monroe Cameron left today for Portland, after a business visit since Sunday in town. He is now in the real estate business in Portland, and is reputed to be making good money. He says he does not expect to again engage in the harness business.

—Chester Mason is at the business end of a divorce suit. The case was brought up in Baker county by his wife. He also attained notoriety in Salem the other day for a misdemeanor.

—The funeral of the late Andrew Hart, who died in Job's addition last Monday, occurred from the family home Sunday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Simpson late pastor of the Episcopal church. The burial service was by Corvallis lodge of Free Masons. A son from Toledo, Ohio was among those who mourned at the bier.

—Esther Mitchell, who killed her brother at Seattle is sick. At first it was believed that her malady was typhoid fever, but yesterday's dispatches state that she is better and that the former typhoid fever theory is probably wrong. Maud Hurt Creffield has been put in the same cell with her during Miss Mitchell's illness. A dispatch announces that the women will be brought to trial next month for the shooting of George Mitchell.

—A certain Benton county horse is in litigation. He was attached by the sheriff on a debt owed by J. E. Hawkins to Mr. Howell. After serving the papers, the officer left the animal at the place and soon after arrival in Corvallis learned that parties had started the animal in the direction of Philomath and that they were trying to get him out of the county. Officer Wells left at once and reached Philomath in time to intercept the party and secure the horse. Hawkins now claims that he is not the owner of the animal. The matter will probably be the occasion of a hearing in the justice court.

—How liquor was freely sold by the glass on the Newport excursion train Sunday has been a source of gossip. Two demijohns of whiskey, various kinds of wines and other drinks are declared to have been the stock in trade of a young boy who is alleged to have hailed from Stayton, Marion county, and who retailed his wares without stint on the train. He is described as perhaps 17 years of age. It is related that his sales on the train were made in every county, and since he passed through three dry counties the fines and imprisonment that could have been piled up against him if any one had been on hand to gather evidence would be enough to bankrupt an ordinary capitalist. His operations were in effect a traveling saloon.

—Misses Mamie Cauthorn and Hettie Lilly left today for a stay at Newport.

WATCHING COURTS.

Cities now on Water Wagon Might get wet by Litigation —Will They?

Corvallis local optionists have their eyes on the Oregon courts. A new measure passed by the initiative at the late election provides that cities may by popular vote amend their own charters. The anti-optionists claim this measure removes the jurisdiction of the local option law, and gives to any town the right to regulate its liquor business. Coquille City did not go dry but the county did as a whole, and now the town has gone to court with the contention that it can by the new charter amendment measure, control its own liquor business, and not be dry even though Coos county has so voted. The litigation will go through the supreme court of course. Anti-optionists everywhere are hoping for a decision that Coquille may run its own business, local option in Coos to the contrary notwithstanding. Optionists everywhere are hoping to the contrary, and there you are. Corvallis optionists figure it out that if Coquille's contention should be upheld by the supreme court, Albany would revolute and reverse the decision of last June when Linn county went dry, carrying Albany, much against the latter's wish, along with it, and with the outcome that a great and very dry drought is now prevalent in the sister town down the Willamette. Corvallis of course wouldn't go wet even if the Coquille idea should be sustained. Every precinct in the town but one went dry, and it went wet but by four. It was number four or the south precinct. Numbers one, two and three went dry by a total of 94, giving a net majority for drouth of 90. The vote two years before was 156. With Albany dry, Corvallis is much dryer, and that is why local optionists say they do not want to see the courts annul the local option law on the Coquille City pretence. It is not likely that there will be such an outcome.
