SLEW HIS FATHER

JAMES F. SLOANE, OF SPOKANE, IS MURDERED BY HIS SON AS HE SLEEPS.

Body Hacked With Axe—Youth Hoped to Get Sum of Money—Murderer Carries Body Away in a Wheelbarrow.

Spokane, Aug. 28.—Spokane was shocked by the revolting murder of James F. Sloane, a pioneer merchant and former member of the Sloane-Paine Grocery company. Sidney Sloane, his 17 year old son, is held at the police station. The body was found in an alley near the Sloane home on Sixth avenue about 6 o'clock this morning by a woman, who telephoned to the police.

The body showed that a cowardly murder had been committed. There were numberless gashes on the head which appeared to have been inflicted with a hatchet. One gash extended nearly from ear to ear and there were a number of three-cornered wounds on the skull. The murderer evidently struck a dozen or more blows and after killing the merchant, the murderer placed his body in a wheelbarrow and took it through the streets to an alley at the rear of the house. A trail of blood plainly showed the path of the thug and his victim. The body was thrown against a pile of rocks.

Shortly after the body was found the police took Sidney Sloane into custody. He appeared to be unaware of the crime until 7 o'clock and when informed seemed completely upset. He said he would go immediately to a ranch 16 miles from the city and inform his mother, who was there. He was taken into custody about ten o'clock and confessed he had killed his father. The confession was made to Chief Walker and detective McDermott.

At first he told a story that he had made arrangements with a man named Riley at Sheridan, Wyoming, to come on here and kill his father. They planned to secure $500 he knew his father carried and divide it. He stated Riley came apparently the parent had fallen asleep in his chair while reading some after a light luncheon of bread and milk. The boy carefully stuffed the keyholes with cotton to stifle the sound from other occupants of the house, then going down the back stairs again, he got an axe from a neighbor's woodpile and, returning stealthily, he cut his father almost to pieces while he slept.

It was necessary to hide the crime and the boy decided to build up the appearance of a highway murder. Sneaking down stairs again, he found a wheelbarrow filled with apples in a neighbor's yard. Emptying the apples, he brought it to the stairway and, carrying his father's body down to it, he wheeled the remains for nearly two blocks at midnight through the street in the business district. Then he tossed his father's body into the rear of a barn.

Returning home, the patricide put the barrow in the neighbor's yard, refilled it with the apples and put the axe on the woodpile. Going up stairs, he found the room looking like a shambles. He washed the floor, scrubbed down the bloody stairway, hid the rugs and at breakfast time was found calmly sprinkling the yard and inquiring casually why his father had not come home at night.

The police suspected him from his inability to conjure up the semblance of real grief when told that the body had been found. He was arrested and soon broke down, confessing. Another tale he told was that he did it to get the money, and he showed $50 which he took from the corpse. Another story was that the two quarreled over the mother. The police suspect that Young Sloane had older accomplices, including a woman. He is also suspected of being the burglar who robbed two stores in the block where his father was long engaged in business. He is also suspected of being a partner of the burglar who was shot and killed a few weeks ago while breaking into Staples' candy store.

The boy later declared that he alone killed his father, but said it was in the heat of passion, his father having attacked him when intoxicated. The purport of the confession is that, denied money with which to purchase a suit of clothes, the boy deliberately planned his father's death. He had learned that his father had $500 on his person and wanted it. The boy had always been pampered and given money. The boy's supply of money had been curtailed recently on account of reverses. He is a great spender, not vicious, but weak, and is known as a petty thief.

ROTTEN EGGS

CHICAGO FIRM EXTRACTS THE SMELL—DRIES AND SELLS REMAINDER.
Health Officials Discover Where the Bakers Get Material for Cooking—Strong Smells Predominate—Other News.
Chicago, Aug. 28.—Health officials today brought to light a factory where eggs which antedate even the oldest chorus girl are "reprocessed," mixed, deodorized, ground, pulverized and sifted and finally sold to bakers all over the land, and even to one great trans-Atlantic steamship line, for cooking purposes. To keep out the inquisitive and to keep in the smells, which are something fierce, the factory is a vast system of trapdoors, secret passages, and the business is such that goods are never shipped in the name of the purchaser, but to his initials only.
Admission to the third floor shows two small girls at work breaking evil-smelling eggs into cans. The stench is powerful, from this point to the end of the investigation. The eggs which are used for food are supposed to have been carefully culled by a "candler." Those which are called beyond eating go into another receptacle to make tanning oil. The mess of "broken eggs," which the "inspectors" have labeled unwholesome, is dumped into a separator and the shells are extracted. The liquid goes to the fourth floor.
The loft is fitted up with a condenser. Eight rolls, three feet by four or five, and each cut so as to give all the surface possible, are in constant motion. Vats of eggs are raised so that the rolls are covered, and air at a temperature of 104 degrees is forced over the mass. The eggs stick to the rolls and are dried out. This product is scraped loose, sifted and sold to bakers.
The man in charge of the rolls never calls for an egg shampoo at the barber shop. It is not necessary. Today he carelessly rubbed his fingers through his hair shortly after reaching into the liquid to prevent its clogging the rolls.
Goods have been shipped to "N. B., St. Joseph, Mo.," "F. Schmidt, Atlanta, Ga.," and "H. M. R., Philadelphia." Other goods have been shipped to Texas and Portland, Or., as well as to a trans-Atlantic steamship line. It takes four dozen eggs to make a pound of the "reprocessed" material. Chief Murray has other plants under surveillance. The product of the one discovered today will be soaked in kerosene tomorrow.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28.—A sea turtle with a shell six feet wide and with a head as large as a man's, is reported to be despoiling Lake's Bay, back of this city, of fish.

John Bevins, a bayman, who has always held a good reputation for sobriety and truth, a member of the Baptist church, is authority for the story. He says over a bushel of oysters are growing on its shell and he believes the turtle is at least 400 years old. Its open mouth, he says, was wide and deep enough to have torn the side out of his clam boat. Sportsmen who went after the turtle this afternoon failed to see it.

New York City, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Craft of every conceivable kind, from the palatial private yacht to the little tug boat, went down the bay today to meet the North German Lloyd liner Princess Irene, having on board William J. Bryan and his party. The boats carried hundreds of democrats anxious to greet their idol as the waves of the Atlantic brought him into view.
From the time the steamship ties up to her pier in Hoboken until Mr. Bryan lands at the Battery tomorrow the leader will keep in strict seclusion. He probably will spend the night on board the yacht of his friend, Mr. Galtra, of St. Louis, where he will confer with those who have closest relations with him.

New York, Aug. 30.—Between crowds of countless thousands that lined both sides of Broadway from the Battery to Central Park, William J. Bryan made his entry into New York late this afternoon after an absence from the country of nearly a year. Even those whose political faith held them aloof from the popular demonstration were bound to admit that it was a "triumphal" entry, the like of which the metropolis had not scene since the return of Admiral Dewey after his victory at Manila bay.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 26.—C. G. Aldrich, of Boston, and D. S. Moore, both business men, have each sued Calvin B. Humphrey, a prosperous farmer of Colebrook, for $2,000 damages. Humphrey's bank account and property here were attached this afternoon for $5,000.

Last May as Aldrich and Moore were riding in the former's auto through Colebrook River, Humphrey rushed into the road with an ox whip and commanded them to stop, as a friend's horse was afraid of the machine.

They paid no attention to the signal and as the autolists sped by Humphrey gave them the lash of the ox whip on their heads, and when they returned and sought an explanation he slapped and choked Moore, who, in the complaint said he suffered great pain and was greatly humiliated.

Humphrey says that if he hadn't jumped from in front of the oncoming "devil's wagon" as quickly as he did he would have been run over. He is glad the suit has been brought and will fight to the last ditch, he says, to see whether the "automobile hog" can monopolize the country roads.

A Mystery Solved.

"How to keep off periodic attacks of biliousness and habitual constipation was a mystery that Dr King's New Life Pills solved for me," writes John N. Pleasant, of Magnolia, Ind. The only pills that are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to everybody or money refunded. Only 25c at Allen & Woodward's drug store.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 28.—William Hoch, proprietor of a saloon, was killed by electricity in his barroom by a shock from an incandescent lamp while preparing to close his place last night. Hoch mounted a chair to reach the switch of an electric light over the bar. As his hand came into contact with the button he doubled up, pitched forward across the bar and rolled to the floor dead.
A witness of the accident explained the manner of Hoch's death to the police, and to illustrate the occurrence mounted the chair and touched the same switch. He received a shock that felled him senseless to the floor, and a physician had difficulty in reviving him.

Washington, Aug. 26.—When the president and his family went to Oyster Bay a pet parrot, of which Mr. Roosevelt is fond, was turned over to a dealer to be cared for. It was several years ago that the parrot was introduced into the Roosevelt household. He grew very fond of the president's eldest daughter, and his voice, shouting "Alice, Alice, Alice," frequently was heard ringing through the hallways.
With the marriage of Miss Roosevelt to Representative Longworth the parrot seemed to lose interest in life. His jubilant voice changed to a dull croak, and the familiar cry of "Alice" changed to a colorless echo. The bird no longer flapped his wings, nor did his shrill cries ring through the house.
Then came the departure of Mrs. Longworth for Europe. The parrot
