For advertisements in this column the rate of 15 cents per line will be charged.

—Wheat, 57; oats, 36 to 29.

—Among the new students at OAC are John and Kate Kelly, son and daughter of John Kelly of Eugene. Mr. Kelly is a member of the Booth-Kelly Lumber Co.

—The regular business meeting and "Tea" of the Coffee Club was held Monday afternoon. The opening dance of the season is scheduled for next Saturday evening.

—The Amicitia room in the Administration building was a scene of merriment Saturday evening. The Amicitia and Sorosis literary societies presented an interesting program much of which was impromptu, in honor of new students. The program was followed by sherry and wafers.

—The threshing machines have probably all been laid away for the season. The Cooper machine was run in the shed Thursday, and the Whitesides outfit Saturday morning. Leder Brothers finished up Saturday evening. It is understood that all the machines had good runs, and in the main, profitable ones.

—President Richardson of the Corvallis Business College has opened an office in Portland for the purpose of getting positions for its graduates. He placed four in positions last week. Young people should take their training in their home school, because of small classes the work will be more thorough and much better; the expenses will be much less, saving $50 to $100; and they will be surer of a good position when they graduate. This is an opportunity you should not miss.

—There is but one college at Philomath now. The College of Philomath, whose building was burned last year, will not reopen for students at the present time, and probably never open again in Philomath. It was the college of the radical faction of the United Brethren church, and the denomination is understood to be looking for a location elsewhere. Philomath College is to open tomorrow with a flattering prospect. Rev. F. W. Jones, presiding elder of the liberal faction of the church, is acting president, and O. V. White is dean.

—The first attraction for the new season is to be given at the Opera House Saturday night. The bill is Richard & Pringle's minstrels, an aggregation so well and favorably known that words of commendation are not necessary. Several changes have been made about the stage at the Opera House since it was last open to the public. A drop curtain has been added, the wings and draperies have been renewed, and most of the scenery has been retouched. Before cold weather comes, the place will be heated by a furnace, for the adding of which preliminary preparations have already been made. Manager Groves has made arrangements for booking only the best standard companies, and has made his plans for the winter with that end in view.

—Two Benton county colts, only five months old, sold the other day for the snug sum of $222, or $111 apiece. The figure is more than has on many occasions been secured for a good horse of mature years and in the prime of his usefulness. These colts were Patache's get, and their combined weight was 1,300. One weighed 15 pounds more than the other. Both are black, superbly mated and both are mares. They were raised by Matthew Thompson who resides near the C. & E. crossing. They were sold to Walter Locke and his brother. Benton county is a center for big colts, big horses, big sheep, big hogs, big cattle, big apples and big-hearted people.

—O. V. Hurt has returned from Seattle where he went to attend the inquiry into the mental condition of Esther Mitchell and Maud Hurt Creffield. As generally known, the verdict of the inquiry was that the women were affected with a species of insanity, when the murder of George Mitchell by his sister Esther occurred, and they still are of unsound mind in this respect. District Attorney McIntosh of Seattle, is fighting the order of the court which provides for the women to be deported to Oregon. The belief of Mr. Hurt is that the effort of the district attorney will fail, and that the order of Judge Frater to send them prisoners to Oregon will be carried out. If the latter happens, the women will have their full liberty as soon as they cross the line into this state, and will be free women, unless taken into custody by the state authorities and committed on an order of the probate court to the Oregon insane asylum.

HE GOT HIS LIVESTOCK.

That was at the Fair—But it was not Prize Winning Cattle—The Johnsons.

It's a case of too many Johnsons in one town. There is B. W. Johnson and Prune Johnson, A. J. Johnson and A. P. Johnson, Prof. Johnson, and probably several other Johnsons not scheduled in the census. If they all lived in a row and each had children and a family dog it would be a busy community with probably enough rioting to make Cuba go away back and sit down.

In this instance, the blow that was intended for Bob Johnson fell on A. J. A. J. got a telegram the other day to meet the freight train that night and "get your livestock." He had been looking for the arrival of a car of cattle that he had on exhibition at the state fair, and he naturally supposed they were to arrive via the night's freight. Early in the evening A. J. was observed to drive up to the stock yard at the Southern Pacific station and drop off several sacks of mill feed so as to have it all in readiness for his incoming fancy cattle. He looked well to the stock yard fences, too, and to the gate to see that all was snug and safe for his prize winners. He was on the platform, full of expectancy when the train pulled in. He looked hard, but for the life of him he couldn't see any car of livestock. He looked again, but all in vain, and then accosted the conductor.

"My name's Johnson; I got a telegram from you, and I have come for my livestock."

"Is-is-is your name A. J. Johnson," gasped the conductor, who by the way, held by a string a little woolly, abbreviated sooner dog.

"Yes, I am A. J. Johnson; where's my livestock?"

"There it is," said the conductor pointing to the woolly dog. "There's your livestock, but I thought A. J. Johnson was Bob Johnson, and that is why I telegraphed."

A. J. is a Presbyterian and one that doesn't bet on horse races or use cuss words. He thought of the feed he had hauled to the stock yards and looked contemptuously at the sooner dog. In his mind he contrasted the canine with his prize winning cattle and reflected on the position of a mayor of a city and a state senator-elect who had hauled many sacks of feed to a depot to feed to a little woolly dog. Being orthodox, he didn't swear, but he grins now when asked, "How's your livestock?"

Georgia Minstrels.

By adhering to the good old style of minstrelsy Richard & Pringle's Minstrels, who will appear in this city shortly, have established for themselves a reputation that any theatrical manager might well envy. For 28 years the visits of Richard & Pringle's Famous Georgia Minstrels have been looked upon as a gala event, always clean, wholesome and good, their name has caused the largest theatres to be filled to overflowing. This season these gentlemen have fairly eclipsed themselves in organizing a company of genuine colored artists, called from the ranks of all the best minstrel people on earth. Clarence Powell heads the list and it is proper that he should. The extremely funny comedian has made more people laugh, and perhaps receives the largest salary of any comedian, white or black, in the world today. The programme promised, will be on the old time minstrel order, the same that has made minstrelsy so famous in the past years. Sweet Southern melodies, beautiful music, dances and witticisms make up a programme that is bound to please and interest. The company travel in their own special Pullman, and number over forty people. The noonday parade and evening band concert will be given as usual. They appear at the Opera House Saturday, September 29th.

Galveston's Sea Wall.

When Richards & Pringle's Famous Georgia Minstrels appear at the Opera House on Saturday September 29th, the public will see the most expensive colored show ever organized. If any doubt of the absolute truthfulness of this statement it will be forever dispelled when the performance is given. It must be confessed now that there were doubts in the minds of the management about their being able to make the giving of so vast and expensive show with any profit. And as a matter of fact the business ordinarily done by other shows would not have been profitable, but it was immensely profitable, and packed houses rule everywhere. The program is a lengthy one, and made up of great variety. The street parade at noon is a novelty, two bands in daily parade.
