The lack of attendance on the part of the faculty of OAC at the recent State Oratorical contest was the occasion of much criticism. All other colleges were represented by one or more of their faculty, but not one was in attendance from OAC a fact, that the people abroad comment upon. Of course the distance of the contest from home might have had something to do with this, but the writer had occasion to observe that last year when the contest was held almost at our door the members of the faculty who are looked to, to take more or less interest in this department of college activities was not in evidence. Many ideas could be gained that the professor could suggest to future aspirants for forensic fame from OAC. One never gains much by remaining within ones own little circle. The man or woman who does the most good is the one who associates with others and from their experiences, invokes new ideas into his or her own methods.

These remarks are not intended for the faculty as a whole, because there are some who are not expected to keep in touch with this branch of work, had they the time. It is to be hoped that hereafter more of the faculty who are in touch with this branch of work may be seen at these gatherings.

—Miss Mary Klecker arrived Saturday from a two weeks' visit with Portland relatives and friends.

—Walter Corbett's smiling face was absent from the general delivery window at the postoffice, Friday afternoon and Saturday forenoon. He went to McMinnville to attend the contest.

—Miss Melvena Elgin left Sunday for Marysville, California, to visit her sister Sophia, who is a trained nurse in that city. She will be absent two weeks, visiting San Francisco before her return.

—Superintendent Denman has received information that the seeds for use for the All-Benton-School-Fair will reach Corvallis not later than the end of this week, at which time they will be ready for distribution.

—Frank Williams, who for several months past has been employed as carpentry in the C. & E. shops at Albany, has bought an interest in the hardware business of R. E. Pugh of Philomath. The new firm is planning to enlarge its stock in trade.

—Prof. J. W. Riley of McMinnville College, passed through town Saturday to be in attendance at the meeting held in Albany to select the man who will be the student to represent Oregon in the Rhodes scholarship at Oxford. The place was awarded to a Willamette man.

—A district convention of the Rebekahs is to be held in Corvallis on the 20th. The attendance will include delegations from Albany, Buena Vista, Philomath and Corvallis. The presiding officer will be Mrs. Judge Galloway, of McMinnville, vice president of the order.

—Will Dunlap, whose jaw was three times broken in a fall from a dam recently, was in town yesterday for medical treatment. Two of the breaks in his jaw are firmly knitted and the third is rapidly adhering. The lower part of his face is still encased in a tin frame that firmly holds his jaw in the proper position so that when it is finally knitted it will be in the right spot for use. The big football player is still under the necessity of taking food in the same way that he did when he began life, in liquid form and with a tube, chewing being impossible with him, except in the case of the rag.

—Dr. Pernot is president, Dr. Cathey, secretary, and Dr. Farrar, treasurer, of the Central Willamette Medical Association. They were elected at a meeting of the organization held in Albany Friday evening. The membership includes physicians and surgeons at Albany, Corvallis and other points in the valley. Dr. Bennett of Belfountain, is a member, and at the meeting Friday, read an important paper before the association which was the basis for an extended and interesting discussion. The meeting was held in the parlors of the Alco Club, and was largely attended. A banquet concluded the exercises of the evening. The next meeting occurs at Lebanon. The membership includes the counties of Linn, Lincoln and Benton.

—Very few students outside of the class delegates went to McMinnville to attend the state oratorical contest Friday. The OAC delegation was one of the smallest there. Compared with the other colleges represented it ought to have been the largest, as there are more than twice as many students enrolled as in any of the colleges. More interest should be taken in these intellectual contests, and then the chances of winning would be easier for those taking part. It is just as essential to have a large following at an oratorical contest to spur the orator on to victory as it is in a football or a basket ball game. Those who went to McMinnville were more than paid for their trip. One gains much on such occasions, many new friends are made, new ideas gained. Of course OAC could not bring home the victor, but they should all be proud of the showing made by John Schroeder. Fourth place was not bad in such company.

—A new floor is being laid in the Vidito livery stable. The old one has done duty there for many a long year.

—Miss Minnette Philips, who is teaching school in Linn county, spent Sunday at her home in this city.

—Rev. F. V. Baer of Moscow Idaho will hold services tomorrow, Wednesday, evening at the Episcopal church beginning at 7:30.

—One of the Five Hundred clubs was entertained along with a number of invited guests at the Covell home Saturday night.

—W. Gifford Nash, once a resident of Corvallis, and Miss Bennetta Dorris of Eugene, were married in Portland Saturday.

—Vocal and instrumental recital by pupils of the OAC School of Music Saturday, March 16th, at 8:30 p. m. at College chapel. Everybody cordially invited. Admission free.

—Mrs. C. M. McKellips accompanied the delegation from the college to the oratorical contest held at McMinnville last Friday evening. It was voted that she made an ideal chaperone.

—In a game of base ball on the College grounds Saturday afternoon the OAC team defeated the town team by a score of 19 to 2. Battery OAC Rooper and Wolff, town Huff and Cooper.

—The unlucky man who fell in a cess pool connected with Adam Assell's establishment has been street talk since Saturday. He went clear under and was only rescued in the nick of time. He was practically buried in the filth when Mr. Assell and others reached him and his extraction involved much difficulty. He rolled into the place by accident. He is John Scott.

—Miss Helen Crawford's class in physical culture will give an exhibition drill on the afternoon of the 20th. inst. These drills are becoming quite a popular feature with the department of physical culture. Good crowds are in evidence on these occasions which shows that a great deal of interest is taken in this branch of college training. The public is cordially invited to attend.

—George Small of Silver Lake who has been visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity for the past week leaves soon for the return trip, via of Shaniko. Mr. Small left Silver Lake two weeks ago by stage, expecting to take the train for Shaniko, but upon arrival at the latter point trains were tied up on account of wash-outs and the journey to Biggs had to be made by stage making a five days continuous stage trip with only one night's sleep.

—Buyers are still scouring Benton county for horses. The demand is the greatest and the price the highest within the memory of all now living. How one man paid more than $2,500 for nine horses was told in a recent Times. An old gray mare whose locks were whitened by the snows of 17 winters was sold by James Henderson recently for $125. George Cooper went that sale one better, and sold a mare 21 years old for the same price. Buyers will take anything in the shape of horse flesh that can get out of its tracks at a price to make the seller dizzy.

—The seniors in the mining class at the college leave Friday evening for the annual visit to Southern Oregon mines. They go to study the workings of the mines in actual operation, to gather specimens of ore and to collect practical information on the subjects in their course of study. The members of the class are Ben Greenhaw, G. J. Riley, J. Lingas, F. M. Hofer, and P. J. Jones. They are accompanied by Instructor Proebstel. They go to various groups of mines in Josephine and Jackson counties. The miners in all cases afford the students every facility for observation and study.

—One of the social events of the season took place Saturday evening, when Arthur G. Boquet invited a few of his friends in to spend the evening. The affair was a dinner in honor of Mr. Boquet's birthday. It was strictly "stag" in nature, the boys even preparing the sumptuous dinner, which was declared to be a "corking" good dinner. After doing more than justice to the spread, the guests retired to the sitting room where stories were told, and a few vocal and instrumental solos were struck off by Mr. Boquet and others. What was also indulged in. Those present were, Messrs. Finn, Yeager, Pendergrass, Nola Reid, G. Stone, H. Cook, John Clark, Crawford, Cole, Will Wicks and John Withycombe. All voted it a very pleasant evening and wished their host many happy and prosperous years.

—Pur Avery went to Portland today on a business visit.

—James Ball, a well known figure of Newport, known for long years to all oldtime Benton Countyites is dead. He was buried at Newport last Thursday. He was one of the most genial men that ever lived, and a pang of regret at his passing will be felt by all who ever knew him.

—Harry B. Hall, of Los Angeles, superintendent of allowances for the postoffice department was in town yesterday to inspect the Corvallis postoffice with reference to the contract made by him in behalf of the government before the building was erected. After looking the office over, he declared it to be the best appointed and equipped office of its class on the coast, stating that it more than met the requirements of the contract and in all things it was highly acceptable to the department. He officially confirmed the contract, and left on the six o'clock train for Portland.

IN A NEW ROLE.

How Women are Crowding Men out of Positions—This one is Theatrical Advance Agent.

A young woman, traveling as advance agent for a theatrical company invaded Corvallis Saturday, and thereby afforded illustration of how woman is crowding the sterner sex out of positions of which he was formerly the sole guardian. She was Miss Florence L. Newman who came as the advance agent of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" company, which appears in the Opera House Thursday evening. She is from New York City with headquarters at the Knickerbocker, the base of operations for almost an infinite number of traveling companies. She is 26 years of age and has been traveling six years as an advance agent. She is a very slightly person, well dressed and according to the statement of local people was well able to drive a good bargain for the people she represents.

She travels about a week ahead of her company, and arranges the preliminaries as to hotel accommodations, transportation details, baggage contracts, bill posting, and kindred duties. The loneliness of the life, throwing her constantly a stranger among strangers, is her chief objection to the business, but this she says is atoned for by the fact that it gives her remunerative and easy employment and a wide range of travel. She was in Corvallis a day, leaving for Albany on the evening train. In time, it seems as if women will hold positions in every walk of life, barring of course those in which physical phase is largely involved. She is fast demonstrating that she has the capacity, and that is what the employer is looking for.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush" which Miss Newman represents, is a New York organization with a play dramatized from the well known book of the same name, Augustus Thomas, one of the greatest playwrights in America being one of the dramatists. It is a drama much after the order of "Kerry Gow" which was recently produced at the Opera House with such satisfactory results.

Manager Groves had to give a big guarantee in order to secure the attraction.

"THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH."

Thursday Night.

Of all the book plays that have been done in New York the past three years, the adaptation of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" was undoubtedly received with the greatest favor. MacLaren Scotch tales were dramatized by James MacArthur, editor of the "Bookman", and Augustus Thomas, the author of "Alabama", "Arizona" and "The Other Girl." The part of Leachland Campbell, the old Scotch shepherd, is known as one of the greatest characterizations of the present era in theatricals, and has been pronounced by critics a masterpiece.

With a carload of special scenery is promised an adequate portraiture of the scenes from which Ian MacLaren's stories were taken, and the company is fully up to the high standard maintained in the past and includes many of the original cast also others of note in the theatrical world, and numbers in all twenty people. The entire Kirke LaShelle production will be used, and a treat is in store for those who witness this beautiful play. Owing to the heavy expense in bringing this company to Corvallis, the prices will be 50, 75, and $1. Seats now selling.
