Albany and Corvallis.

An Albany fraternal order came to Corvallis last Sunday to worship. The visit was an expression of good fellowship. It was an incarnation of friendly relation. The exchange of friendly visits by the fraternal orders in the two towns is frequent, It is the embodied absence of feudism and the disappearance of hostile rivalry. The petty rivalries common to towns and cities similarly situated as are Corvallis and Albany, are silly. They are too small to be encouraged. There is room and plenty of it for both. There is enough trouble in the world anyway, without the canker worm of intertown hostility of which there are so frequent and so illuminating manifestations. There is scarcely ever excuse for it, and never honor in feeding and keeping it alive.

It is better in the sight of God and man for one town to help build the other up instead of seeking to drag it down. A cordial relation is pleasurable for both, and the feud relation bitter for both. Mutual good feeling and kindness is testamentary to the common sense and the opposite signifies more or less of petty mindedness in both.

It is a good day for Corvallis and for Albany when their fraternal orders lead the way for mutual esteem. May all the good people in both towns follow the example.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS WERE HERE.

They Came and Went by Special Train —Many in Uniform—Their Worship.

In accordance with an ancient custom, Knight Templars celebrate Easter service with appropriate ceremonies. This is the custom the world over, where Knight Templarism exists. Temple Commandery at Albany usually worships in the elegant Masonic hall of that city. At times they have sent to Portland, Salem, and cities more remote for prelate to officiate on that special occasion. This year that distinguished office was conferred upon Dr. J. R. N. Bell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city. And the honor was more significant for the fact that the Masonic body accompanied by the Eastern Star of that city, came to this city to worship. Prominently among the number were, D. P. Mason, the patriarch of Masonary in Oregon, W. R. Bilyeu, J. R. Cusick, Frank Miller, C. B. Winn and Russell Wyatt.

The services at the Presbyterian church were held at 3 o'clock so as not to conflict with the services of any other church. Dr Bell's sermon was a masterly effort. and the scene confronting him was a sight to behold, for it was a foreground of plumed Knights surrounded by the order of Eastern Star. Upon repairing to the Masonic Hall refreshments were served by the ladies of the Eastern Star. The local Knight Templars and members of Oregon Council No. 2 R. &. S. M. sought in every way to make it pleasant for the visitors. The rest of the afternoon was devoted to visiting and to the cultivation of that fellowship which is cordially harmonizing the relations that exist between Albany and Corvallis.

At the close of the exercises the guests expressed the wish that the Masonic bodies of Corvallis might at some time in the near future return the visit.

NEW COMMANDANT FOR O.A.C.

Is West Point Graduate—Arrives in August—He Inspects Cadets Next Month.

The war department of the United States has appointed an officer of the regular army to become commandant and instructor in military science and tactics is made a requirement in instruction at the college by the law of congress which makes the appropriation for maintainance. This appropriation, by the recent increase of $25,000 per annum will soon reach about $60,000 a year, and it is required to be devoted to instruction in agriculture, English, mathematics, and mechanical, electrical, mining, civil and other engineering courses. The department also provides guns, and paraphernalia for purposes of drill.

The new commandant is Captain Ulysses Grant McAlexander of the 13th United States Infantry. He was born in Minnesota and was appointed a cadet to the United States military academy at West Point from Kansas in 1883. He was graduated in 1887, was a second lieutenant in the army until until 1894, and a first lieutenant until 1898 when he was made a captain of volunteers. In March 1899 he was honorably discharged from the volunteers to accept a captaincy in the 13th Infantry.

Captain McAlexander is now the official inspector of the agricultural colleges, known in the federal law as land grant colleges, by reason of the fact that they were endowed originally by grants of land made by congress for their support. He begins his tour of inspection within a few days at New Orleans, visits the colleges in the various southern states, reaches OAC about May 8th, and on the return trip of inspection goes through the northern states, reaching Washington in July. He then returns to OAC, and is expected to arrive about August 1st. Captain McAlexander was especially selected for OAC by Secretary Taft.

WITH GRANITE BASE.

Surmounted by Heroic Figure—Monument for old Soldiers in Crystal Lake Cemetery.

A big monument for the old soldiers plat in Crystal Lake cemetery was the occasion of a meeting in G. A. R. hall Saturday night. The plan as the TIMES has hitherto stated, is to raise $1,000 for the monument, and $300 of the sum has already been raised and the monument association is gathering funds as fast as possible to complete the figure, In time a subscription paper will find it way along the street and of course will meet with a liberal response. Of the 30 old soldiers in the vicinity each have pledged $10. The monument planned is a base 10 feet high surmounted by a heroic figure of the theme. In connection with Saturday's meeting a supper was served in connection from which a neat sum was realized for the monument.

HOW THEY STEAL FLOWERS.

In This Town—What it Means—An incident and a few Remarks Thereon.

The cry in Portland is for a beautiful city. The newspapers there plead for adornment of dooryards with roses and flowers. The movement everywhere is in the same direction. People realize as never before what flowers and roses mean. They are beauty, and beauty softens and mellows human life. It elevates and thrills, and at the same time rests and refreshes. It turns thought away from the cares of business and makes the world more peaceful and more pleasant.

And to the stranger who comes home-seeking it is attractive. It interests and delights him. Where the roses bloom and the flowers smile through their tints of beauty, he loves to linger. Every flower face and every blushing rose is an invitation to him to bide among them.

We print costly pamphlets and send them broadcast telling of the wonders of this wonderland of Oregon. We advertise and we sermonize on our resources and we urge the homeseekers to come. Yet the one thing that is a means of most powerful inducement to them to remain is often overlooked, and that is the beauty possible of producing with flowers and roses.

And here is the point in these remarks. There are children and grown up people in Corvallis who are wilfully destroying the flowers and roses in the door yards of home-owners. Three little girls 13 or 14 years old invaded a yard last night about 7:30 o'clock and nearly robbed a bed of its blooming hyacinthys. Without permission and with perfect disregard of their rights in the premises, they stole into the place and tore the flowers from the bed. The lady of the house heard them and when she appeared they fled just as sneak thieves flee and just as burglars flee. It was an outrage because the people who plant these flowers want them for the beauty the flowers give to their places. They do not want them torn up an carried away.

Nor is this the only instance. There are complaints all the time. The effort to beautify the City Hall park met with even worse discouragement. Grown up people tore up by the roots and carried off highly prized shrubs and flowers that had been procured at considerable cost and great patience. The practice was carried on to such an extent that the effort to keep the park beautified is about to be abandoned.

In the case of the three little girls, thoughtlessnese more than downright meanness is probably the explanation. Children cannot be expected to know all that grown folks know. The wonder is, cannot all people in town become interested in the encouragement of a Corvallis beautiful. Cannot the children be taught the idea, and be made little guardians rather than little marauders of the flower plats. Cannot the public school teachers, the college instructors and parents all join in a movement for making Corvallis a sightly town to see? We have the best town in Western Oregon, we have the most delightful site for a town with the most beautiful surroundings, can we not add these artificial touches when nature has given to us so generously?
