HATCHING CHINAS.

Simpson's Busy Season is Now On at the Pheasant Farm

Gene Simpson is a busy man these days. His China pheasant farm just at this time requires much attention because it is the beginning of the hatching season. The first brood of the season was expected today. Mr. Simpson has one hundred China pheasants now laying, and from past observation and experience he is led to estimate that from these he will obtain 4000 eggs this season, or an average of 40 eggs for each bird. It is not unusual for a China hen in captivity to lay 60 eggs in a season and they have been known to lay as high as 80. It is said that in captivity they lay a larger number of eggs than in the wild state.

Pheasant eggs are sold by Mr. Simpson at $3.00 per dozen. The trade in eggs is confined exclusively to points on this coast, as the eggs will not bear shipment as great distances as will chicken's eggs.

Last season Mr. Simpson reared 400 birds, the earlier part of the season being unfavorable, but this season with ordinary luck, on account of having a larger number of birds he expects to bring 600 to maturity. About 90 percent of pheasant eggs hatch, but only 40 percent of the young birds survive the first two or three weeks. After this, under Mr. Simpson's methods they become thrifty and are likely to come to maturity.

HORSE SALES CONTINUE.

No Cessation in Demand for Good Draft and Driving Horses.

In and about Corvallis there is something doing every day in the traffic of horses. For a long time the draft on Benton county for big horses has been severe. To those who know only of the many shipments from here it appears that the supply would long since have been exhausted, but somehow the flash of a sufficient number of twenty-dollar gold pieces brings the desired goods to market. The heavy demand elsewhere for heavy draft horses and driving animals creates a local demand and consequent higher price for smaller draft animals and inferior driving stock of all ages. A number of buyers from points in Oregon and Washington were in Corvallis this week in search of good draft and driving horses and the offerings in cash have been so tempting that it was difficult for owners of such to retain their property and a few did not do so.

This morning there was quite a boat-load of horses for Portland, whence a portion of them are to be conveyed to other points from there. Jesse Wiley sent several below. Among recent sales were a draft mare by Walter Brown to G. A. Brown, of the Overland Transfer Co., of Portland, for $230; large mare by Sol King to same party. Other purchases by various parties were from John Whitaker, a draft mare for $300; from Jesse Brown a bay driving mare at $180; also from Jesse Brown a span of three-year-old draft colts for $500.

Undermuslin sale all this week at Nolan's.

TROUT SEASON NOW OPEN.

Want to go fishing on North Santiam and tributary streams? The Corvallis & Eastern R. R. Co. will have a special train leaving Albany at 2 p. m. Tuesday, April 30, 1907, arriving at Detroit about 5:30 p. m. and returning leave Detroit 9 a. m. Thursday, May 2, arriving at Albany 12:30 p. m. This service, in addition to regular trains Nos. 3 and 4, on these days will allow those who desire an opportunity to take advantage of the first fishing season. Tickets at rate of one fare for the round trip with minimum of 90 cents from Corvallis and one fare from Albany and stations east will be on sale April 30th, good going this date only, returning on May 1 or 2.
