

KALA hosts author/scribe Barbara Beach

Hear the peaceful message of love from Mother Mary

ASTORIA — KALA welcomes author/scribe Barbara Beach at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 18 for a presentation. Admission to the event is $15.

Through the practice of trance-channeling, Beach is the scribe of a collection of letters entitled, "The Living Letters of Mother Mary."

Beach has been channeling for many years, but only upon request from close friends or family. She came out of the closet when Mother Mary knocked on the door and asked her to step out and be her scribe.

In 2010, Beach began to transcribe, through trance state, letters from the metaphysical entity Mother Mary. Mother Mary has no religious affiliation, her message is benevolent and one of peace and love.

"I love you simply because you are here. Not because of who you are, or what you've done, or will do. There is nothing that you must do to deserve my love. You only need be here on this earth and I will love you." — Mother Mary (Scribe, Barbara Beach)

At the KALA event, Mother Mary will give an opening presentation with an attendee question session to follow. The session lasts about one hour, with complimentary snacks to follow; books will be for sale.

Born and raised in the Portland area, Beach fulfilled one of her dreams 10 years ago when she moved to the North Oregon Coast. Beach is a non-denominational minister who enjoys performing wedding ceremonies in the open-air near the ocean. She is also a reiki master and has been involved in energy healing for the last 30 years.

In addition, as a trance-channel, Beach offers two group readings per month, in a private setting on the coast and at the Sage Center in Beaverton every fourth Sunday.

KALA is located at 1017 Marine Drive in Astoria. For more information on the event, call 503-338-4878. For more information on Mother Mary go to: www.thelivinglettersofmothermary.com

Geologist traces the coast's rise from the sea

Hear from Tom Horning at next Listening to the Land talk Geologist Tom Horning will speak at the first Listening to the Land lecture of the season Wednesday, Jan. 21.

SEASIDE — The Earth is in a constant process of rebuilding itself, and Oregon's North coast is no exception. To further explore this constant change, Seaside geologist Tom Horning will present a journey through time and space in "Rising from the Sea" to kick off this year's first Listening to the Land program at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 21 at the Seaside Public Library. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served.

The mountains that define the eastern horizon were once a volcanic seafloor covered by thousands of feet of mud and sand; and the most familiar headlands are now remnants of North America's largest lava flows that once invaded the coast. Horning will explain how these and other elements of the landscape changed over time and continue to change.

Horning, a Seaside native, has a master's degree in geology from Oregon State University. After a varied career as an exploration geologist, he returned to Seaside in 1994 and became a natural hazards and geotechnical consultant doing business as Horning Geosciences.

Listening to the Land is a monthly winter speaker series presented by North Coast Land Conservancy and the Necanicum Watershed Council in partnership with the Seaside Public Library and with generous support from the Seaside Chamber of Commerce. This year's Listening to the Land series is focused on the natural and cultural heritage of the Oregon Coast.

The Seaside Public Library is located at 1131 Broadway. For information on library programs, call 503-738-6742 or visit www.seasidelibrary.org. For more information on North Coast Land Conservancy programs, visit www.nclctrust.org
