Van Dusen to be honored for Garden of Surging Waves

Former Astoria Mayor Willis Van Dusen will be honored Sunday in Portland for his hand in the creation of the Garden of Surging

The garden, which opened last year at Heritage Square, recognizes the role of Chinese immigrants whose labor in the late 1800s helped fuel Astoria's cannery boom. Chinese heritage in Astoria, including the overt discrimination against immigrants, has often been an obscure part of the city's history.

The Chinese American Citizen's Alliance will honor Van Dusen at a banquet Sunday evening in Portland marking the Lunar New Year. Van Dusen, who served as Astoria mayor for a record 24 years, will be presented with the alliance's 5th Citizen's Award for his leadership.

A bronze plaque marking Portland's original Chinatown will also be unveiled at the dinner. Suenn Ho, the Portland urban designer behind the Garden of Surging Waves, designed
