

Fishery managers announce fall salmon seasons on Columbia

Oregon and Washington fishery managers have announced the 2015 summer and fall salmon seasons for the Columbia River. The 2015 fall salmon seasons are based on strong projected returns of 925,000 fall chinook and 540,000 coho salmon, and include a Buoy 10 fishery projected through Labor Day and increased bag limits in some upriver areas.

Highlights of the upcoming seasons include:

- Buoy 10: Retention of adult chinook (fin-clipped or not) is expected to remain open Aug. 1 through Sept. 7 (Labor Day objective).
- Warrior Rock upstream to Steamboat Landing Park/Marker No. 50: The daily bag limit may include two fall chinook (fin-clipped or not).
- Steamboat Landing Park/Marker No. 50 upstream to the Oregon/Washington border (above McNary Dam): The daily bag limit may include three fall chinook (fin-clipped or not).

As in to 2014, the "boat limit" rule will be in place from Buoy 10 upstream to the Oregon/Washington border. Anglers fishing from the same boat may continue fishing for salmon until all licensed anglers have reached their daily limits.

According to Chris Kern, Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife deputy administrator for Columbia and Marine programs, the major constraint for fall lower Columbia River fisheries is still the allowable harvest rate of Endangered Species Act-listed wild tulle chinook.

"This year, we had a little more room on allowable impact for wild tules," Kern said. "As a result, we estimate there will be six additional days of chinook fishing at Buoy 10 compared to 2014, extending the season through Labor Day. We also expect to meet all of our policy objectives and have chinook retention on the middle river through Sept. 14."

Kern also noted that given continued strong runs of upriver stocks, the three chinook bag limit in upriver areas first implemented in 2014 will continue for the 2015 season. "This will allow anglers to take advantage of the large chinook returns with little impact on wild tules," he said.

Anglers should be alert for potential in-season modifications to chinook retention rules, especially in the Buoy 10 and middle river areas. Here are the details of the 2015 Columbia River summer and fall salmon and steelhead seasons:

Summer season for chinook and sockeye

- Retention of sockeye and adipose fin-clipped adult summer chinook will be allowed:
 - June 16 – July 6 from the Astoria-Megler Bridge upstream to Bonneville Dam. Staff will monitor the fishery in-season and potentially modify the July portion of the fishery (which may include extending the season or allowing retention of any adult chinook).
 - June 16 – July 31 from Bonneville Dam upstream to the Oregon-Washington border.
 - Retention of adipose fin-clipped jack summer chinook (between 12 and 24-inches long) and adipose fin-clipped steelhead allowed June 16 – July 31 from the Astoria Bridge upstream to the OR/WA border.
 - The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids and five jacks. All sockeye are considered adults in the daily limit and must be recorded as adults on the combined angling tag.
- All other permanent rules apply.

Fall seasons Buoy 10

- Area definition: From the Buoy 10 line upstream to a line projected from Rocky Point on the Washington shore through red buoy No. 44 to red marker No. 2 at Tongue Point on the Oregon shore.
- Aug. 1 – Dec. 31: Retention of adipose fin-clipped coho (16-inches or longer) and adipose fin-clipped steelhead allowed.

- Aug. 1 – Sept. 7: Retention of chinook (24-inches or longer, fin-clipped or not) is allowed. The daily bag limit is two salmonids, only one of which may be a chinook.
- Sept. 8 – 30: Retention of all chinook is prohibited. The daily bag limit is two salmonids (adipose fin-clipped coho/steelhead only).
- Oct. 1 – Dec. 31: Retention of chinook (fin-clipped or not) is allowed. The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids.
- Chinook jacks (fin-clipped or not) and adipose fin-clipped coho jacks may only be retained Oct. 1 – Dec. 31 under permanent rules. The daily bag limit for jack salmon in Oregon is five fish.
- All other permanent rules apply.

Lower Columbia

- Area definition: From a line projected from Rocky Point on the Washington shore through red buoy No. 44 to the red marker No. 2 at Tongue Point on the Oregon shore upstream to a line projected from the Warrior Rock Lighthouse on the Oregon shore through red buoy No. 4 to a marker on the lower end of Bachelor Island.

- Aug. 1 – Dec. 31: Retention of adipose fin-clipped adult coho and adipose fin-clipped steelhead allowed.
- Aug. 1 – Sept. 7: Retention of adult chinook (fin-clipped or not) is allowed. The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids, only one of which may be a chinook. The daily bag limit for jack salmon in Oregon is five fish.
- Sept. 8 – 14: Retention of adipose fin-clipped adult chinook is allowed. The daily adult bag limit is two salmonids, only one of which may be a chinook. The daily bag limit for jack salmon in Oregon is five fish.
- Sept. 15 – 30: Retention of all chinook is prohibited. The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids (adipose fin-clipped coho/steelhead only).

• Oct. 1 – Dec. 31: Retention of adult chinook (fin-clipped or not) is allowed. The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids. The daily bag limit for jack salmon in Oregon is five fish.

- Area definition: From a line projected from the Warrior Rock Lighthouse on the Oregon shore through red buoy No. 4 to a marker on the lower end of Bachelor Island upstream to a line projected from the most downstream point on the Steamboat Landing Park (100 S. Washougal River Road) dock on the Washington shore through navigation light No. 50 to the Oregon shore. Angling from the Steamboat Landing Park dock is not included in this fishing area.
- Aug. 1 – Dec. 31: Retention of adult chinook (fin-clipped or not), adipose fin-clipped adult coho, and adipose fin-clipped steelhead allowed. The daily bag limit is two adult salmonids. The daily bag limit for jack salmon in Oregon is five fish.

Man injured in Warrenton fire

House, contents determined a total loss

WARRENTON — One man was injured in a structure fire Monday that resulted in a total loss of a manufactured home and its contents.

At about 1:54 p.m., Gearhart Volunteer Fire Department was called to a fire at 89103 Short Road in Warrenton, near the Gearhart city limits. It was a fully involved structure fire that started in the south side of the manufactured home, owned by Cora Lee Koch, Gearhart Fire Chief Bill Eddy said.

Koch and her son, Don Fish, were inside the structure when the fire started. Koch was not injured, but Don Fish suffered burns to his back and arms.

"(Don Fish) was unable to get out in time, and his brother (Mark Fish) actually pretty much was able to grab him and carry him out the rest of the way," Eddy said.

Don Fish was taken to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Astoria and then transported to Legacy Emanuel Hospital's Burn Center in Portland.

There is one cat unaccounted for, Eddy said.

Gearhart Fire Department responded with 11 members. Warrenton Fire Department sent five members and Seaside Fire Department sent seven members. The Cannon Beach

Fire Department was moved up to Seaside.

The call was terminated at 5:38 p.m.

The trailer home was manufactured in 1987. It's assessed value is $31,000, and the contents from the home are assessed from $50,000 to $75,000, Eddy said. The house was uninsured and the family lost everything. The American Red Cross responded to the incident, but Eddy said he is unsure to what degree the agency can help the family.

The cause of the fire is under investigation, although Eddy said they "have a good idea" what happened. Fire personnel believe the cause was accidental.

Theft

At 10:38 p.m. Saturday, Astoria Police arrested George Michael Tukey, 42, Seaside, for third-degree theft and a warrant after he reportedly refused to pay an $85 tab at Merry Time Bar and Grill and walked out of the bar.

Hit-and-run

At 10:34 a.m. Sunday, Astoria Police arrested Windie Rand, 36, Estacada, for hit-and-run, giving a false report and possession of hydrocodone on the 1200 block of West Marine Drive. Rand, driving a 1996 Honda Civic, reported she was the victim of a hit-and-run, police said, but after investigation, police discovered she had struck two vehicles, a 2007 Honda Civic and a 1997 Ford Mustang.

DUII arrest

At 9:31 p.m. Saturday, Clatsop County Sheriff's Office arrested Nicholas Landwehr, 20, Astoria, for driving under the influence of intoxicants in the 41000 block of U.S. Highway 30. At 12:44 a.m. Sunday, Oregon State Police arrested Daniel James Carter, 34, Vancouver, Wash., for DUII at milepost 84 on U.S. Highway 30. An officer found Carter asleep in the driver's seat, engine running, vehicle in gear, with his foot on the brake, OSP said.

At 11:29 p.m. Friday, Oregon State Police arrested Eliot Sanchez, 21, Aloha, for DUII after he was found to be under the influence of marijuana on Northwest Ridge Road in Warrenton. Sanchez was also cited for failure to drive within lanes, possession of less than one ounce of marijuana and driving uninsured.
