$5, free for kids under 12

ILWACO, Wash. — On Saturday and Sunday, July 18 and 19, join the fun and celebrate Clamshell Railroad Days at the Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum with expanded events and old favorites.

From 1888 to 1930, the "Clamshell Railroad," begun as the Ilwaco, Railway and Navigation Co., ran along the Long Beach Peninsula and was the primary transportation link from Ilwaco in the south to Nahcotta in the north.

The railroad created a reliable route for the area's major industries: oystering, logging and cranberry farming. A tide table, not a time table, governed the railroad schedule, allowing coordination with the steamers that met the train at either end of its daily journeys.

On Saturday, museum doors open at 10 a.m. with model train layouts hosted by the Peninsula Model Railroad Club. Guests will include the Mt. Rainer N-scale club, the Portland Cascade-Z scale club, and Dean and Donna Mead's fantastic Lego train among others. Kids will love the Kids Craft Caboose.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, local railroad historian Harry Bell will give a lecture on the 1889 original Pullman-built train car, the Nahcotta. The train car will be open for tours both days.

The $5 fee includes a souvenir pin and museum entrance for two days, free for kids under 12.

The Clamshell Railroad Bus Tour runs at the museum from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, and stops include: McGowan (where participants will talk with McGowan resident historian Bill Garvin), Chinook, Megler, and Seaview. There is a $5 fee; reservations are required.

The Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum is located at 115 Lake St. S.E. For more information, call 360-642-3446.
