

Upward Bound students to give project presentations

ASTORIA — Students in the Upward Bound Summer Academy at Clatsop Community College will conduct their project presentations at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, July 30 in the auditorium of the CCC Performing Arts Center, located at 588 16th St.

This event, free to the public, enables the students to make formal presentations on what they accomplished in each of five projects completed during the academy.

The students participated in a broad range of project groups, including measuring the effectiveness of a restored wetland on the Klaskanine River; learning to grow food and cook gourmet meals; exploring ways of improving physical, spiritual, emotional and social wellness; and exploring a variety of themes in Shakespeare's plays.

Students in the academy also attended morning core classes that included math, science, foreign language and literature.

Upward Bound is a federally funded educational outreach program that motivates and supports high school students in preparing for college. In school year 2014-15 the Upward Bound Program served 71 area high school students from Astoria, Seaside and Warrenton.

Learn to create a wildlife-friendly habitat at workshop with WSU master gardeners

ILWACO, Wash. — The Washington State University Master Gardeners of Pacific County, in partnership with the Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum, are sponsoring "Creating Wildlife-Friendly Habitat," their third gardening workshop of the year, on Saturday, Aug. 1 at the museum. The intent of this joint venture is to create a Pacific County Master Gardener demonstration garden. The museum's Discovery Garden is located behind the museum's parking lot at 115 S.E. Lake St.

The workshop lecture begins at 10 a.m. Master gardeners will speak about native pollinators, creating a pollinator garden, beneficial insects, spiders, and other mini-creators in your garden, plus methods to attract and keep beneficial insects and how to certify your garden as a wildlife habitat.

After the workshop, there will be a work party to spruce up the Discovery Garden. Stop by the museum garden to see the third self-watering container planter.

If you have plant problems or questions, ask a master gardener. The group will be sponsoring a plant clinic from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the museum. If possible, bring samples of your plant problem.

The workshop and plant clinic are free and open to the public.

Gardeners will also be selling native plants in 1-gallon and 2-gallon pots. They have on hand ocean spray and serviceberry in limited quantities.
