

The American-style Duck Dive Pale Ale was the first beer from Bill's to command attention, by taking a first in Colorado's Great American Beer Festival. Ken Campbell's favorite is the Pacific Kölsch, a crisp straw-colored beer in the style of Cologne, and there are plenty of other options. Foggy Notion Weissbier is a pleasing beer in the hefeweizen style, and there's the deeply flavored 2x4 Stout, the American Bilsner, and the hoppy Evil Twin IPA. Asa's Premium Blond, Rudy's Red and Blackberry Beauty are often on the list; in fact, there's a beer for almost any taste.

You don't go to a brewpub just for the beer, of course, and Bill's continues the tradition that began in 1923: good, basic food in a congenial atmosphere. For years the tavern has been famous for the hamburgers, and if you order cheese, you get a thick slice of Tillamook cheddar. You'll also find fish burgers and oyster burgers, as well as excellent fish and chips. Onion rings, oyster shooters or jalapeno poppers can start your lunch, and there are good chowder, salads, sandwiches, and kids meals. If you're there for dinner, try the seafood medley.

The one drawback to Bill's is that during the summer it can be crowded, but when it's 100 degrees in Portland and there's a great brewpub in Cannon Beach, what did you expect? Relax. Try a beer sampler while you're waiting for your food. Order a beer. Enjoy conversation. Watch the fog roll in. This is the Oregon coast, after all.
