

Zauner named to executive post at Providence Seaside

The Daily Astorian

SEASIDE — Janiece Zauner has been named chief operating officer and chief nursing officer for Providence Seaside Hospital after serving in this position on an interim basis since April.

“I’m pleased that Janiece accepted this position,” said Janice Burger, chief executive of Providence’s Oregon Western Division.

Zauner has held many roles since starting work with Providence in 1992. She has been a nurse manager, business and project manager at Providence Portland

Medical Center and as regional director for clinical operations, before taking on her role at Providence Seaside.

While at Providence Portland, Zauner played a part in the implementation and rollout of the Releasing Time to Care standards project, in collaboration with Care Oregon and several other local hospitals.

Zauner holds a Master of Science in nursing, is a member of Sigma Theta Tau, which is the national Honor Society of Nursing, and is board certified as a nurse executive.

Strong waves coming to Oregon Coast

The Daily Astorian

The National Weather Service has issued a weather warning for cities on the north Oregon Coast, including Astoria, Cannon Beach, Seaside and other coastal communities, because of the potential for strong waves.

The weather service is forecasting hazardous beach conditions this weekend due to the remnants from Hurricane Oho.

The primary concern will be an unusually high and long period of southwest ocean swell, giving the potential to create breaking waves over jetties along with beaches and heads facing south. The waves may also result in beach erosion across areas that don’t commonly see impacts from wave action.

The dominant southwest waves will gradually shift to a significant westerly swell later in the weekend. This will also bring beach hazards as breaking waves will advance farther up the shoreline than normal.

Visitors to the coast should remain out of the surf zone and off jetties this weekend. Breaking waves will vary greatly in size and could easily sweep people into the water. Waves have the potential to roll driftwood logs and trap people underneath. Mariners will likely encounter unusual hazards this weekend.

A creepy cemetery scene took over the Sunset Empire Park & Recreation District’s Youth Center during the annual Thriller haunted house event last year, one of Seaside’s signature Halloween happenings.

Kids are invited to break out their costumes a week early. The Sunset Empire Park & Recreation District is giving the community a jump-start on celebrating Halloween with the annual Sunset Thriller and Fall Fun Fest on Oct. 24.

The thriller will take over the Sunset Pool and Seaside Youth Center from 6 to 9 p.m. with scenes involving zombies, creepy clowns, a mad doctor’s laboratory and Dracula’s living room, among others.

Dozens of volunteers, primarily high school students, will dress in costumes to play roles in the scary scenes. Additionally, the students will assist in handing out fliers prior to the event and setting up and tearing down sets the day of the event.

“They’re a super, super important part of this,” said Grace Smith, the district’s fitness and special events coordinator.

At the nearby Broadway Middle School’s cafeteria, the carnival begins at 5 p.m. with games, activities, a cake-walk and costume contest. The contest will be judged at 7 p.m. during the carnival and includes five age categories: children up to age 3; 4- to 6-year-olds; 7- to 9-year-olds; 10- to 12-year-olds; and 13-year-olds and older. A themed backdrop will be set up at the cafeteria for families to use in taking photos.

Smith said both the carnival and the thriller will be “pretty much the same format” as previous years. Last year, the district moved the annual event to the Saturday before Halloween, instead of the holiday itself. The date change seemed to work well — about 600 people attended, although the district received mixed reviews — so the district decided to keep it the Saturday before Halloween again this year, Smith said.

“On actual Halloween, people often want to go trick-or-treating or do things as a family,” she said.

Also, holding the event the Saturday before Halloween makes it easier to get volunteer help.

The cost is $2 per person or two cans of food, to be donated to the South Clatsop County Food Bank. A ticket gets patrons into both events and may be purchased at either location.

Sunset Pool will be closed Oct. 24 so staff can prepare. For more information, call 503-738-3311 or visit www.sunsetempire.com.
