Q Why should I care if my weed is organic?

A In addition to preventing unwanted "grow chemicals" in your body, organic cannabis also offers improved yield, increased potency, improved flavor and aroma, richer microbiome and a lighter environmental impact! These are all good reasons why you should demand that your cannabis be organic!

Cotton Candy Kush

Strain- Hybrid

Strain Highlights- Whether it's the usual weekday lunch break or the end of a particularly long Monday, this is great smoke. Long-lasting euphoria keeps spirits up, while soothing indica genes seek out areas of tense, sore muscles. With the relaxing effects cushioned by a positive mindset, this strain eliminates feeling out of control of one's responsibilities and permits serene reflection.

Mango

Strain- Indica

Strain Highlights- For most users, this strain kicks in immediately, producing both strong body and mind effects. Many also find that this strain makes them more open and talkative. Occasionally, it can cause 'the giggles,' especially with higher doses. It is a classic 'munchies' strain, and many patients use it to calm nausea and induce appetite. This strain may also cause drowsiness, usually starting halfway through the duration of the high. It can work wonders on chronic aches and pains, especially joint pain.

Jaeger

Strain- Indica

Strain Highlights- Jaeger or Jagermeister is an indica-dominant strain named after the tinge of black licorice in its aroma. As stupefying as its name makes it out to be, its full-body effects are better described as relaxing than sedating.
