Wildlife center director talks in Cannon Beach World of Haystack Rock hosts Joshua Saranpaa, bird ambassador

CANNON BEACH — The Friends of Haystack Rock will present the next World of Haystack Rock lecture at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13 at the Cannon Beach Library, located at 131 N. Hemlock St.

New Wildlife Center of the North Coast Director Joshua Saranpaa will give the talk "A Sanctuary for Oregon's Seabirds."

Saranpaa will describe the mission of the wildlife center, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, and the wildlife rehabilitation that the center conducts.

He plans to bring at least one bird ambassador from the wildlife center, depending on circumstances: a northern fulmar, a rhinoceros auklet, a common murre, a double crested cormorant, and/or a special non-seabird, an American kestrel falcon. Saranpaa will discuss the natural history of the ambassador birds and common threats to these species (i.e. plastic pollution, fishing lines, warming ocean conditions, extreme predation, etc.).

At the end of the talk, the audience will be able to get a closer look at the bird(s) and the other display items. There will be time for questions.

Saranpaa first started volunteering at the Wildlife Center of the North Coast at age 16. A third generation Astorian, Saranpaa graduated Astoria High School in 2010. He pursued a degree at Clatsop Friends of Haystack Rock supports the Haystack Rock Awareness Program in cooperation with the city of Cannon Beach, promoting the preservation and protection of the intertidal life and birds that inhabit the Marine Garden and the Oregon Islands National Wildlife Refuge at Haystack Rock.

The World of Haystack Rock lectures take place the second Wednesday of each month from November to April. The schedule of the remaining talks for the 2015-16 season are:

- Feb. 10: Debbie Duffield, of Oregon State University, will give the talk "Marine Mammals, the Marine Mammal Stranding Network and Marine Reserves";

- March 9: Ecological consultant, biologist and AHS retired teacher Mike Patterson will give the talk "Birds of the Pacific Northwest"

- April 13: Educator and wildlife photographer Neal Maine will give the talk "It's Not Just A Beach: Rethinking the Beaches."
