“It was so nice to be able to walk from the reception to our room at the Cannery Pier Hotel.”

The photography commenced along the Astoria waterfront an hour before the wedding. Jenkison and an assistant had scoped out various locations, and they began taking pictures at the Sixth Street viewing platform, where Michelle had decided Matthew would first meet her in her wedding gown. After the wedding there were a few formal photographs, and the rest of the evening was devoted to candid photography, with a few minutes at sunset to take the couple outside to take advantage of the light.

After the cake was cut and the reception was winding down, the couple took leave of their guests. “It was so nice,” Michelle says, “to be able to walk from the reception to our room at the Cannery Pier Hotel.

How had their day been? “I wouldn’t change a thing,” says the bride. ■
