Black 84 Strain- Indica

Strain Highlights- Black '84, also known as UW Black '84, is one of a few elusive strains that managed to escape from the medical cannabis garden at the University of Washington in the early and mid-1980s. Believed to descend from Afghani genetics, Black '84's has a complex aroma that is mix of sweet tropical flavors on the inhale blended with a smooth hazelnut-toffee finish on the exhale. This strain generates a pleasant, relaxed body high thanks to its indica-dominant genes (sativa/indica ratio of no more than 30:70). The high is good for treating anxiety, nausea, chronic physical pain, and insomnia.

White Rhino Strain- Indica

Strain Highlights- White Rhino is a hybrid of White Widow and an unknown North American indica strain. The buds give off a strong and heady high. A very potent strain that will last for a good few hours. White Rhino is a heavy smoke with heavy sedation, yet it's cerebral and uplifting all at the same time. This is a strain that you must try at least once in your lifetime. One of the original exotic strains!

Mango

Strain- Indica

Strain Highlights- For most users, this strain kicks in immediately, producing both strong body and mind effects. Many also find that this strain makes them more open and talkative. Occasionally, it can cause 'the giggles,' especially with higher doses. It is a classic 'munchies' strain, and many patients use it to calm nausea and induce appetite. This strain may also cause drowsiness, usually starting halfway through the duration of the high. It can work wonders on chronic aches and pains, especially joint pain.
