A drone photo captures the scene at the Ilwaco (Wash.) Cemetery, where heavy rain caused a landslide two weeks ago.

EO Media Group

ILWACO, Wash. — As volunteers and Ilwaco officials continue considering how to address a landslide eating away the edge of the city's historic cemetery, aerial photographer Bob Duke sent his drone aloft to provide an eagle's eye view of the problem.

Although only one gravesite was lost in the initial slide that followed torrential rain two weeks ago, others are close to the unstable area.

A reporter who visited the scene Jan. 28 morning saw little evidence of additional damage as a result of heavy rain a day earlier, but noted a zone close to the edge that appeared to be sinking.

Feds bolster security at wildlife preserves

By TERRENCE PETTY Associated Press

PORTLAND government has beefed up security at national wildlife refuges in states south of Oregon as an armed standoff over federal land policy has created tensions in the region and shows no sign of ending

Additional security officers were sent to preserves in southern Oregon, Northern California and Nevada as four occupiers remain holed up at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge and say they will not leave without assurances they won't be arrested.

"No specific threats or incidents have occurred, but we remain vigilant to ensure employee and visitor safety

Molly Young/The Oregonian

A sign is displayed with the picture of LaVoy Finicum as part of the demonstrations outside the Harney County Courthouse in Burns, Monday. Hundreds gathered to protest and support the armed occupation of a national wildlife preserve.

to-based regional spokeswoman for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said in an email Wednesday.

The additional security Sacramen- Klamath Basin National Wildlife Refuge Complex, which straddles the Oregon-California border; Ash Meadows National Wildlife Refuge in Nevada; and Modoc National month, he repeatedly has called throughout the region," Jody measures are in place at the Wildlife Refuge in Northern on the holdouts to go home to California.

As the holdouts drag out the occupation, a federal grand jury indicted standoff leader Ammon Bundy and 10 others who have already been arrested. Assistant U.S. Attorney Geoff Barrow said Wednesday that the indictment also includes "others," perhaps a reference to the remaining occupiers.

The 11 face a conspiracy charge of using intimidation to prevent federal officers from doing their work at the refuge, which is in a sparsely populated area of southeastern Oregon.

The occupation began Jan. 2. with Bundy and his followers demanding the federal government turn public lands over to local control. After his arrest during a traffic stop late last avoid bloodshed.

Holidays buoy employment rates in NW Oregon

Increase during December, according to Oregon Employment Department

The Daily Astorian

Seasonally adjusted unemployment rates fell amid the holiday rush late last year, according to releases Tuesday by the Oregon Employment Department.

Clatsop County's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in December was 5.3 percent, down one-fifth of a percent from November. and three-quarters of a percent from a year ago. Clatsop County had the ninth-lowest unemployment rate of any county in Oregon. The county averaged more unemployment than the U.S. (5 percent) but slightly less than Oregon (5.4 percent).

In December, the county shed 280 jobs, 110 more than expected. That left seasonally adjusted nonfarm payroll employment at 17,740, 460 more than last year for a growth rate of 2.8 percent.

The private sector dropped all 280 jobs in December. Leisure and hospitality cut 150 jobs and food manufacturing 70. Both professional and business services and educational and health benefits trimmed 30 positions.

Industries adding the most jobs over the last year included retail trade (210), leisure and hospitality (80), educational and health services (60) and construction (60). Paper manufacturing cut 40 jobs over the year.

In Columbia County, seasonally adjusted unemployment in December was 6.8 percent, down three-fifths of a percent from November and I percent from a year ago. The county lost 110 jobs in December, 20 more than expected. The change left nonfarm payroll employment for December at 10,310, 220 more than last year for a growth rate of 2.2 percent.

December's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 5.6 percent, down one-fifth of a percent from November and down seven-tenths of a percent from a year ago. The county lost 110 jobs, 70 fewer than expected. The change left seasonally adjusted nonfarm payroll employment at 9,020 in December, 420 more than last year for a growth rate of 5 percent.

In Tillamook County,

The Oregon Employment Department will release the next round of county unemployment data March 8. For more in-depth employment data, visit www.qualityinfo.org

Coast Guard stations in Newport and South Carolina to stay open until 2018

The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — U.S. Coast Guard helicopter search-and-rescue stations on the Oregon and South Carolina coasts will remain open at least until 2018.

The Post and Courier of Charleston reports that language keeping the stations open is included in an authorization bill that cleared Congress this week and was sent to the president.

Lindsey Graham and Tim Scott, worked with Oregon's Democratic U.S. senators. Ron Wyden and Jeff Merkley, to keep the facilities open.

The South Carolina rescue station is located near Charleston, while the Oregon facility is in Newport.

Lawmakers in both states were successful in December 2014 in their efforts to keep the facilities open until this year. At the time the Coast South Carolina's two Guard proposed shutting Republican U.S. senators, them down to save money.
