

Gearhart FIRST SATURDAY

ART WALK

March 5
2 to 5 p.m.

GEARHART — Spring is in the air, and it's the beginning of a new Gearhart ArtWalk year. Organizers are looking forward to building upon this event throughout the coming year. More art walk venues will participate in the coming months. The next Gearhart ArtWalk will be from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 5.

A Great Gallery

576 Pacific Way

Susan Thomas, pastel artist and gallery owner, will be working on one of her favorite subjects, shore birds. There will be a drawing for an 11-by-14-inch matted print and a pair of earrings (your choice) by D.M. Designs, who will feature spring selections in sky blues, pinks and natural greens. Thomas will continue her dark chocolates along with other refreshments.

Trails End Art Association

656 A St.

The artists of Trail's End Art Association will help you welcome an early spring to the North Coast with the show "Welcome Spring!" All creations will focus on the special joy of this season: new life, pastel colors, images that create happy feelings to see and own. Many members working in a variety of media will contribute. Savor refreshments while chatting with others and enjoying the gallery. Works on display will include the lively photography of Richard Newman. Jane McGeehan's traditional watercolor work focuses on garden scenes.

Astoria Public Library holds soup night

Author Stuckey will share stories and soup March 9

ASTORIA — Maggie Stuckey, author of "Soup Night: Recipes for Creating Community Around a Pot of Soup," will speak at the Astoria Public Library at 6 p.m. Wednesday, March 9. Enjoy sampling homemade soup while Stuckey shares stories of neighborhood Soup Nights and offers tips to aspiring writers. Admission is free.

Stuckey will discuss ways to bring community soup night to your neighborhood. She will share her secrets to creating delicious soup perfect for sharing with neighbors, friends and families and discuss the dynamics and rewards of hosting your own soup night. Signed copies of "Soup Night" will be available.

Soup brings people together. And when neighbors share, they get to know each other in new ways. In "Soup Night," Stuckey shares 99 recipes for soup and 40 more recipes for accompaniments, most contributed by the groups described in the book. In addition to providing recipes, the book profiles soup nights established in urban centers, churches and community centers, and offers cooking tips and organizational hints.

Stuckey is the author of 11 nonfiction books, mostly about gardening or cooking.

For more information, call 503-325-7323.

Author Douglas Deur to speak at Ilwaco heritage museum

ILWACO, Wash. — The Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum will hold its annual meeting at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 5 and will feature author Douglas Deur to celebrate his most recent publication "Empires of the Turning Tide."

Published by the National Parks Service, Deur's book illuminates the history of the many people who have called this region home and their relationship with the landscape, waters and natural resources that continue to set the Columbia-Pacific region apart.

Douglas Deur

The museum is honored to have been approached by the Lewis and Clark National and State Historical Parks as the site for the kickoff celebration of Doug Deur's important publication," said Betsy Millard, museum director. "By combining a deep understanding of the region with his approachable writing style, Deur has created a resource not just for scholars but all those interested in the rich history of our area."

Author of several books, including "Pacific Northwest Foraging," Deur is a cultural geographer serving as a research professor at Portland

State University and an adjunct professor in the University of Victoria (BC) School of Environmental Studies. Known for his studies of Native American land and resource traditions, Deur has also worked with the environmental and cultural histories of national parks in the America West.

The Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum is located at 115 S.E. Lake St. For more information, call 360-642-3446.
