High winds expected Friday

The Daily Astorian

A high wind watch is in effect from Friday afternoon through late Friday for the North Coast and southwest Washington coast, according to the National Weather Service.

Winds will be south to southwest 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 60 mph. The strongest winds will be on the beaches and headlands.

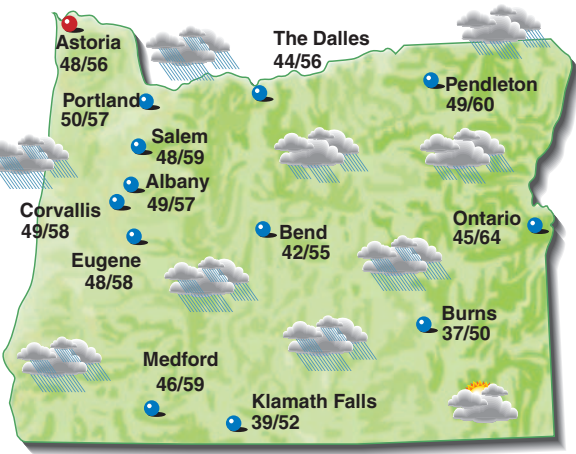

The winds will likely cause travel difficulties along the coast, especially for high-profile vehicles such as trucks and vehicles pulling trailers. Damage to trees and power disruptions may occur.

Astoria woman found dead from possible hit-and-run in Boring

The Daily Astorian

A 38-year-old Astoria woman was found dead on the side of the road Thursday in Boring from an apparent hit-and-run, according to the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office.

Officers found Katherine Rusk at about 6:45 a.m. on SE 282nd Avenue near SE Haley Road.

Members of the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office Homicide and Violent Crimes Unit and the Criminal Reconstruction and Forensics Team are working with the Clackamas County Medical Examiner to investigate the death.

Investigators continue to seek tips that can help understand and possibly make an arrest in Rusk's death.

Investigators want to hear from anyone with information about Rusk and her death, and also about vehicles in the area in the past 24 hours — as well as any vehicles with fresh unexplained damage that could be the result of a hit-and-run.

Anyone with information is urged to contact the sheriff's office at 503-723-4949 or by using the online email form: web3.clackamas.us/contact/tip.jsp.

Rio Cafe to close after two-decade run

By EDWARD STRATTON
The Daily Astorian

After nearly a quarter century of serving up Mexican food, the Rio Cafe will close March 19.

Owner Julie Hemeon said she was getting out of the restaurant business to enjoy time with her family and explore new opportunities.

"I'm happy," she said. "I'm not sad at all about this. I just turned 50 this year, and I've worked here 22 years, almost half my life."

Sara Chacon opened the Rio Cafe 23 years ago. Hemeon started working there within six months of the opening, and 10 years ago bought the restaurant from Chacon. Five years ago, she added the Rio Cantina next door, which she said has been even more successful than the restaurant.

While she has enjoyed the customers, Hemeon said it has been stressful running a restaurant, and more competitive with the proliferation of breweries and other restaurants.

"My lease was up, and I don't have the energy to move it or make it smaller," Hemeon said. "There's a lot of competition. I think there's been 14 new restaurants since I've took over."

With a new grandchild and a son in his senior year at Astoria High School, Hemeon said she is ready to spend some time with her family and enjoy having the weekend off, maybe putting out a cookbook of recipes from the Rio Cafe sometime in the future. A fourth-generation Astorian, Hemeon said she has no plans of leaving town. Even with several job offers, Hemeon said she isn't looking for a new position immediately. Her husband, Josh Hemeon, is a contractor.

On March 19, the Rio Cafe will hold a closing party.
