Making art with trash is what this show is about

NEHALEM — It's never too soon to start. Get out your cool junk — it's time to make trash art.

CARTM's annual Trash Art Show is all about working with that irresistibly interesting stuff you've been collecting and wanting to create something with.

All the rules are made to be broken when creating trash art. From beautiful mosaics made from broken dishes, to kinetic sculpture created with broken lawn mower parts — everything is fair game.

The Trash Art Show is a unique, local tradition and creative fundraiser for CARTM. The 2016 event, the 18th annual Trash Art Show, will be at the Gallery at North County Recreation District, the show's new permanent location in Nehalem, with lots of open and well-lit space for art, and plenty of parking for art lovers.

Artists may submit up to three pieces of work for the show. There is no entry fee and the only stipulations are that all artwork must be created with recycled, repurposed or reused materials and must fit through a standard-size door.

The work must be for sale. Sales receipts are split evenly between the artist(s) and CARTM.

Submit work to the Gallery at the North County Recreation District, 36155 9th St. in Nehalem, between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 11. Each submitted piece must have a title and be ready to hang or display.

For more information, contact trashartshow@cartm.org

CARTM, www.cartm.org, is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization and is a registered partner with the Oregon Cultural Trust.
