

Hear cosmic country songs in Long Beach

SEAVIEW and LONG BEACH Wash. — Seattle-based band Evening Bell is coming to the Long Beach Peninsula on a Spring Break Tour. First, the band will perform at 8 p.m. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 10, 11 and 12 at the Adrift Hotel. Then, the Sou'Wester Lodge will host a performance at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 13. Evening Bell's dark and haunting songs have all of the passion and tragedy of a broken howl under the high desert moonrise.

Part Western psychedelia, part Northwest rock 'n' roll, Evening Bell is the new collaboration between songwriters Hart Kingsbery (Davidson Hart Kingsbery) and Caitlin Sherman (Slow Skate).

The duo quickly became a full band with Jason Mercurief on drums, followed shortly by Aaron Harmonson on bass, and newest addition Olie Eshleman on pedal steel.

The group has recently shared the stage with established roots acts such as Ha Ha Tonka, La Luz, Barna Howard, Banditos, Howe Gelb, Jessica Lea Mayfield, The Moondoggies and Alela Dianne.

ga periods. The collection of "wearable art" includes vintage Japanese silk haori; creations in Tencel by Barbara Hall; painted silks by Kavita; and hand-made flora-dyed silk scarves by local artist Brianna Lichnovsky.

12. La Luna Loca

382 12 St.

See the photography of Briony Staley. Growing up in the subtropical rainforests of Eastern Australia, Staley developed a deep connection to the natural world. Capturing life through her lens ignited her creativity from a young age. Coming to Oregon has continued to inspire her. Staley has fallen in love with the misty forests, mountains and rugged coastlines. Her photography collection is composed of moments in nature that speak to her spirit.

13. Hygge Hair Co.

119 11th St.

See jewelry by local artist Jason Hall. The artist creates jewelry made of exotic materials such as rosemary, purple heart and ebony. A resident of Astoria for 18 years, Hall began creating jewelry as a gift to his wife and was inspired to keep designing wearable art.

LeBrie Rich will show new collages and mosaics. Rich's figure-ground compositions are populated with dynamic forms and skirt the border between abstract and representational. The works incorporate a variety of papers, hand-made and mass-produced, that Rich collected in Japan, along with painted gouache papers that the artist makes. During visits to Japan, Rich was affected equally by the ancient aesthetic of Japanese gardens, tea houses and textiles, and contemporary Japanese design and culture found in consumer goods and typography. These influences are palpable in her playful collages and mosaics.
