

Duck football stars hit local golf course

By GARY HENLEY
The Daily Astorian

WARRENTON — Ducks were on the Beach, in the air, on the golf course, in the clubhouse ... there were Ducks, Ducks everywhere Friday afternoon, with a high concentration at the Astoria Golf & Country Club.

And some pretty high-profile Ducks: Among others, Mike Bellotti, Chris Miller, Alex Molden, Max Unger ... and a host of alumni interested in raising money for the University of Oregon, by way of a little golf.

The Oregon Boosters Association and organizer Tim Regan staged the seventh annual 'Ducks at the Beach' gathering, a yearly fund-raising event for the University of Oregon, held at the Astoria Country Club.

It's just one day and one round of golf, but it's one more way the university reaches out to different parts of the state — to show that the Ducks do indeed care about the North Coast, and the local Duck fans and supporters care about them.

"There's great people here, great fans of the Ducks, and they bring back a lot of my former players for the golf," said Bellotti, playing in his seventh Ducks at the Beach event.

"It's neat to be able to connect with my former players, to see how they've done and what they're doing with their lives, and visit with people who have become friends."

After a 1 p.m. Shotgun Start for the golf, there was a cocktail hour, silent auction, banquet dinner and a short live auction.

"I think I've been to every single one ... I think I may be the only person that's been to every single one," said Bellotti,

The Oregon Duck mascot — Puddles — was up to his usual shenanigans, such as blowing an air horn during a tee shot.

Former Oregon football coach and current ESPN commentator Mike Bellotti was taking part in his seventh 'Ducks at the Beach' tournament.

who endured a pretournament rain shower, along with the other golfers.

"As long as it's not blowing sideways and raining at the same time," he said. "And the sun is going to shine today. I'll guarantee that, because even though it may rain occasionally in Autzen Stadium, it never rains at this tournament."

The tournament is a plus for all involved, benefits the university and "it's a chance to get Ducks together and celebrate all the victories, whether it's on the golf course, the basketball arena, the football field, or any of the sports."

Other Ducks seen on the course were Ryan DePalo (2004-07), Brent Haberly (2005-06), Rasuli Webster (1999-2002) and Cole Linehan (2005-08) — who will return to the North Coast next fall, as the new varsity football coach at Banks.

Also on hand was Puddles, the Duck mascot, playing his pranks (blowing an air horn in the middle of tee shots), and always good for selfies.

Unger (2005-08) is a former Duck as well as a Seattle Seahawk, now entering his second season with the New Orleans Saints.

"I'm logging more airline miles in the off-season now, but it's worth it," said Unger, who was playing in his second Ducks at the Beach. "I'm spending time between New Orleans, the Northwest and back home in Hawaii."

Bellotti will soon return to work as a commentator for ESPN, "probably doing games and some studio, a combination package," he said. "I have not done games on a regular basis for the last four years, so I'm excited about getting back to doing a game every weekend."

And the former Oregon coach — with 116 career wins (most in Duck history) from 1995 to 2008 — gave his take on Duck Football, 2016.

"They played one bad game last year against Utah, and one bad half of football against TCU," he said. "It depends a lot on Dakota Prukop (transfer from Montana State), and how that quarterback situation works out, and how Brady Hoke's defense comes to the plate. But I think the Ducks are an elite football program with an elite team.

"I see them probably exceeding the 8 1/2 wins that most of the prognosticators say. I think they have the potential to win nine or 10."
