

Sturgell advances in Women's division of Coast Invitational

The Daily Astorian

WARRENTON — Golfers in the Women's, Seniors and Super Senior divisions took center stage Tuesday, on the second day of match play in the 106th annual Oregon Coast Invitational.

Three-time champion Amanda Jacobs is looking for title No. 4, and will have her hands full, if Tuesday's competition is any indication.

A few of the featured match-ups in the Women's division included Molly Edmunds vs. Dotty Johnson; Ali Battaglia vs. Cheryl Wessell; sisters Cappy Mack against Nikki Mack; and Katie Sturgell had a successful start to her 2016 tournament, with a win over Mary Swingle in the championship flight.

Sturgell highlighted her round with an approach shot on the ninth hole, a shot from 104 yards that just missed, rimming in and around the cup. The birdie put her 1-up at the turn, on her way to the victory.

Action continues today with play in the Grand Champions, Junior Seniors and Super Seniors divisions.

Match-ups in the championship flight of the Grand Champions include Riley Elmes vs. John DeLong (1:34 p.m. tee time); Taylor Swingle vs. Mike Swingle (1:42 p.m.); Astoria's Jeff Canessa vs. Mike Fritz (1:42 p.m.) and Jay Ross vs. Chris Shepard (1:50 p.m.).

Ferry: 'She's been gone a long time'

They had anticipated the ferry arriving as early as this afternoon, but inclement weather has so far thwarted those plans and forced Lint to remain at Port Townsend, Washington.

When the ferry does arrive, "hopefully, we can drum up enough people that want to come down and see the ferry for the first time after 50 years," Dulcye Taylor, vice chairwoman of The Astoria Ferry board, said.

Community asset

News of the ferry's imminent return comes after a year-long effort to bring the Tourist No. 2 home.

In mid-2015, Robert "Jake" Jacob, majority owner of the Cannery Pier Hotel, learned that the 92-year-old ferry — which had been rechristened "MV Kirkland" — was moored in Bremerton, Washington. He and Lint decided that the Tourist No. 2 belonged in its birthplace.

The project leaders originally expected to welcome it back last summer, but coordinating the haul-out and scheduling the inspections and repairs proved more complicated than they had predicted.

In the meantime, the group worked to raise funds and gather community support.

The nonprofit, which recently placed a $15,000 deposit on the ferry, plans to buy the Tourist No. 2 from Lint on contract.

Andrea Perez, a board member, said the group is expanding to include more volunteers who will act as docents. In addition, they are putting together an online fundraising platform.

Eventually, they hope to convert the ferry into a community asset that, like the Astoria Riverfront Trolley, will offer rides to locals and visitors, and provide a venue for private parties.

"Who'd (have) thought that 90 years later the original wooden Ferry Boat would come back to town," Jacob wrote in a message. "It is an amazing opportunity for Astoria to bring it back!"

'Sweet old boat'

The three-deck, wooden-hull watercraft — which replaced the Tourist No. 1 — is the last surviving Astoria ferry, one of several that operated on the river during the 20th century, until the Astoria Bridge rendered ferry service obsolete half a century ago.

Ron Stidham, an Olney resident who worked on the ferries, including Tourist No. 2, from 1956 to 1966, hopes to be there when it appears.

"I've seen just a few small photos of it, and I'm intrigued as to what they've done," he said.

He expects that seeing the ferry again will feel like reuniting with an long-lost friend.

"She's a sweet old boat, handled the best of any of them here," he said. "It's going to be something to see. She's been gone a long time."

Seahawks, coach Carroll agree to contract extension

By TIM BOOTH

RENTON, Wash. — The Seattle Seahawks and coach Pete Carroll have agreed on a contract extension, keeping the oldest head coach in the NFL locked up beyond the 2016 season.

Team owner Paul Allen tweeted confirmation of Carroll's deal on Tuesday.

The move with the 64-year-old Carroll came just two days after the team locked up general manager John Schneider to a contract extension.

Both Carroll's and Schneider's current deals were set to expire after the 2016 season, but the tandem pairing that has brought the Seahawks unrivaled success in their franchise history will be teamed together for another few seasons.

Carroll is 60-36 in the regular season since becoming Seattle's head coach in 2010. He's taken the Seahawks to the playoffs in five of six seasons, including two Super Bowl appearances and the only title in franchise history.

Carroll's deal was first reported by ESPN and said the extension goes through the 2019 season.

Bullpen swap: Blue Jays send Stoen to Mariners for Benoit

Associated Press

TORONTO — Looking to better their bullpen, the Toronto Blue Jays have acquired Joaquin Benoit from the Seattle Mariners for fellow right-hander Drew Stoen and cash in a swap of struggling relievers.

The busy Blue Jays announced the trade Tuesday night, minutes after rallying to beat San Diego 7-6 in 12 innings. It was their second deal of the day: Hours earlier, Toronto obtained outfielder Melvin Upton Jr. and cash from the Padres for minor league right-hander Hansel Rodriguez.

Benoit, who turned 39 on Tuesday, is 1-1 with a 5.18 ERA in 26 games this season.

The 28-year-old Stoen was designated for assignment Sunday by Toronto after going 1-3 with three saves and a 6.21 ERA in 38 appearances.

Toronto is two games behind first-place Baltimore in the AL East and holds the league's top wild-card spot.
