

PARTING SHOT FROM DANNY MILLER

A weekly snapshot from The Daily Astorian and Chinook Observer photographers

Jasper Hedron, visiting from Eugene, takes a photo on his phone of the Astoria Column in July.

ODDITY

Creative Commons

The Cat in the Hat is running for president — and helping Random House sell a bunch of books.

CAT POWER

Think Trump and Clinton fall flat? Vote for Cat in the Hat

Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Voters who think presidential candidates Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton fall flat can now choose the Cat in the Hat.

The Cat announced his candidacy Tuesday in Springfield, Massachusetts, outside the childhood home of Dr. Seuss.

He also announced his running mates Thing 1 and Thing 2.

The Republican newspaper reported that the Cat said through a spokeswoman that he would be willing to release his tax returns.

The Cat's platform includes working with Red Fish and Blue Fish to address ocean conservation, working with the Lorax on the environment and working with Sam I Am to address hunger.

The event served as the official launch for the new Random House book "One Vote, Two Votes, I Vote, You Vote."

While other newspapers give you less, The Daily Astorian

GIVES YOU MORE

Our new CAPITAL BUREAU covers the state for you

From left: Mateusz Perkowski, Paris Achen

