Families urged to start saving for college early

The Daily Astorian

The Oregon College Savings Plan is offering $25 college savings accounts to families with kindergartners in Astoria, Seaside, Jewell and Warrenton-Hammond school districts as a way to kick start family planning for future educational expenses.

Families also have the chance to win $529 for an account by entering a sweepstakes. There will be one sweepstakes winner per school.

"When children know early on that their families and communities believe they can go to college, they're more likely to do so," said Michael Parker, executive director of the Oregon College Savings Plan. "By showing families how they can save for higher education, we're creating a culture that tells children, 'We believe in you. Let us help.'"

Through the Be College Ready program, families learn how to plan for future post-secondary expenses and every student will get fun school supplies. The program launched in five school districts last year. Savings plans in Clatsop County increased by 88 percent during the first year of the program, which has now expanded to 15 districts.

To sign up for the account and sweepstakes, visit www.becollegeready.net
