Things Are" by Diane Jackson and Charlotte Bruhn, featuring new acrylic paintings by Bruhn and paper mache animals by Jackson. Bruhn, a ceramic artist, explores new territory with large acrylic paintings inspired by a love of animals and a caustic life view. Jackson, a collage artist, continues her interest in paper mache with a collection of new whimsical animals, hand built and hand painted.

The menagerie art show will act as an introduction to the unveiling of Luminari Art's recent expansion, which includes a larger inventory of cards, journals, eclectic gifts, funky jewelry and outsider art. Enjoy live music and refreshments.

Charlotte Bruhn, left, and Diane Jackson will present the collaborative show "Where the Wild Things Are" at Luminari Arts, featuring paintings and paper mache animals.
