

Hear acoustic bluegrass at Fort George Brewery

ASTORIA — Fort George Brewery continues its Sunday night music offerings on Sunday, Oct. 2 with Portland-area-based band The Columbians.

The band will perform starting at 8 p.m. upstairs on the stage at the brewery.

The show is free and open to all ages. Fort George Brewery is located at 1483 Duane St.

The Columbians features Peter "Spud" Siegel on mandolin and vocals, Joel Marshall on guitar and vocals, Bill Uhlig on upright bass, and Peter Schwimmer on banjo.

The band plays a mixture of acoustic bluegrass and eclectic Americana. The group also adapts music from other genres — including reggae, blues, folk, country and rock — to the acoustic instruments played by band members.

Siegel has played in many bluegrass bands and band of other genres, including the Muddy Bottom Boys, the Jim Kweskin Jug Band, and both he and Marshall have played with Cannon Beach-based band The Floating Glass Balls.

Blues and R&B revue set for Astoria Event Center

ASTORIA — A night of non-stop music, dancing and a buffet dinner await Saturday, Oct. 1 at the Astoria Event Center, located at 255 Ninth St.

Doors open at 6 p.m., and there will be door prizes and giveaways. The buffet dinner starts at 6:15 p.m., complete with salad and appetizer bars. Then, the concert starts at 7 p.m., featuring music by some of the North Coast's finest musicians.

The musical revue will be emceed by congenial host Tory Hunt of Troy & Company. Once the show starts, there will be non-stop music with no big breaks between sets.

Groove along to the tunes of concert music director and guitar slinger Richard Thomasian, who has been playing music up and down the West Coast for over 40 years. He has focused on jazz but also enjoys blues, rock, funk, country, folk and reggae, and he's played in and led bands in many of these genres.

Maggie Kitson of Maggie and Kats will also perform. Kitson started singing the blues in New Orleans and hasn't stopped since. She's performed in the Bond Street Blues Band
