

Craft3 gets federal support

The Daily Astorian

Local nonprofit lender Craft3 has received some major federal support for its efforts.

U.S. Rep. Suzanne Bonamici, D-Oregon, and U.S. Rep. Jaime Herrera Beutler, R-Washington, announced a $750,000 grant from the Community Development Financial Institutions Fund, a program of the U.S. Department of the Treasury, to help Craft3 support local businesses.

"Businesses in Northwest Oregon and throughout the region are growing, but it takes resources and capital for them to expand and thrive," Bonamici said in a release. "This investment from the U.S. Department of the Treasury will help Craft3 continue to make business loans in our area, which adds jobs and boosts economic development."

"As a trusted community financial institution, Craft3 has invested close to $400 million in area businesses, creating or retaining almost 11,500 jobs. This grant will support their efforts to make our economy more vibrant and resilient."

Craft3, started along the Lower Columbia River in 1994 by the late John Berdes, has grown to eight locations across Oregon and Washington state. Adam Zimmerman, president and CEO of Craft3, said in the release the grant would help the lender continue building strong, resilient economies where small businesses thrive.

"We'd like to thank Representatives Bonamici and Herrera Beutler for their support of that mission — and for fighting in Congress for annual funding that helps entrepreneurs have the capital resources they need to be successful," he said.

The Community Development Financial Institutions Fund started in 1994, and has since awarded more than $2.2 billion to community development organizations and financial institutions to generate economic growth and opportunity across the nation.

Rural development

Craft3 also received access to $20 million in low-interest community facilities loan capital from U.S. Department of Agriculture's rural development program, and a $2 million grant from Northwest Area Foundation. The money will support the development of community facilities in rural and tribal communities across the Pacific Northwest.

"Lack of capital in tribal communities means a lack of opportunity — and that lack of opportunity has helped create generational, persistent poverty," Zimmerman said in a release. "We're proud to be partnering with USDA Rural Development and the Northwest Area Foundation on Uplift America to make critical investments that improve quality of life, reduce poverty, improve access to capital, and create jobs."

A 52-foot motor lifeboat crew from the U.S. Coast Guard's Station Grays Harbor came upon the fishing vessel Taplow taking on water 19 miles southwest of Grays Harbor, Washington, Friday. Five fishermen and a rescue swimmer aboard the Taplow were forced to abandon ship.

Coast Guard rescues five from sinking fishing boat

The Daily Astorian

GRAYS HARBOR, Wash. — The U.S. Coast Guard rescued five fishermen from a sinking fishing vessel 19 miles southwest of Grays Harbor Friday.

Coast Guard watchstanders at Sector Columbia River received a distress call from the captain of the 56-foot Taplow that the vessel was taking on water, their engine half-flooded and pumps no longer working. The watchstanders directed the crew to activate their emergency radio beacon and don immersion suits. An emergency mariner broadcast was issued.

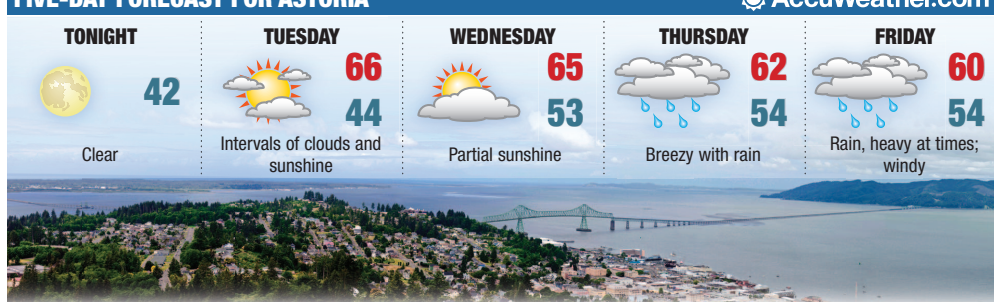

The Coast Guard dispatched a 52-foot motor lifeboat crew from Station Grays Harbor and an MH-60 Jay-hawk helicopter crew from Air Station Astoria in Warrenton. Another helicopter crew from the air station, who had landed at Grays Harbor for a personnel transfer, also responded. The helicopter at Grays Harbor arrived first, delivered a pump and remained on scene until relieved by the second helicopter crew. A rescue swimmer was then deployed to assist with the dewatering and await the arrival of the motor lifeboat crew. When on scene, the motor lifeboat crew noticed the fishing vessel listing to starboard. With dewatering efforts failing, the fishermen were advised to abandon ship. They boarded the motor lifeboat and were transported to Grays Harbor.

"This crew did everything they could to save their ship and were well prepared in the event of an emergency," said Chief Michael Guerrero, a command duty officer with the sector. "This kind of preparation saves lives and in this case expedited the rescue of these fishermen." The Taplow is believed to have sunk in more than 300 feet of water with potentially several hundred gallons of diesel on board.
